FORD TO RUN

WASHINGTON. (UPI) — President Ford will definitely run for the presidency in 1976, his chief spokesman said today.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Ford changed the "probably" that he was said before to "definitely" last Monday while talking to persons outside the White House.

It was learned that Ford gave an interview to be published in U.S. News and World Report this weekend in which he said he definitely will run.

Asked why Ford had positively made up his mind two years before the election, Nessen said:

"I guess you've heard him say how much he enjoys being president."

Lalonde 'Party' To Plans

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Health Minister Marc Lalonde disclosed Thursday that he was a party to the first suggestion that he use a distillery private jet for his controversial flight to Israel last week.

And Opposition leader Robert Stanfield today said the minister should resign if he had misled the house.

Lalonde stated that it was he who proposed that the Israeli embassy here make all the arrangements for the flight aboard the Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. aircraft.

The minister gave this information for the first time when questioned in the Commons for the second day this week about the flight which opposition MPs have suggested represents a possible conflict of interest.

During Thursday's exchange, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told MPs that they could discuss the flight in question and the practice of cabinet ministers accepting free rides from private corporations when proposed conflict of interest legislation goes to a House committee for study later this session.

The prime minister earlier this week, in an indirect rebuke to Lalonde, stated that it is contrary to government policy for ministers to accept free rides from private interests while on official business. He said that in future they will find out how they are to be transported to inviting countries before accepting such invitations.

Up until Thursday Lalonde and Trudeau have insisted that all arrangements for Lalonde to fly aboard the Seagrams jet were made by the Israeli embassy. However, a public relations firm representing the distillery said the invitation was issued by the Bronfman family, which owns a more than 30 per cent interest in the corporation.

Tory MPs have noted that Lalonde has attacked advertising by breweries in Canada recently, and connected this attack to his flight aboard a plane owned by a distillery whose largest competitor in the country is the brewing industry.

Sinclair Stevens (PC-York Simcoe) asked Lalonde Thursday whether he had any previous knowledge that the Bronfman jet was to be used for his flight before the arrangements were officially made by the embassy.

The minister replied that when the use of the jet was first discussed, he, Charles Bronfman and the Israeli ambassador were present.

JUSTICE NAMED

A 56-year-old Victoria lawyer has been made a Justice of the Supreme Court of B.C.

In a telephone call from Ottawa today the justice department told The Times that Lloyd G. McKenzie will fill a newly-created position in that court.

McKenzie, of 3434 Bonair, was admitted to the bar in 1948 and became Queen's Counsel in 1960. He is a senior partner of Harmon and Company of Victoria.

Japanese Protest

TOKYO (UPI) — Thousands of Japanese students and workers staged a noisy demonstration today demanding the cancellation of President Ford's upcoming trip to Tokyo.

Organizers of the protest said the action was only the first in a series of anti-American demonstrations planned by the Communist and Socialist parties.

RCMP HOGTIED IN THEFT PROBE

Island Search Nabs Four

ARRESTED SUSPECTS are hustled into city police station today after raid on Port Renfrew hotel. Another couple was arrested at Chemainus following assault on two RCMP plain clothes officers at Executive House overnight. Armed police manned roadblocks on southern Vancouver Island, like this one at Goldstream this morning, in all-out hunt for two couples. (Photos by Bill Halkett and John McKay).

RCMP officers stormed the Port Renfrew Hotel this morning and arrested a couple while other police arrested another couple in Chemainus at noon today, all suspects in an overnight assault on two policemen in downtown Victoria.

The all-out search, which saw police bristling with guns manning roadblocks throughout southern Vancouver Island this morning, followed the disarming and hogtieing of two plain clothes officers shortly after midnight.

A senior RCMP official said Cpl. Ed Currie and Const. Wendal Milne, plainclothes officers attached to the Colwood general investigation section, entered a room in the Executive House, 777 Douglas, shortly after midnight in the course of an investigation into a theft of $17,000 from a store in Courtenay Wednesday.

A man and a woman met the officers at the door and invited them in.

Without warning, the man pulled out a gun — believed to be similar to a 9-mm revolver — disarmed the officers and handcuffed them.

Another couple, registered in a separate room in the hotel, appeared and helped gag and tie up the officers, binding their legs to their wrists.

The four then fled, taking the officers' guns. They tore out the phone as they left.

Currie managed to knock a glass off a table and used a broken shard to cut through the ropes. Within 10 minutes he and Milne were free.

The two officers, still handcuffed, ran to the registration desk and alerted police.

Victoria police Inspector Richard said there was "a strong possible chance" the four were involved in the theft of $17,000 from a safe at the Eaton's store in Courtenay Wednesday.

A police spokesman said the couple was asleep in the Port Renfrew hotel and were completely surprised. A loaded 9 mm semi-automatic pistol was found under the man's pillow.

Police have also recovered what they believe to be Const. Milne's pistol, money taken from him and keys to the police car.

The spokesman said they tracked the couple down after learning a taxi had taken them to Port Renfrew early today.

Ward said a Colwood RCMP patrol officer had stopped one of the men driving on the Island Highway late Thursday night. The man was unable to produce a driver's licence but gave a name.

Ward said the officer let the man go but shortly afterwards grew suspicious.

Later in the evening officers located the car, a late model Buick, in the Executive House parking lot.

The four used fictitious names when they registered.

Ward said Currie and Milne were not sure they were entering the right room and thus were unprepared for the reception they received.

It's the second incident on the lower island this week in which RCMP officers have been disarmed.

A Duncan officer had his service revolver taken when he was attacked by two youths late Wednesday after stopping their car for a routine traffic check on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The pair fled and no suspects have been arrested. Police say the cases are not connected.

WEEKEND FERRIES TO RUN

There will be no weekend interruption of ferry service and negotiations for 650 government-employed ferry officers resume Monday in Vancouver. However, preparations for rotating strikes proceed in the background.

A strike vote among the 500 licensed personnel employed by B.C. Ferries, about 150 employed by highways department ferries and eight working for the forest service gives the officer's component of B.C. Government Employees Union marine branch 93 per cent support in favor of a walkout.

But today chief negotiator Peter Marshall said he had been contacted by the Public Service Commission and there was agreement to resume talks which went to mediation and collapsed two weeks ago.

Marshall said the sides were "getting together as intelligent people can do . . . sit down and talk about the thing and see if we can get this settled."

The union has given assurance there would be no strike action before Tuesday at the earliest, although strike notice served this morning would entitle officers to walk off their ships as early as Monday.

Marshall said the executive which met Thursday in Sidney decided a system of rotating strikes terminal-by-terminal would be most effective in case it is not possible to reach a settlement.

Officers also would be willing to negotiate emergency service in the Gulf Islands.

A strike of all units represented by the licensed component of BCGEU marine branch would halt government ferries everywhere in B.C.

TIMES legislative reporter Linda Hughes will be reporting from China during the two-week visit of Premier David Barrett and a party of government, industry and labor officials. Hughes and CBC cameraman Ron Thompson of Vancouver are the only two press representatives on the tour. They were first to apply for the only two extra places available. For details of the itinerary of the premier's party see page 23.

BEER UP MONDAY

Bottled beer increases in price by 20 cents per case Monday morning at all provincial liquor outlets.

The Liquor Administration Branch said today a dozen bottles of beer will sell as of Monday for $3.55, an increase of five per cent over the current price which was raised from $3 last summer.

The new price represents $2.81 for the beer, 14 cents tax and 60 cents deposit on the bottles.

The summer price increase was to cover an increase in the bottle deposit and the increase next week follows pressure from the brewing industry to raise prices to help meet increased cost of production.

Natives Given $150M Tax-Free

MONTREAL (CP) — An agreement in principle was signed today with the Quebec and federal governments awarding native peoples $150 million tax-free in compensation for adverse effects created by the massive James Bay hydroelectric power project in northwestern Quebec.

The agreement in principle between the Cree and Inuit, the two governments, the James Bay Energy Corp., the James Bay Development Corp. and Hydro-Quebec, was signed in the presenee of Premier Robert Bourassa and Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

The main points of the agreement are:

—A $75-million payment to the native peoples over the first 10-year period.

—A $75-million payment over a longer period for royalties from the province's hydroelectric projects.

—A share of the province's revenue from future hydroelectric developments.

All payments are to be tax-exempt, Chief Billy Diamond, a spokesman for the native peoples, told a news conference.

Chief Diamond said the native peoples were also to receive a 2,000-square-mile reserve for Cree Indians and a 25,000-square-mile area for exclusive use by the Cree people for hunting, fishing and trapping.

He said a government program is to be established to ensure a minimum income for Cree Indians whose livelihood depends on hunting, fishing and trapping.

The agreement in principle was made following a tour by the Grand Council of Crees of eight communities in the northwestern Quebec area around the $12-billion hydroelectric project.

Chief Diamond said the agreement included the shifting of the LG-1 dam site to Mile 54 from Mile 23 on La Grande River. The Fort George Cree band, which lives at the mouth of the river, had wanted the elimination of the dam, originally to be built 25 miles from their settlement, and a scaling down of LG-2, the giant 590-foot dam now under construction, 76 miles from their settlement.

Arab Oil Money Eyed for Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has received tentative offers of Arab oil money for housing and is actively interested, Urban Affairs Minister Barnett Danson said Thursday.

Danson said in an interview that he has had offers of money in telephone conversations but "when you try to put your finger on some specific offer, nothing happens."

But he said he has just been told that one offer has been confirmed and he will look into it. He would not elaborate.

There are a number of conditions that must be met before the government can accept Arab oil funds, the minister said.

"One of the problems seems to be that these offers are in American dollars," Danson said. The government could not gamble on American dollar exchange rates remaining the same over a long period.

The government wanted the money in Canadian dollars as the loans would be for long terms. If payments were in U.S. dollars, Canada could wind up paying more than originally estimated if the exchange rate changed.

The urban affairs minister said the government is only interested in money for residential mortgages.

The Arab oil money could be channelled in some way through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., he said. Or it could be used by private mortgage investment companies.

There have been reports in government circles that at least two offers have been made recently by Arab sources.

FORD VETOES INCREASE IN WORLD FOOD AID

ROME (CP) — Citing inflation and other domestic considerations, President Ford has turned down a request for an immediate increase of one million tons in world food aid, a United States official said today.

The decision seemed sure to spark criticism from many participants in the World Food Conference who already feel the meeting has done nothing concrete toward countering starvation. (See also Page 51.)

The announcement was made by Anne Armstrong, counsellor to President Ford and third-ranking member of the U.S. delegation to the conference. The one million-ton grant would have a commercial value of about $175 million, and would have boosted total U.S. food aid this year to 4.9-million tons, she said.

Mrs. Armstrong said the White House decision was based on domestic considerations and what such an increase in aid would have on inflation and prices in the U.S.

She said the request came at a time when the "American housewife is having a tough time meeting her own budget. American citizens are having a tough time feeding their own families."

Fire Guards Crater Secret

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — A crater with a fire burning around it was sighted by an army helicopter after persons from Victoria to Portland, Ore., saw a bright light in the sky Thursday night.

Law enforcement officials received reports of an object — believed to be a meteor — falling and burning in southwest Washington about 8 p.m.

It was first sighted in the Victoria area about 90 minutes earlier.

"A helicopter from Ft. Lewis was dispatched and hovered over a site three miles northwest of Cinebar and saw the crater and fires," a state patrol spokesman said.

The two pilots who sighted the crater while on a training mission said their best guess of its size was 100 feet long by 20 feet wide.

"But even through the clouds there was a kind of floodlight effect, like looking into a murky swimming pool that has its lights on," said co-pilot John James. "You knew there was a powerful source of light there."

Pilot Rich Morgan said that from 3,000 feet up, he saw "what looked like a pretty good fire ringing the crater."

The men were diverted to the area of the crater shortly after 9 p.m. at the request of McCord AFB, which had received reports of the "fiery object in the sky" from military and commercial pilots.

McCord was concerned that a plane might be down.

The object had been sighted earlier in the evening by pilots for the coast guard and airforce as well as by numerous others. Many persons called radio stations with reports about the object.

One group on Camano Island described it as apparently burning, with pieces falling off.

The state patrol said the Lewis county sheriff's office would send out a party to inspect the crater today.

Arab UN Power Blocks Major Israeli Speech

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In another demonstration of Arab power at the United Nations, the General Assembly has blocked Israeli plans to counterattack the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) with a major speech a day during the Palestine debate.

The assembly voted 75 to 23 with 18 abstentions Thursday to limit each country to one major speech during the Palestine debate, which runs for another week. This does not affect a country's "right of reply" to charges made against it, but this is customarily confined to 10 minutes at the end of the day's session. And it, too, is subject to regulation by the assembly president.

It was the third consecutive day that the African, Asian and Communist members united behind the assembly's Arab president, Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika, to demonstrate their control of the body once dominated by the United States and its allies.

On Tuesday, the assembly decisively upheld Bouteflika's ruling that white-ruled South Africa could no longer participate in the assembly.

On Wednesday, Bouteflika ordered Palestine guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat treated as a prime minister or chief of state, with a chair on the rostrum and the UN chief of protocol to escort him to and from it.

Arafat led off the Palestine debate with a call for creation of a state of Palestine in which Israel would be submerged. Israeli ambassador Yosef Tekoah replied a few hours later with a major speech declaring Israel would never tolerate PLO authority in any part of Palestine. Tekoah listed himself to speak daily during the debate, but Bouteflika announced Thursday that he was limiting each country to save time. U.S. ambassador John Scali argued for "unlimited debate," and Tekoah accused the president of displaying bias against Israel since the beginning of the session.

All the Arab delegations, most other African and Asian members and the Communists supported Bouteflika in the vote. The West Europeans and some Latin American countries sided with the United States and Israel.

Arafat's deputy, Farouk Khaddoumi, and other PLO officials met Thursday with 12 members of the U.S. Congress visiting UN headquarters.

A U.S. spokesmen said the congressmen were not representing the government, and he knew of no official U.S. political contacts with the PLO.

Food Aid Vetoed

The request that U.S. food aid be nearly doubled in value was sent to Ford by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz at the urging of Democratic congressional leaders in Rome for the conference.

The Ford administration said repeatedly it was time for the newly rich oil-exporting countries to help pay the food bill for their needy neighbors in Asia and Africa. But no such pledges have been made.

With the conference ending Saturday and still no signs of breakthrough, it seemed countries such as India, Bangladesh and parts of Africa, where thousands have already died from malnutrition, might go away empty handed.

Observers said the biggest problem bedeviling the talks appeared to be the refusal of the United States on one hand and newly-rich oil countries on the other, to commit themselves to any significant aid until the other side had done so.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen refused Thursday to commit Canada to additional international food aid this year until he hears what other countries are willing to do.

Bids Under School Budget

Three of seven tenders to construct an addition to Belmont Fisher Secondary School for the Sooke School District have come in under the budget of $589,500.

Low bidder was W. Campbell Co. Ltd. at $578,864. Top bid was $618,411.

The school district is expected to award a contract later this month.

The addition to the school on Jacklin Road will include a library and administration offices, involving 12,000 square feet of space.

B. F. Wells, estimator for W. Campbell, said competition was very keen for the contract, noting that rival bids had come in at $579,884 and $581,370, both within $3,000 of the Campbell bid.

W. Campbell earlier was awarded a management contract as low bidder for the Spectrum Community School at Burnside and Marigold but is still waiting word from the provincial department of education to proceed with the project. The department has ordered a second look at projected costs of the school. The contract was awarded in August.

Boilermakers Union To Walk Out Monday

The boilermakers union says it will withdraw its workers from all Construction Labor Relations Association contractor projects in B.C. Monday.

Union spokesman Don Vinoly in Vancouver said, however, the union will not put up picket lines in the meantime.

An industry source said the union could shut down the whole industry. CLRA president Charles Connaghan was not available for comment.

The union, the only one not to have settled with CLRA which represents the bulk of the province's contractors, earlier served strike notice on six companies.

Mediator Ed Sims was unable to resolve the dispute and reported out earlier this week leaving the union in a legal position to strike.

The boilermakers have ratified a new 14-month agreement with independent contractors giving them a 20.3-per-cent package increase on a current base rate of $8.53 an hour.

BOMBER BLOWN TO BITS

COVENTRY, England (Reuter) — Police believe that a man blown to pieces in an explosion near a city centre telephone exchange Thursday night had been planting the bomb.

After the blast another man ran away but was captured by men emerging from a nearby tavern. Police said they had previous knowledge of him and the dead man.

The explosion, which extensively damaged the telephone exchange, was one of three in the Midlands.

Earlier, a young woman planted a bomb in the entrance of a Royal Air Force Association club in Northampton, before speeding away in a car. The club, used mainly by ex-servicemen, was empty at the time.

The third blast was at the headquarters of the Conservative party association in Solihull, about 10 miles south of Coventry. No one was injured.

The explosions followed a wave of bomb attacks in the Midlands.

Police said the fact that no warnings were given Thursday led to speculation that bombs were planted by an extreme left wing group called Red Flag 74.

This group has claimed responsibility for three recent explosions in taverns frequented by off-duty servicemen.

EARLY START FOR SKIERS

COURTENAY — Forbidden Plateau's ski season could open earlier than usual this year because of heavy snowfalls in that area of the Island.

Last year's season started Nov. 24, and ski school instructor Herb Bradley expects an earlier start this winter.

Last weekend about 16 inches of snow landed on the mountains and a few additional inches have fallen since then.

Cut Oil Use: Kissinger

CHICAGO (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger of the United States, warning that "it is our liberty that in the end is at stake," has called for rigid international co-operation to cut oil consumption and develop new energy sources.

Only a serious reduction in consumption by industrialized nations will impel oil-producing nations to negotiate lower oil prices, Kissinger said. Otherwise, "we face further and mounting worldwide shortages, unemployment, poverty and hunger," imperiling international order.

"It is our liberty that in the end is at stake and it is only through the concerted action of the industrial democracies that it will be maintained," said Kissinger in a major address at the University of Chicago.

Kissinger said North America, Western Europe and Japan must co-operate because "there can be no purely American solution."

He proposed a five-point international program of co-operation to check the effects of the global energy crisis.

The plan included reduced dependence on foreign oil supplies; dynamic development of alternative energy sources; a shoring up of economies overburdened by huge outlays paid in high oil prices to producing nations; continuing aid at least at current levels to developing countries; and meaningful dialogue with producers after bargaining power is attained through reduced consumption.

The United States will play a major role in any international co-operative effort, specifically seeking to reduce oil imports over the next decade to no more than one million barrels daily from seven million barrels a day, said Kissinger.

Kissinger proposed an international agreement to set consumption goals, asking that by the end of 1975 industrialized countries reduce their consumption of oil by three million barrels a day and meet each year to set annual targets.

"This reduction can be carried out without prejudice to economic growth and jobs, by cutting back on wasteful and inefficient uses of energy both in personal consumption and in industry," he ssaid.

He urged the industrialized bloc to make a major shift toward use of nuclear power, coal, gas and other energy resources to transform current shortages into energy surpluses by the 1980s.

Kissinger said the most serious immediate problem is economic and financial strain facing industrial nations that currently are burdened with a collective payments deficit of $40 billion.

He called for the creation of a common loan and guarantee facility to provide for redistributing in 1975 up to $25 billion in money that was invested in consuming nations by the oil-producing nations.

"Support from the facility would not be automatic, but contingent on full resort to private financing and on reasonable self-help measures. No country should expect financial assistance that is not moving effectively to lessen its dependence on imported oil."

Kissinger warned the oil nations not to raise prices while the West struggles for a common position. He said such an effort "would be disruptive and dangerous."

Kissinger said discussion of his proposal is already under way among West Germany, the United States, Japan, Great Britain and France.

the weather

Rain invaded the northern coastal regions this morning. An approaching system accompanied by gale force winds will move south today and tomorrow. Over northern interior regions the rain will change to snow but amounts are expected to be slight in most areas. The southern sections of the province will remain mostly cloudy today with the precipitation reaching those areas tonight and Saturday. The strong winds will diminish before reaching the south coast on Saturday.

GOLD FEVER GRIPS U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Gold fever has British investors in its grip. The gloomier the economic outlook, the more people are clamoring to buy gold as a refuge for their savings.

Since private investors are legally barred from owning gold bullion, the rush is to gold coins, and in particular the Krugerrand minted by South Africa.

There was some caution on the market in recent days, because of fears that Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey might take action in his budget to discourage the import of the one-ounce gold coins.

But Krugerrands emerged from the budget unscathed. And the morning after there was a rush for the coins at a record price of £91 (about $209) after gaining £6.5 sterling (about $15).

Gold bullion has been climbing on the free market, and gold mining shares have been one of the few bright spots on the badly depressed stock market.

The latest fixing record for bullion, set Thursday was $188.25 an ounce.

Chip Price Curbs Nearer

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff — agate

Legislation which gives cabinet the power to regulate the price of wood chips paid by pulp mills in the province was introduced in the legislature Thursday.

Main purpose of the Timber Products Stabilization Act is to establish a forest products board which will recommend to cabinet floor and ceiling prices of wood chips paid to B.C. sawmills.

To consist of up to six members the board will also have the right to enter the log market on the lower coast to ensure a "freer and open trading" of forest products on the coast, according to Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The government will also waive royalties on increased revenue from higher chip prices until mid-1975 when the forest economy is re-examined.

"The bill is intended to see all benefits flow directly to the sawmills," said Williams.

"We felt we could not sit idly by while the sawmills suffered. The two economies of the forest industry had to be put together."

Williams said the bill was the government's answer to dealing with "great suffering" by independent sawmills "while the pulp mill economy has never before enjoyed such phenomenal prices."

Legislation, he said, follows closely recommendations included in the Dr. Peter Pearse task force report which advised creation of an agency that would play a role in pricing and log trading on the coast.

The minister sees the floor price strategy for wood chips as "the best means of insuring survival of independent sawmillers particularly in the interior of the province."

Question of price "that might fairly be paid" for chips is under study and recommendation from a team of consultants is expected shortly. Current prices vary between $10 and $26 a bone-dry unit.

"It's a quasi-monopoly situation; not a free market," said Williams. "There are few buyers for chips and a large number of sellers. The decline of independent saw mills experienced during the Socred government, we want to see reversed."

Formula for determining prices may differ depending on area of the province, and any agreement made before or after the act is approved that conflicts with desired wood chip prices "is void."

The bill gives the board corporation status and "may carry out its powers and duties in its own name without specific reference to the Crown."

Responsible to the resources minister, the board "in its discretion may hold inquiries into wood chip prices, do business," hire employees and acquire the shares, debentures or other securities of a company.

Williams said how soon the government moves to set up the board — which may include membership of MLAs as well as representatives of the forest industry — depends whether "the opposition cares."

The bill will deal effectively with unemployment in the slumping sawmill industry, said Williams, by prompting "a fair number of sawmills" to re-consider plans to terminate operations in December. "Those down now will come back sooner," he predicted.

Contravention of the price structure leads to a fine of up to $10,000 and imprisonment of up to a year.

Also included are wide powers for borrowing from provincial revenue.

Williams said the legislation is an attempt to make it economical for the forest industry to remove slash lumber materials from forest floors and get "it into sawmills to make waste materials productive."

Meeting Set

A meet nig to discuss whether Sooke residents want a community plan will be held in Sooke Community Hall next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Residents will also be asked if they favor zoning and subdivision bylaws. This would apply to the whole of the Sooke electoral district.

The meeting will be attended by Sooke regional district director Ron Dumont, Peter Hammer, chief regional planner, members of the Sooke advisory committee, and two planning consultants.

Dung Export Capital Smelling Like Roses

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) The city of Tacoma soon may have claim to a dubious distinction: the dung-exporting capital of the northwest.

Cow manure is being shipped to the Middle East for a billion-dollar desert reclamation project financed by Arab oil money.

The first 850,000-gallon barge shipment of deodorized dung is scheduled to leave Tacoma early next month.

The liquified manure will be taken through the Panama Canal to Lake St. Charles, La., where it will be pumped aboard an oil tanker for shipment to the tiny Persian Gulf emirates of Dahrain and Dubai.

The manure then will be mixed with pulverized wood chips, spread on the desert sands and planted with grass to build soil and prevent wind erosion. The two Arab states have contracted for 50,000 metric tons a year of manure, according to an official of World Wide Brokers of Galliano, La. A metric ton is 1,000 kilograms.

The northwest quota is 250,000 gallons a month of manure, according to Buttercup Sales, the local contractor.

For northwest farmers, the situation is one of stepping in it and coming up smelling like a rose. They are being paid five cents a gallon for what once was "a real serious problem to get rid of."

"This will save our lives," said Virgil Baker of Mountain View farms in Orting.

"The dairy business is so depressed right now we've been operating $3,000 a month in the red. Now we can make up to $4,000 a month on manure. It seems like a fairy tale."

LOCAL printmaker Pat Martin Bates will lecture at 8 tonight at Victoria Art Gallery on her own work, its derivations and technique. This year, Ms. Bates was invited to three major print exhibitions — the Sixth International Print Biennale in June; the Fourth British International Print Biennale in July and the Norwegian in August. While in Poland and Norway she also collected awards she had won in those countries two years ago.

'A Take-Over Threat'

The government's new chip price legislation is designed to pave the way "for complete take-over of the forest industry," Opposition leader Bill Bennett charged Thursday.

"What appears to be a very innocent bill to increase the price of chips," said Bennett, shortly after introduction of the legislation, "is in fact a bill to prepare the way for a take-over of the industry by this government."

The NDP has already begun the take-over move, by purchasing forest companies, he said, but the new legislation gives the cabinet full power to make regulations concerning the industry "without any of the qualifications we usually see."

The Socreds wanted the government to take action on low chip prices, said Bennett, but "they didn't need to bring in the big stick."

CanCel, the government-owned pulp and paper mill, could have taken the initiative in raising the price it pays for chips he said, and in that way provide direction and leadership to the industry.

Bennett accused CanCel of paying the lowest price for chips in the province and said other large pulp companies have already raised their prices two-fold in the last year and a half.

Liberal spokesman Gordon Gibson criticized the bill as "the start of takeover of the forestry industry."

He said the government was "starting with the chips, but giving itself the power to intervene with every lumber market in the province."

He said there were "definite signs" of softening in the pulp market economy and the scheme has to take that into account.

Membership on the board which allows representation by MLAs, he said, was "a pure payoff section allowing the cabinet to slip extra money to the backbenchers."

With absolute powers to introduce regulations and borrow funds the government is setting up a de facto marketing board for affecting marketing prices, he said.

The bill is designed to achieve prices for wood chips, he said, and the government doesn't need to take complete control of the market to do it.

It Doesn't Solve Our Problems: CFI

Council of Forest Industries executive vice-president Norman Dusting said the bill "does nothing to resolve our uncertainty of the government's ultimate intention and gives companies, whether large or small, nothing concrete on which to plan and invest for the future."

CFI members prefer to negotiate their own chip prices, Dusting said, and have so stated in response to recommendations of the Pearse task force report to the government.

Dusting noted the "bill goes far beyond the setting of chip prices" and would appear to apply to all forms of forest products in an undefined manner.

328 More Police Needed, Vancouver Force Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — The police department wants 328 more policemen during the next two years, an increase of about 40 per cent of present strength.

The city police board voted unanimous support for the request Thursday and will ask city council to approve the hiring of 164 men in 1975 and 164 in 1976.

"We don't want to create a panic situation . . . but there is a clear, definite need for a substantial increase in manpower," Chief Don Winterton told the board.

He was supported by John Hogarth, Chairman of the B.C. Police Commission, who called the request cautious and conservative and a minimum needed to provide the city with an adequate standard of policing.

The police request is based on a comparison of police strength and the crime rate. The comparison showed Vancouver to be underpoliced compared with other major Canadian cities.

The additional men would bring Vancouver up to the national average.

SAM BAWLF LOOKS AHEAD

The overriding issue of these uncertain economic times is disciplined financial management from your aldermen. Residential property taxes must not be permitted to spiral upwards.

At the same time, the City must harness the funds available from the senior governments to solve the housing crisis. We have stopped conversion of rental suites to condominiums but the supply of rental accommodation must be increased drastically.

If I am re-elected I shall continue my efforts to resolve these vital issues.

Release the Police Report

The assertion that a 17-page report criticizing the Victoria city police department for poor working conditions and unsafe vehicles will be kept under wraps because it is not in the public interest is idiotic. What could be more in the public interest than that which is alleged to be going on in the police department? Mayor Peter Pollen, the man who likes to call himself a "freedom fighter," and who all too often is a master of vitriol himself, says it is not in the public interest to disclose allegations contained in the report because it is a "vitriolic document."

The chief magistrate goes on to lecture us that the document was only one 23-year-old's opinion, a person who had been a part time member of the police department. What has the man's age got to do with the case? The fact remains he worked on the Victoria police force, has made certain allegations concerning the force, and the mayor speaking for the city police board decided to suppress these opinions.

We had always thought the police commission was intended to serve the public interest, rather than hide allegations about the force.

Nor would it be in the city's interest to publish a report that claims Victoria's police force is under staffed, especially since police labor negotiations are not far away. In Vancouver police are asking for a 40 per cent manpower increase over the next two years. Would the report be a useful bargaining tool for city policemen?

As to the mayor's fatuous advice that the press should go out and ask Victoria policemen about working conditions, he should know that officers don't speak on such matters with the press unless they have clearance from a superior officer. It is the police commission who should do the talking; they are the ones who have suppressed the report. Perhaps the mayor is correct in dismissing the report so flippantly. But the public has a right to judge for itself. The report should be released at once. A pat on the head from Pollen is not enough reassurance.

Too Much Teacher Power

Teacher knows best seems to be the philosophy behind a B.C. Teacher Federation proposed draft of a Teaching Profession Act which school trustees leaked to the press at a delicate period of teacher-trustee labor negotiations — something for which trustees should have their knuckles rapped, considering the carefully staged release.

Among the provisions: appointments of school district supervisory personnel, principals, head teachers, in fact all promotions would be controlled by "local associations" of teachers that would negotiate salaries and set conditions of employment; school libraries, librarians and clerical personnel would also fall under local teacher responsibility; general educational policies and school procedures would be in the hands of "the professional staff of a school", subject to provisions of the Public Schools Act and school board policy. Teacher certification would be done by a seven member board, the majority of seats held by teachers. Once certified, teacher behavior and competance would be a function of the BCTF.

Reading between the lines, the draft proposals have the effect of reducing local school boards to an ancillary role in formulating policies. Boards would have to consult with teacher associations before making even the most minor decision. While it is easy to have sympathy for teachers faced with conservative trustees which have little or no knowledge of modern education, school boards, whatever their faults, ensure the public some control over the educational process.

In the past, naive governments have given self policing powers to a number of professions, including doctors and lawyers, who govern every aspect of their own professions, often in secret to the public detriment. To create another untouchable category at a time when public sentiment favors curbing professional powers would be ill advised.

The BCTF should revise these proposals — it should be emphasized the current document is only a draft — suggesting alternatives to an all powerful professional society. Certainly teachers deserve an important role in formulating curriculm, policy and methods. But as the old adage says war is too important a matter to be left to the generals and similarly education should not be left entirely up to teachers.

"... Pierre, Pierre ... I'm going to write for Chatelaine ... show me what a typewriter looks like ...!"

Plucking the Political Plums

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau and the federal government are developing a carelessness about appearances that invites the critical view that they intend to use their new majority to enjoy, if not the spoils, at least all of the tidbits and plums of office.

Controversial appointments of personal friends to important positions of power, rewards to old associates, free trips that could well be paid for, insensitivity to legitimate political considerations, frivolous responses when criticism is encountered and some callousness towards those outside the charmed circle all are involved.

The appointment of Michael Pitfield as clerk of the privy council should not be condemned merely because it was controversial. Since it involved jumping a personal friend over many other heads, however, it would have been much better if it had been supported by undiminished prime ministerial prestige.

Poor Judgment

The number of people Pitfield has alienated during his tenure of positions close to the centre of power is admitted to be significant even by those who like him and support the appointment. They conceded that he will have his work cut out for him when he takes over the top job in the bureaucracy and sets about proving that he holds it through talent, not favoritism. He will inevitably encounter a period when co-operation from many senior officials will be grudging. But he does have supporters who think he can pull it off.

The appointment was so controversial, however, that it brought the great Robert Bryce back from Washington on an unpublicized trip to pour oil on troubled waters. Bryce's prestige is still tremendous among senior public servants, although he is out of the mainstream now as the country's permanent representative at the World Bank. He learned that at least 11 deputy ministers, several of them top members of the Mandarins' Club, were in a state close to revolt. He put his prestige on the line, urging them to cool it. They did. But even when full allowance is made for the fact that men generally fall in line when they face real power — which Pitfield will have — the incident demonstrates the delicacy of the situation.

Under such circumstances, it would have been wise of the prime minister to have let his old associate, Jim Davey, wait a bit longer for his reward appointment as an assistant deputy minister in the department of transport. Like Pitfield, Davey has both stout admirers and bitter detractors. He was regarded as a close associate, rather than a personal friend, of the prime minister. The Liberal party blamed him bitterly for the unrewarding tactics Trudeau adopted in the 1972 campaign. During the subsequent period of humility, he was side-tracked from the prime minister's office to transport as an adviser to Jean Marchand.

By giving him his reward so soon after the Pitfield appointment, however, the prime minister encouraged the unfortunate view that he was motivated by favoritism. Since both men obviously possess ability, that is probably not fair to either of them at this stage — the real judgment should be made when they show whether they can succeed or not — but the impression is inevitable.

MICHAEL PITFIELD
. . . a friend in high places

Margaret Trudeau's trip to Japan with a considerable entourage that includes the prime minister's brother, as guests of a foreign shipping magnate, has left an unfavorable impression in Ottawa that goes far beyond those who look for reasons to be critical of the prime minister.

There is an uneasy and disappointed feeling here that serious questions of taste have been violated, that people with the Trudeaus' money do not really have to go about getting free rides while he holds high political office.

Marc Lalonde's succession of political errors in the last year have dismayed those who like and admire him because of the thread of plain bad judgment that runs through them. He acts as if he were surrounded by an entourage that says "yes" when he should be more rigorous and include someone who says "Yes, but . . ." or even, "Hell, no!"

The Israeli ambassador here probably looks on the Bronfman clan as wealthy Zionist sympathizers who contribute generously to bond drives and from whom free airplane trips to Tel Aviv can be reasonably accepted. In his position, that could be taken as an unexceptional view. When a Canadian cabinet minister is travelling, however, the Bronfmans should appear in a different way — as extremely wealthy people with great liquor holdings, vast financial interests; property developers with endless irons in the fire, the greatest takeover capacity of any family in Canada. Their interest in property development alone would warn off a politically sensitive cabinet minister.

Alienated Many

The unattractive thing about Lalonde's free trip is that he is a minister on an official visit to Israel. As such, there is every reason in the world why the government of Canada should buy him a first class return ticket to Tel Aviv. It is not that he has had a free ride from the Bronfmans on their airplane. It is that the government of Canada has had it. We pay enough taxes in this country to keep our end up properly.

Lalonde is a valuable member of the cabinet and among people who are upset by his free-loading with the Bronfmans there is, nevertheless, a strong reluctance to think ill of him except in terms of poor political judgment. I have heard no suggestions that Marc Lalonde could be bought by a trip to Israel.

In this respect, he may be lucky that he has already built up such an established reputation as a man who readily makes political mistakes, stumbling over football, beer advertising, germs in hamburger.

The prime minister, however, contributes nothing useful when he seeks to divert commons questions over this incident by silly frivolity, offering to arrange free rides on other airplanes for opposition members. He simply leaves the impression, when he reacts in that way, that he sees nothing amiss in picking up the goodies that offer themselves so freely after electoral successes.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Demands Change

As the municipal election day approaches it seems appropriate to comment on a change in the Municipal Act that will disenfranchise many property owners for the first time.

The NDP government has put through an amendment to the Municipal Act that states that a property owner must be a resident of a municipality to be included on the voters list.

Many people may own a single house in a neighboring municipality, either their former residence which they chose to keep either as an investment or for future use by sons or daughters or it might be a house that has been in a family for several generations. I suggest that there is nothing undemocratic or immoral about this type of ownership. In fact, if such ownership did not exist there would be very few single family homes available for rent by those who need that type of accommodation.

What is undemocratic, of course, is that the owners of these houses are now to be denied the basic democratic privilege of helping to choose the men and women who will make decisions which could seriously affect their property. It is nothing more or less than taxation without representation.

At the recent convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities the hundreds of mayors and aldermen who represent the property owners and residents of B.C. endorsed a resolution requesting the provincial government to amend the Municipal Act again to allow non-resident property owners to register as voters within the municipality in which they hold property but retaining the principle of only one vote per person.

The lower Vancouver Island Liberal associations recently endorsed a similar resolution and added as a further resolution that only persons named on the revised voters' list should be eligible to stand for office on council in that municipality. As the act reads now a person can be elected to council without being either a resident or a property owner.

I urge all those who agree that the present legislation is undemocratic to write to their MLA and/or the minister of municipal affairs and demand the change requested by our elected representatives.—Frances Elford, 3045 Larkdowne Road.

Supertankers

I wonder how many people were shocked when Margaret Trudeau went to Japan to christen a supertanker?

Many of us have spent years protesting the building of these super polluters. MLA David Anderson has been in the forefront of the battle against supertankers coming down the B.C. coast and plying these inland waters.

People of all shades of political opinion have deplored the use of these supertankers. They are built for speed and capacity and safety devices are sacrificed.

The Japanese are in the vanguard of building unsafe tankers. These ships have only one boiler, whereas older ships had two or three and if one failed others could be brought into use. Once the boiler fails so does the steam, the electricity, the lights, the radar, the echo-sounder and other devices necessary to prevent accidents.

Japan welds supertankers like the infamous Liberty ships that broke up during the war. They are built for speed and economy, not safety. They have no twin screws or double hulls. — Eve Smith, Port Washington.

Class Legislation

Your somewhat emotionally phrased editorial A Vote for People regrettably lacks real understanding of the inequity involved in the government's disenfranchisement of the corporate citizen in municipal elections.

So far as I know it has never been legal for an individual, as an individual, to cast more than one vote in any one municipality regardless of the separate pieces of property he might own there. But a corporation under Canadian law is a citizen in its own right, liable as such to all the obligations of the private citizen, including the liability to civil and criminal suit and the requirement of paying taxes levied against it. That being so the concomitant right of having some say in matters affecting its welfare and destiny has also been long acknowledged.

It is this right that has been now taken away while still insisting that the corporation continue to assume its responsibilities and obligations as a citizen. The fact that at election time the corporation exercised its judgment through a duly appointed agent, be he shareholder, manager or employee is in no way germane to the consideration. So long as we continue to believe in equity before the law of all classes of citizens, so long must we be jealous of the rights of all those classes, be they individual or corporate. Class legislation is a two-edged knife. It may cut you apart tomorrow. — H. R. Stephen, 1211 Beach Drive.

AT THE POLLS
. . . some disenfranchised?

So-called Toy

Woolco's toyland is selling now "Scream'n Demon Cycles" a so-called toy for tiny children. For heaven's sake! In order to make a dollar some people have no consideration for the sanity of our society. They warp the minds of innocent children good and early. My only hope is that parents have more sense! — W. K. Schuldes, 3054 Glenmanor Place.

Not a Holiday

To me the true meaning of Remembrance Day is one on which we have the privilege of maybe sparing a couple of minutes to revere the memory of those who gave their lives for us in both World Wars and the Korea action. This observance of the two minute's silence can either be done at home, at work and if near a local cenotaph or war memorial, join the others who have the same reverence.

It is not, I repeat not, a day of celebration of battles fought and won and therefore should not be called or declared a public holiday, neither is it a day for the purpose of taking a jaunt somewhere, etc. etc. I am therefore sorry that British Columbia has for too long considered Nov. 11 to be a general holiday and from what I learn this province is very much alone in that respect. Most of the large centres carry on their business with certain exceptions with just a brief pause for the purpose of observing the two minute's silence. Several times I've been in London, the capital of the Commonwealth, and on walking down Whitehall and on hearing Big Ben strike the eleventh hour, to see all traffic come to a halt, and the short ceremony taking place at the Cenotaph. Then the troops and dignitaries depart and the traffic resumes its noisy way. It's a case of back to work again but due reverence has been made to the fallen.

Today (Nov. 11) on television I saw the service of remembrance in Ottawa and consider it one of the best yet; the inclusion of a nice choral group adding a lot to the scene as did the fresh young voices of the two girls who spoke words, which says a lot for the youth of today.

I know full well there will be some opposition to my idea of doing away with a holiday on this day supposedly to be of remembrance of the fallen, but as a veteran of both world wars, as we say in the vernacular, "Them's my sentiments." — An Old Sweat.

Apathetic Canadians

What an unrealistic world we live in today.

Here in Canada we have an abundance of food and natural resources and yet many Canadians just cannot afford to buy a home and others live on the border-line of poverty. Our money supply is in the hands of, or controlled by, the few and for the sake of higher interest rates our people are denied housing and the other necessities of life.

William Hawrelak of Edmonton, in spite of scandals surrounding him when he was previously mayor, is elected mayor of Edmonton again. Joey Smallwood, in spite of the many scandals surrounding him when he was premier of Newfoundland, dares to run for the leadership of the Liberals in his province but fortunately was defeated. The $100 million scandal in Manitoba, which was investigated by a royal commission, laid charge against the administration of Premier Duff Roblin, and one of the promoters of the project whose background was not even investigated has disappeared with $26 million. The man in charge of the department operating the project was condemned in the report but is safely entrenched in a similar job in Prince Edward Island. Duff Roblin ran as a Conservative in the recent federal election but was fortunately defeated.

These cases surely prove what I have said many times. The average Canadian is apathetic about the various levels of government and consequently permits such incidents to happen and takes no action when investigation by royal commissions or other government agencies disclose the painful facts. It just does not add for me but the old saying "if you are going to steal, steal a million" seems to prevail in 1974.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 15, 1914

The Hon. William Templeman, a former member of the Laurier administration and the proprietor of the Victoria Daily Times, died at his home today. He was born at Pakenham, Ont., in 1844 and lived there until he was 17, when he decided to learn the printing business. Mr. Templeman spent several years in faraway cities—Oswego, N.Y., Chicago and Memphis — learning the trade as a journeyman and returned to his native Lanark County to found the Almonte Gazette. He disposed of this interest in 1881 and moved to Victoria that autumn, when the Times was an infant of six months. He took charge of the mechanical end of the paper, but after a year took more and more interest in the editorial end of things. An unsuccessful Liberal candidate for parliament on three occasions, he was named to the senate in 1897 and five years later entered the Laurier cabinet as minister without portfolio. In 1906 he became inland revenue minister and was finally elected to the House of Commons in a special byelection that year.

'At Feeding Time It's Like Belsen'

By WALTER SCHWARZ
Manchester Guardian

"At feeding time it's just like Dacca Belsen," said a Norwegian health worker at the Kurigram central gruel kitchen. He really meant the queues of emaciated women and children with staring eyes, some alert, others dull and apathetic.

But the stronger parallel with Belsen was the silence, the despair, and the atmosphere of death. For weeks Kurigram has been the hungriest subdivision of Rangpur district which is one of the five hungriest districts in Bangladesh, the others being Sylhet, Mymensing, Dinjapur, and Dacca.

Everywhere there are gruel kitchens, but most are recently set up. The food they distribute is too little and much too late. In the endless, silent queues there are visible gaps in families. Women with children but no husbands, men with children and no wives, and children on their own.

What remains of Sabed Ali's family is still together, squatting on the concrete floor of the gruel kitchen outside Rangpur. He said their younger daughter died yesterday, and his wife Sultana nodded with no sign of emotion. "Her body swelled up, the doctor came and gave her something, but it did no good.' The elder daughter was beside him. He said she was five but she looked about two.

The only signs of better days were a plain gilt necklace the girl was wearing, and a single blue bangle on each wrist.

"I was a farm labourer," said Sabed Ali, telling the story of hundreds of thousands like him in the district. "I used to earn four or five takas a day but this year there was no work."

They left their village and walked 10 miles to Rangpur in search of food. Now each member of the family gets two platefuls of gruel a day. On this the 5-year-old girl may survive but there is clearly no hope for the baby which has somehow lived through it all so far.

Nusur Ali, grey, bearded, and wiry, looks as if he will survive. He walked twenty-five miles to the gruel kitchen carrying his tiny son. He left his wife and other children to beg in the village and has no idea what will become of them. His son has started vomiting up the gruel.

An atmosphere of death

What caused the famine? "Allah," said Nusur Ali. Others blame the government — some even blame Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. Officials say no grain arrived at the worst time and too little thereafter — and that some of the food that leaves Dacca or Chittagong never arrives. Rangpur is starving because freak rains and floods washed out the crops and in September no relief food arrived.

Now it it arriving but it is too late and too little. The number of starvation deaths so far in this district of five and a half million people varies in official estimates from fifteen thousand to twenty-five thousand. The death rate has now slowed down but must obviously still be in the region of several hundred a day.

"On the eleventh of October my stocks were down to zero," said the subdivisional officer at Gaybanda. "There were no serious riots but there might have been. Now there are stocks to feed the gruel kitchens and in theory a quarter of the district's population of five and a half million are getting fed."

But many in fact get only one "roti" (small piece of flat bread) a day. Officially the ration is two. "In this part of Bengal the people are quiet," said an official as we watched the gruel queue. "They die but they don't protest."

Some of the relief goods are so meagre as to be embarrassing. Almost every day a helicopter lands on the sports field at Gabanda — a subdivision of 1.3 million people of whom 250,000 depend on gruel kitchens. The helicopter discharges two hundred packets, each containing 24 loaves of bread.

The reason no food arrived in September was that the Bangladesh government was bankrupt. No substantial shipments of foreign grain arrjved because the government could not pay. And foreign relief had not got under way because most foreign governments thought Bangladesh was exaggerating the extent of the damage. And what little grain there was did not get to Rangpur because of its remoteness.

The summer monsoon, which normally deposits 85 inches of rain here, this year drenched Rangpur with 107 inches, washing out the standing rice crops. Then the annual flood, which usually lasts a few weeks, stayed for three months. So the jute was lost too, the landless labourers had no work and the small farmers also starved.

Ford visit protested in Tokyo Tuesday

N-Arms Furore Rises in Japan

THE NEW REPUBLIC

The Japanese have regarded atomic arms with understandable horror ever since the holocausts of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and no government can survive in Japan that does not share that aversion. But evidence now emerging suggests that an agreement between Washington and Tokyo prohibiting the entry of American nuclear weapons into Japan has been violated.

★

The issue, which strikes at the heart of Japanese sensitivities, is currently building into a furore and could topple Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, whose popularity has dropped sharply as a result of inflation, oil shortages and other economic troubles. It may also jeopardize President Ford's planned visit to Japan this month, and could disrupt his first major venture into foreign summitry at a time when his domestic standing is less than solid.

The nuclear ruckus was triggered by a casual remark last month by retired Rear Adm. Gene R. LaRocque, an advocate of stiff arms controls, in testimony before an Atomic Energy subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington. Referring to the worldwide spread of nuclear weapons, La Rocque said that U.S. naval vessels "do not offload them when they go into foreign ports such as Japan and other countries" (sic). His statement went unnoticed until Japanese correspondents in Washington saw the published text of the hearing four weeks later and splashed it across the Tokyo press. Coming as it did from a former U.S. Navy officer, La Rocque's revelation was viewed as official. But as La Rocque conceded afterward, his comment was inadvertent.

Under basic policy enunciated in December 1967, the Japanese government pledges not to manufacture or possess nuclear weapons, or permit their introduction into Japan. A codicil to the U.S.-Japan security treat, revised in 1960, also makes the introduction of nuclear weapons into Japan subject to Japanese government approval.

But despite these safeguards, American nuclear weapons have been entering Japan, as La Rocque accidentially disclosed. Don Oberdorfer of The Washington Post reported the other day after interviewing crew members of the USS Midway that their ship, stationed at Yokosuka, carries white and silver nuclear bombs with red-painted noses, and Fox Butterfield of The New York Times has divulged that these weapons are in Japan under a secret "transit" accord with the U.S.

Japanese Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura has denied both accounts, and the State Department declines to clarify the matter. Is the Japanese government lying for the sake of its survival? Or is it really unaware of the existence of American nuclear weapons in Japan? And if so, has the U.S. been deploying these weapons without advising the Japanese, as the terms of the security treaty require?

★

Sooner or later the truth will emerge, and it is likely to place new strains on the already deteriorating ties between the U.S. and Japan. These relations came umier stress during the Nixon administration, when the former President betrayed his promise to consult with the Japanese before making overtures to China. The Japanese are now worried by the possibilty that the U.S. may limit exports of raw materials to them while restricting the import of their goods. These difficulties are bound to be exacerbated by the nuclear controversy, and the left-wing opposition, besides seeking to overthrow Tanaka, will probably attempt to block the Ford trip in the same way that it torpedoed President Eisenhower's visit to Tokyo in 1960.

It will be hard for Tanaka to escape the storm of protest he faces in the coming weeks, and it may be hard for Ford, who inherited a mess of not of his own making, to avoid another blow to his waning prestige.

Immigration Controlled by the Bureaucrats

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — It is hard not to be sardonic about immigration policy and immigration. Two years ago we got a Green Paper on Communications. Sooner or later we shall get a Green Paper on Immigration. The instigator in both cases was Allan Gotlieb, formerly deputy-minister of communications; now deputy-minister of manpower and immigration.

The Green Paper on Communications has faded away, obscure now, if not forgotten. It seems Mr. Gotlieb will not even reap the obvious reward: The chairmanship of his proposed new Canadian Radio Television Commission. The Green Paper on Immigration is likely to prove as irrelevant and unrewarding.

The minister responsible for immigration, Robert Andras, says that the immigration study will not present government policy proposals but options to be discussed by the Canadian public in the fine tradition of Liberal participatory democracy. After this public debate, says the minister, the government will draft new legislation on immigration.

The existing immigration law dates back to enactment in 1952. It does absolutely nothing in its clauses to regulate the kind of immigrants we are getting, nor does it regulate the volume. All that is done by regulations promulgated by orders-in-council. The act is merely a handy reference guide for the RCMP to stop such "undesirables" as epileptics, morons and homosexuals from entering the couhtry as landed immigrants.

ANDRAS
. . . just options

At the time Otto Lang left the immigration portfolio in January, 1972, he had had crafted a new immigration law to replace the one of 1952. When Bryce Mackasey left the portfolio in November, 1972, he too had a draft law, considerably different from the Lang draft. Indeed, when Jean Marchand was minister, I understand that his brainpower, Tom Kent, also had a draft law ready before he was exiled to the Siberia of Cape Breton.

In all, such evidence, plus the long delay in the Green Paper, demonstrates that immigration is touchy, difficult and confusing. The proposed new legislation will hopefully be more contemporary in its definition of undesirables than the present law. However, it will have almost no influence on how many immigrants we will admit annually, nor will it have any bearing on the ethnic and racial composition of the immigration flow. To incorporate such principles or directives in a law, would, as the bureaucrats say, "make for inflexibility."

Thus we must see the exercise in producing a Green Paper as really a smokescreen designed by officials to ease the government's embarrassment that if has no real immigration policy at all and isn't very sure that it wants one. The embarrassment is compounded by deep splits in the Liberal party (including the caucus) on every significant issue relating to immigration.

While Allan Gotlieb and the Green Paper's author, Richard Tait, both veterans of external affairs, were sweating to produce something readable and logical enough for exposure, their minister, Mr. Andras, made two valiant attempts to change immigration policy, once in February and more recently in October.

His advisers convinced him that Canadians were passing the stage where they would accept more non-whites. Accordingly, changes were framed in the regulations and the directives which flow from their authority, aimed mainly at curbing immigration from the Third World. This was to be done by shuffling the scoring values in "the points system" and, by tightening and slowing the immigration procedures.

The other side of the political coin prevented the minister from doing his worst. Liberal backbenchers and even some frontbenchers, sensitive to the size and pressure of their ethnic constituencies and remembering who helped them form a majority government, opposed the minister.

The outcome was that Andras could tell the literal truth at his October press conference, namely that immigration policy would not be based on race or country of origin. In 1974 we will still receive about 200,000 immigrants, one of the highest intakes since the Second World War. Some of his colleagues wondered why he needed the press conference to announce that and the shuffling in the points' score. Constraints and restraints can be applied internally in the department through directives which normally are not part of the public record.

Next year the flow of immigrants will be at least halved and the bets are that it will be the whitest immigration since the early 1960s. A miracle may happen next year. A new law may be presented in Parliament and passed. It is likely to be irrelevant to most would-be immigrants.

Why irrelevant? As Otto Lang once complained: There is no effective way to control the immigration bureaucracy. Where immigration is concerned, study forces, Green Papers, White Papers and even laws are more political gestures than anything else. Immigration is mainly controlled in the field by jaundiced junior officials who get their directives from prejudiced (a nicer world would be "realistic") senior bureaucrats.

GOTLIEB
. . . green papers

While the politicians affirm that immigrants from Africa and Asia and the West Indies are as welcome as those from Western Europe, all other factors being equal, field operations reflect the reality. The offices in Western Europe are well-staffed and encouraged to recruit and process immigrants quickly. Active recruitment campaigns do not exist in non-white countries. A single immigration officer may be expected to process hundreds of thousands of applications annually. His office may be located thousands of miles from the areas he is serving, thus ensuring that only the elite of would-be immigrants can afford the necessary trip.

Public expectation has been roused by Mr. Andras' press conferences on immigration and by the recent flurry of alleged leaks and counter-leaks on the Green Paper. When a leak situation like this develops, it is a sign that there's a storm up above. The storm is caused by conflict between opposing political and bureaucratic factions. The recent leaks look like bureaucratic initiative, not political.

When the green paper comes and then when the draft immigration act reaches Parliament, Opposition members should remember that the act will not be directly connected with our immigration policy as it is practised. Instead of centring parliamentary debate on the empty clauses of a largely irrelevant bill they should investigate thoroughly the bureaucratic practices which really determine who can or cannot come to this country.

Sugar Daddy's Crocodile

RUSSELL BAKER

Life is sweet these days in the sugar business. Prices have gone up 300 per cent in the past year and profits are rising apace.

Net income for Amstar, formerly the American Sugar Company, is up 250 per cent, Great Western United, the biggest beet-sugar refiner, is up 1,120 per cent in net income, and another boost in sugar prices is due at your supermarket this week.

It is a thrilling success story at a time when the general economy is not only stale, flat and unprofitable, but also in rotten shape, and so, in response to the public outcry for less gloomy news and more roses, I sought to interview the man behind the miracle.

He is, of course, The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States.

"You may have an audience in a few moments along with this gentleman right here," his secretary said.

▣

"I want a private audience," said the other pilgrim.

"The Big Sugar Daddy is too busy to grant private audiences," the secretary explained. "You are lucky he can see you at all, considering the huge backlog of price increases he has to complete."

"Do you know who I am?" asked the gentleman.

"Of course," the secretary said. "You are The Oil King of the Western World. Now behave yourself or we'll price the icing right off your cake."

"The Oil King himself!" I marvelled. "Waiting on The Big Sugar Daddy! And you the only other man in America who is raking in exorbitant profits while all around you are losing theirs."

"Button your lip," said the King, "or I'll squeeze you for another 2 cents a gallon."

"Gentlemen. The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States!" cried the secretary. We stood up.

"Be seated," he said, and wept.

"Those are crocodile tears," whispered the oil king.

"How do you know?"

"Because he's stolen my crocodile."

"Your crocodile?"

"Of course. In big business you've got to have a crocodile to supply you with crocodile tears to weep every time you raise prices to ever more fantastic levels. Those tears mean he's going to raise sugar prices again."

"I have only one announcement to make before going to questions," wept The Big Sugar Daddy.

"I regret that intolerable economic hardship compels me to increase the price of sugar by 4 cents effective as of this instant. I will now take a respectful question or two."

"Mr. Daddy," I cried.

"Call me Your Sweetness," he sobbed.

"Will you tell me, Your Sweetness, the secret which has enabled you to turn fantastic profits while almost everybody else is losing theirs?"

He was convulsed in tears. "Oh no," he managed at last. "Not fantastic profits, my lad. The figures may look startling to the uninformed, but when you consider the depressed profits base of previous years when your poor old Sugar Daddy was making nothing at all — nothing at all —"

He was weeping so intensely he could not continue for a minute or two, and when he did it was only incoherent blubbering. "All those years driving a '51 Hudson," he wept. "Seeing the children fade and fail before my eyes while I scrimped and struggled to supply America with the sweetest soda pop this side of heaven —"

"I want my crocodile," yelled The Oil King.

His Sweetness dried his eyes and stared at The Oil King as one very, very rich man to another; that is, without tears of bogus piety.

▣

"I need that crocodile," said The Oil King. "The way the price of sugar is going up, I'm going to have more of those wonderful increased costs which regretably always compel me to raise the price of oil, and I'm going to need plenty of crocodile tears to give the public an eyewash when the fantastic new profits are reported."

"Leave us not discuss business in public," said His Sweetness, urging me to leave. I declined, but reconsidered when he told me that he had ways of making me drink coffee without sugar.

The Oil King was less subtle. "Give the crocodile a taste of him," he suggested.

"Oh, no," His Sweetness was saying as I fled. "Why let the crocodile have what is rightfully ours?"

This is the Canadian vodka that went to Russia

In the interests of sorting out the confusion, may we point out there is only one vodka that's imported from Russia. Despite the many Russian-sounding names—Smirnoff or Bolshoi or Nikolai or Rimski—all these are Canadian vodkas. And so is ours, but then we've never felt you needed a Russian-sounding name to make a great vodka.

Report Seeks Road Closures

Preventative road closures during periods of high avalanche hazard and relocation of two highways are the main recommendations in a special avalanche task force report prepared for the department of highways.

Released today by highways minister Graham Lea, the recommendations also include appointments of avalanche co-ordinators in Victoria, Terrace, Kootenay Pass and Hope.

Triggered by the avalanche last January which killed seven persons at the North Route Cafe west of Terrace, the force was chaired by regional highway engineer D. D. Godfrey.

Use of artillery for avalanche control on Highway 16 between Terrace and Tyee and immediate review of relocation proposals for Highway 16 between Kasiks and Telegraph Point were also recommended.

"Where highways already exist, relocation of certain sections is often the most beneficial way of reducing the avalanche problem," the report said.

Preventative road closures should be considered in Cheakamus Canyon (Highway 97), Bear Pass (Highway 37) east of the summit, Allison Pass (Highway 3) at the Sumallo avalanche site, Three Valley (Highway 1), Pine Pass (Highway 97) and Kootenay Pass east of the summit (Highway 3).

Major areas which deserve first consideration for relocation are Bear Pass and Pine Pass.

Explosives used to spark small avalanches after traffic has been stopped can reduce the amount of snow being deposited on highways.

Advantages of the method, the report said, include its all-weather capability and accuracy.

Task force recommendations are aimed primarily at the immediate measures that should be undertaken by the department and urge that investigation of avalanche problems be ongoing.

The force recommended establishment of an Avalanche Directory to collect all relevant maps and information as permanent records.

"Slide area" highway signs, the report said, "are not perceived with sufficient impact by the motorist."

Recommended would be large, reflectorized signs saying :'Avalanche area. Do not stop."

Avalanche schools for regional and district officials with the department, safety measures for all maintenance crews and public information progrsm are also recommended.

Liberals Announce Plans To Build $12M Vote Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — The national Liberal party announced plans Thursday for raising more than $3 million a year over the next four years by inviting Canadians to make tax deductible contributions to the party.

The Liberals plan a major drive to fill party bank accounts across the country with about $11 million by the time the next general election is called, probably in 1978.

The amount is about the maximum the Liberals will be allowed to spend, both nationally and in each of the 264 ridings, under new election expenses legislation which came into force in August.

Member of Parliament John Reid and Senator Gildas Molgat of Manitoba, the national party president, told a news conference Thursday the idea is to take "full legal advantage" of the legislation to build up party reserves before the next election is called.

Hard Sell Starts On New Contract For Coal Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Arnold Miller is trying to sell his union's 120,000 striking coal miners on the proposed new contract he spent nine weeks hammering out with the United States coal industry.

Miller began presenting the 175-page document to the UMW's 38-member bargaining council of executive board members and regional officers Thursday night. The United Mine Workers (UMW) council must approve the settlement before it can be presented to the union's rank-and-file, who since Tuesday have struck mines which produce 70 per cent of the coal in the U.S.

Miller and aides have been explaining the contract line by line to the council.

The UMW president has predicted that the package, which includes sizeable wage and benefit increases, would be ratified by the membership, possibly in time to end the walkout within two weeks.

But there have been indications from the coal fields that some miners are less than enthusiastic over the package.

In southern West Virginia, where some union members have been traditionally skeptical of union leadership, miners have criticized the absence in the proposed contract of a right to strike over local issues.

They say this right is important to avoid federal court orders that were issued against local walkouts under the old contract. Organizers of a petition drive supporting a right-to-strike clause claim they have more than 3,000 signatures.

For the contract to take effect, it must be ratified by a majority of the UMW membership. It is the first time in at least half a century that miners have had the right to vote on a new contract proposal.

Most criticism of the tentative settlement has been directed at non-economic issues. The economic section of the proposal calls for 15-per-cent salary increases over the three-year contract period, plus additional cost-of-living raises. Miners now make between $42 and $50 a day.

TAP WATER DANGERS SEEN

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Nader, U.S. consumer advocate, predicted Thursday that the dangers of drinking water from the kitchen tap will become the major issue in North America within 10 years.

Speaking to a meeting of the science teachers' association of Ontario, Nader said that most water treatment systems are antiquated and usually designed for bacteria control.

Nader said heavy metals, such as arsenic from pesticides, lead and cadmium, can get through the systems and the interaction of chlorine with industrial contaminants has become "very suspect" as a cause of cancer.

POOL BOMBS OUT

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation has been promised into charges that United States Air Force generals are operating a six-figure betting pool on the outcome of the current Strategic Air Command intramural bombing competition.

Democratic representative Les Aspin of Wisconsin says he has received complaints "from men who have been pressured by their commanders to contribute to the pool, which is bet on the crews."

The bombing competition involves all bomber, tanker and other SAC units in a two-week series of simulated combat to test unit proficiency.

An Aspin aide said that under the arrangement, SAC personnel would "buy shares in their crew, like a football pool."

An air force spokesman said he would look into the allegation.

Gunman Shoots Four

NEW YORK (AP) — A lone man drove a car up to a group of four men chatting on a sidewalk in the Queens area here late at night and let loose rifle blasts that killed one and injured the other three, one critically. Police said they had no immediate explanation for the shootings, but are investigating the possibility that drugs might be involved.

Be Patriotic . . . Buy a New Car!

DETROIT (UPI) — Plummeting new car sales and sagging profits have touched off yet another round of layoffs in the reeling auto industry.

The industry's plight has led Michigan Gov. William Milliken to call on consumers to start buying cars again.

But as Milliken issued the call, the four largest automakers in the U.S. reported a more than 38 per cent drop in new car sales for the first 10 days of November.

General Motors Corp. also said it would close three small car assembly plants at Van Nuys, Calif., Willow Run, Mich., and Tarrytown, N.Y., for a week starting Monday, temporarily idling 7,175 blue collar workers and bringing to 76,450 the number of auto workers idled by production cutbacks.

American Motors Corp. — the smallest of the nation's automakers — issued its report for the 1974 financial year and said profits fell $17 million, or 71 cents a share, from the previous year despite record sales of $2 billion.

GM, Ford Motor Co., and AMC said they sold 136,921 new cars during the Nov. 1-10 period, a drop of 38.4 per cent from the 250,178 sold during the same period of 1973.

The 10-day sales report followed an October sales performance that showed sales down 27 per cent, the poorest new model start in a decade.

GM alone has 35,300 workers now idled temporarily or indefinitely and has cut back from two shifts to one at small car assembly lines in Van Nuys, Tarrytown, and Leeds, Mo.

Chrysler had 21,400 idle and Ford has another 11,575.

AMC issued its 1974 financial statement just two days before it officially introduces its 1975 models, which will show a price increase averaging $414.

DSS in B.C.

The Department of Supply and Services is expanding its Pacific Regional Supply operations by opening a Supply Centre in Richmond, B.C.

The new building in Richmond, B.C., opens formally on November 15, 1974. About 45 people will be employed at the new site, and another 50 in the purchasing office in Victoria and printing plants in both cities. With about 50 thousand square feet of office and warehouse space in Richmond, the Department of Supply and Services will provide a full range of supply support to federal government departments and agencies in British Columbia. This includes, for the first time, delivery of a variety of catalogued items directly from stocks in the new warehouse.

In the coming year, DSS will be spending nearly $64 million in British Columbia. About $37 million worth of goods and services will be purchased directly by our purchasing offices in Richmond and Victoria.

If you want to do business with DSS in the Pacific Region, get in touch with our Director of Supply, D. G. Stewart, in Richmond, B.C.

MOSCOW'S APARTMENT-SWAPPERS

It's a Red Black Market

By HEDRICK SMITH

MOSCOW (NYT) — Just off Prospekt Mira in one of the oldest sections of Moscow, people gather on gray fall afternoons near the Rzhevsky bathhouse, milling around for hours like pickets outside a factory on strike.

On Sundays, hundreds of people, hands thrust into their pockets and scarves wound tightly against the cold, carry placards around their necks or hand-scrawled signs pinned to their sturdy cloth coats.

Occasionally, they pause to converse quietly in twos and threes and then walk on.

But these are not Soviet strikers, they are walking want ads: Muscovites advertising apartments for exchange, eager to improve their living quarters.

A modish young couple offers an attractive "split" — the exchange of a four-room apartment, large by Soviet standards, for two smaller ones because the newlyweds want to escape living with in-laws and are eager for a place of their own.

An elderly lady tries to coax a man in a dark fedora to take single rooms in two different communal apartments in return for his separate one-room flat with kitchen, bath and phone.

At the far end of the lane, students and offers swarm around a few landlords offering a room, a bed, or a small apartment for rent. Some students turn up their noses at a two-room unit in an old building with gas heat but no indoor plumbing, but a middle-aged woman and a married couple, less fussy, compete for it.

In minutes, the apartment is gone for fifty rubles ($66.50) monthly, paid a year in advance.

The housing exchange and 29 other exchanges in Moscow plus many more in cities across this land of 250 million people, are reminders that despite tremendous gains in housing construction in recent years, adequate accommodation remains a central and acute problem for millions of Soviet citizens, far more essential than the fuss of a tiny minority over getting a car.

Paradoxically, housing is a realm of both triumph and of tragedy for the Soviet leadership.

The achievements have been staggering. Since 1956, roughly 42 million new units of housing have been built by the state, private and cooperative builders — more than any other country of the world, according to Henry Morton, a housing expert at Queens College in New York.

In the 1971-75 five-year plan, Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov said last year, the state is allocating 35 billion rubles ($48 billion) for housing construction.

This year alone, he forecast, more than 11,000,000 people will improve their quarters. More than half are supposed to get new dwellings.

The visible impact of the Soviet Housing program is striking to foreigners returning after a decade of absence.

They are impressed by the rows of prefabricated 9-storey, 11-storey and 14-storey apartment houses dominating the outskirts of Moscow and other Soviet cities.

Almost anywhere the traveller goes, he encounters scholars, engineers and workmen boasting of new apartments, however modest by Western standards, that have provided the key to a new standard of living for their families — a break from the cramped conditions of the late 1950s or early 1960s when they were jammed into communal flats, sharing kitchen, bath and toilet with other families.

By Soviet accounts, something over 25 per cent of urban dwellers still live in communal apartments and some Western scholars suspect that a third or more of this country's city dwellers still live in communality.

But the problem is more human than statistical, as a number of Soviet writers have shown.

Playwrights have portrayed families crumbling into divorce — and still forced to live in the same room after divorce — for lack of alternative housing, or have shown frustrated young people unable to marry because they cannot get an apartment and their parents have no room to spare.

Individuals tell of cases of people marrying to get better apartments or to be registered as residents in a favored city like Moscow. One couple from out of town divorced, married two other persons who lived in Moscow, later divorced them and remarried once they had obtained their Moscow housing — a process that took several years, a Moscow intellectual reported.

HE BELLIED-UP TO WRONG BAR

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — "Gimme a beer," the man told the fellow at the bar.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said James Manspeaker.

"Gimme a beer," the man repeated, profering a quarter and two nickels.

"Sir, this is the U.S. district court clerk's office," said Manspeaker, the court's chief clerk.

"Oh," the man said as he discovered that he had walked up to the Bar of Justice instead of the bar at a tavern across the street.

General Rebuked For Slur

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has personally rebuked his top military officer, Gen. George Brown, for remarks about U.S. jews but decided not to fire him.

"I don't think he should be fired for that one mistake," Ford said Thursday.

Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, earlier told students that another Arab oil embargo might cause Americans to rebel against "Jewish influence in this country."

GRADE-SCHOOL FRENCH CLASSES?

Saanich school board is planning to introduce conversational French to its elementary students, and has asked parents if they favor the move.

The board is conducting an opinion survey of parents of elementary students to see if they favor introduction of French into Grade 7 classes next year.

Plan is to start at the Grade 7 level, then expand the program to Grade 6 the next year and so on until all elementary pupils are receiving instruction.

The program would be about 20 minutes of conversational French a day.

The board hopes to get a federal grant to offset 50 per cent of the cost of the program.

Greater Victoria school board has already received such a grant, for $31,120 this year, to help finance its French program.

The Victoria board plans to apply again for the grant, which helps pay the salary of French consultant Anita Dube and the cost of the board's French immersion and bilingual programs.

The board this year is offering French immersion and bilingual classes at the kindergarten and Grade 1 levels, and next year wants to expand to offer Grade 2 classes.

BLEACHED PULP SUPERINTENDENT
UNBLEACHED PULP SUPERINTENDENT

A large Eastern Canadian kraft mill has immediate openings for the above positions.

The Bleached Pulp Superintendent will be fully responsible for all aspects of bleaching, screening, cleaning and chemical preparation.

The Unbleached Pulp Superintendent will be fully responsible for all aspects of cooking, causticizing, lime kiln and washing.

Both positions require self starters who require a challenge and have the ability to work under minimum supervisions. Opportunities for development are excellent.

Salary is commensurate with experience.

Interest Rates Drop

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Interest rates are beginning to fall for deposit income in Victoria, both for short and long-term certificates.

The 89-day deposit rate peaked out at 10.75 per cent and now has settled back to 10.5 per cent across the city.

The common bank rate is 10.5 per cent paid on 89-day deposits, 9.75 per cent on deposits from 90 to 180 days and for 9.25 per cent on deposits from 181 days to two years.

Over two years, a rate of 9 per cent now is general.

Meanwhile, some trust companies have reduced their deposit rate offerings sharply in line with the trend.

Hamish Manson, manager of the Victoria branch of Canada Permanent Trust Co. Ltd., said his firm has reduced the interest rate paid on five-year deposit certificates to 10.25 per cent, down .5 per cent.

Four-year certificates are going out at 10 per cent, down .25 per cent.

Three-year rates have been reduced .5 per cent to 9.75 per cent.

One and two-year terms are holding at 9.5 per cent.

D. K. Travers, manager of the main Victoria branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said the interest rate reductions could be expected to continue.

He said interest rates have been falling at the rate of .25 per cent each week for the past six weeks in the United States and the effects were spilling over into the Canadian money market.

"We are bound to see a further reduction here in the near future."

He said the fact Canada Savings Bonds were taken off sale quickly because of excessive demand was evidence that an interest rate of 9.75 per cent was considered a big bargain by investors.

Canada Savings Bonds came off the market at the close of business today, which is 6 p.m. for many Victoria banks.

There has not yet been a reduction in the interest rates charged customers of banks, trust companies and credit unions for various forms of loans. These rates are expected to edge downward after a time lag, although they are not expected to fall far.

Consumer loans are going out at 12 per cent to 15 per cent, with Chargex and other similar small loans being at the 18 per cent rate.

Mortgages are going out at 12 per cent to 12.5 per cent with very little action.

Second mortgage rates range from 14 per cent to 18 per cent.

Interest rates have moved downward in the United States in response to indications of a gathering recession. Increased unemployment and less production are finally having a moderating effect on inflation.

Interest rates and the Canadian inflation rate — still 12 per cent — will have to decline further before action can be taken to stimulate the economy, with the possible exception of the housing sector, where early government action is anticipated.

CANCEL TO PAY DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Cellulose Co., Ltd. has announced it will commence paying a regular quarterly dividend with an initial payment of five cents a share on Dec. 16.

Ronald Gross, president and chief executive officers, said the directors intend to periodically review the quarterly dividend rate.

"The dividend policy represents the board's belief that the company has now attained adequate financial strength to permit commencement of dividends, and their confidence that potential long-term earnings will be sufficient to provide for a return for shareholders as well as the funds for a necessary re-investment in the company's operations," Gross said.

CanCel recently reported nine month earnings of $20.2 million or $1.66 a share before an extraordinary credit relating to an income tax reduction on applications of prior years' losses.

The first quarterly dividend will be paid to shareholders of record on Nov. 27.

ACROSS RIVER FROM DETROIT GOLD SELLS LIKE HOT CAKES

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — The store Larry Thoman runs in this city across the river from Detroit sells something no U.S. store can offer and business is booming.

Thoman, 34, a former bank manaer, accepts no credit cards or personal checks for his wares — strictly cash.

He operates the Stirling Gold and Silver Trading Corp. and sells gold bullion over the counter.

"Let's see," he says, "today a 20-ounce bar of gold will run $3,967. A one-ounce wafer, our best-seller, will run you $211.75."

On the London Gold Market Wednesday, gold hit a new record of $185.25 an ounce.

One stockbroker in Detroit Thursday said Americans are able to buy gold coins or stock in gold mining firms but bullion cannot be legally purchased domestically until Jan. 2.

The firm Thomah works for, owned by George Stirling, bought large quantities of gold bullion in 1970 and 1971 when prices were a fraction of what they are today.

In January 1972, gold was selling at $47 an ounce, a year later at $65 and by last January it had gone up to $128 an ounce.

Dealers like Thoman says the phenomenonal rise is due to record inflation rates and general gloom in the global economy.

One reason offered for rushing to the Windsor firm was given by a gold buyer who reflected consumer fears of inflation by saying: "I want to leave something to my children that will still be of value."

"I was going to leave them cash, but who knows what that will be worth."

Another customer said, "It sure beats the hell out of trying to make money on the stock exchange."

Others said they thought the bullion would make a nice Christmas present.

As for the future, Thoman says the price of gold bullion will never go down, but adds, "although since gold is just a commodity it's going to disappear one day."

Final Run Taken At May 6 Budget

TORONTO (CP) — With reading of a new federal budget only days away, delegates to a Canadian Tax Foundation conference here are taking a final run at last May's budget.

E. P. Aboussafy, assistant treasurer of Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., Calgary, said this week the May 6 federal budget proposals have been "a complete disaster" for the Canadian oil industry.

Aboussafy said the budget proposals have created uncertainty in the petroleum industry which will not disappear easily.

"The oil industry can only continue to explore in Canada if it is allowed a fair return on its investment, competitive with other countries and free of the continued harassment experienced over the past year," he said.

Federal-provincial disagreements on royalties and tax payments must be resolved "without destroying the industry."

Defence Costs Split Vote

The B.C. Law Reform Commission has recommended that persons prosecuted and then acquitted of provincial offences be entitled to compensation for the costs of their defence.

A lengthy commission report tabled in the legislature Thursday said courts should be given discretion to award costs to persons who have successfully fought charges under provincial laws.

The majority view was opposed, however, by one of the four commission members who argued that the discretion given judges in determining costs would amount to a lengthy judicial inquiry which could be more complex than the trial itself.

Discretion in compensation would involve "difficult and senstive determinations of guilt and innocence," according to commissioner Peter Fraser, and he recommended instead expansion of legal aid to prevent people paying legal fees unfairly.

The majority view was signed by commission chairman Ronald Bray, Paul Fraser and Allen Zysblat.

It recommended that provisions of the Summary Convictions Act relating costs be repealed and new legislation enacted to cover costs arising out of prosecutions for provincial offences.

Determination of the amount of compensation awarded would depend on a long list of factors, said the commission, including: whether the prosecution acted in good faith, whether investigation into the offence was conducted in a reasonable manner, whether the charge was dismissed because the court considered the accused "to be innocent in fact," or whether the charge was dismissed on a technical point.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A suspended sentence and two years' probation were given to a 17-year-old youth convicted in provincial court Thursday of burglary, wilful damage and mischief.

Daniel Mark Cochrane, of 773 Hillside, was also ordered to pay restitution of $105 damage.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said police saw Cochrane inside a service station at 225 Menzies, July 22 at 3:45 a.m.

He left the premises through a broken window but was caught by police 20 feet away. Cochrane told police he had been looking for money.

The charge of mischief was laid after a lamp standard at Lord Simcoe Apartments, 440 Simcoe, was damaged July 18 and the charge of wilful damage involved a smashed screen door of a Cadillac Avenue residence.

A 22-year-old man who told police he stole a steak because he was hungry received little sympathy after court was told he was employed as a cook's helper.

Steven Orcherton, of 230 Oswego, pleaded guilty to the offence, which occurred Tuesday at a grocery store.

Orcherton was apprehended after concealing the steak, worth $3.45, under his shirt and jacket.

"It seems curious a cook's helper would be hungry," Judge William Ostler said.

"If you're employed there's no excuse," he added.

Five persons were sentenced for impaired driving.

Leland Alan Black, 45, of 1240 Oakmount, received a 16-day jail sentence, six months' probation and an eight-month driving ban. He was also fined $200 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Albert John Pelkey, 26, of the East Saanich Reserve, was given a 20-day jail term to serve on weekends, put on probation for six months and banned from driving for eight months.

Frank Sheridan Street, 34, of 1866 San Lorenzo, was fined $350, banned for 40 days and put on six months' probation.

George Edmond Herve Nault, 35, of 6660 Sooke, was fined $375, banned for three months and put on probation for six months.

Wayne Richard Desjardins, 23, of 3159 Shelbourne, was fined $325.

Teacher Salary Talks Deadline Now Nov. 29

Approval in principle was given Thursday to interim legislation extending teacher salary negotiation deadlines from today to Nov. 29 with only the Socreds voting against the bill.

Both Conservative and Liberal party members supported the government on the bill, which provides that no more than one arbitrator be appointed for each two school districts.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said the bill was the only solution to a bargaining deadlock.

"I couldn't risk a breakdown in arbitration procedures, which would cause a breakdown in the province's education system," she said opening debate on the bill's second reading.

"It's an interim measure and we regret we have had to bring it in, in view of a special committee which in the next few months may produce legislation on the matter."

The minister said the two-week extension "is the best for all, not just the wishes of one group. The situation had become almost a crisis situation with no answers coming from the trustees or teachers.

The bargaining deadlock occurred this fall when trustees insisted on province-wide bargaining of teacher contracts, while teachers pressed for continuation of bargaining locally in the 68 districts.

Dailly said she "completely rejected" opposition charges that she is interfering with collective bargaining procedure and said she sees the bill as a means of bringing both sides together.

She said she did not believe it had a negative effect, and added the bill does not mean the government is giving in to teacher demands.

"Bungling, premature interference," was Socred MLA Jim Chabot's view of the bill, shouted across the floor when the vote of 36 to 11 was recorded.

His party's spokesman, Harvey Schroeder, MLA for Chilliwack, criticized Dailly for "intervention in the bargaining process." He said the Public Schools Act provides for the impasse being experienced:

"The law is explicit on the process of bargaining. Should arbitration breakdown, the Act says the previous contract carries forward to the next year and becomes the new contract."

Schroeder admitted, however, there was a "certain vagueness" in that section, but he argued the education minister should "let the law take its course — intervention is unnecessary."

Gordon Gibson (Liberal—North Vancouver-Capilano) supported the bill, saying "I believe that what this bill does is give existing law a possibility of working, provides some arbitration process and gives the districts more time to negotiate."

He suggested the number of arbitrators provided should be amended because of a "serious question of manpower. There should be some flexibility."

Tory leader Scott Wallace supported the bill but said the method used by Dailly "wittingly or unwittingly leads to the conc[illegible] the minister is leaning t[illegible]al bargaining."

Wallace also took the opportunity to slam the teachers for taking a "hypocritical attitude" in breaking their contracts and taking strike action.

He said he feared the government was once again bringing in "gun-to-the-head legislation" with the threat of a walkout by teachers.

Assessment Law Closer

Tax legislation, freezing property assessments at the 1974 level was approved in principle Thursday.

Premier Dave Barrett agreed the legislation would continue for at least one year "some anomalies" but said the government had been advised to "slow down and cool it" by the Union of B.C. Municipalities and even the press.

"We needed more study" before switching to assessments at 100 per cent of real property value, said Barrett. "Let them (opposition members) criticize with the full knowledge that the basis of the problem is one which we inherited.

"We thought we would have been able to clear up the (assessment) mess, but we were an enthusiastic new government that went charging ahead, when you can't find a simple way to resolve it overnight."

The premier said he hoped MLAs weren't allowing political party preferences to stand in the way of their responsibility to tell tax payers the exemptions that have been provided by the government.

Noting that anyone who wants to build a home on vacant land can get a tax credit, eliminating up to 90 per cent of taxes, he chided "but I know the MLAs wouldn't omit that and then blame the government."

Legislation received a vote of 31 to 16 in favor of granting second reading. The bill allows B.C. Assessment Authority to produce assessment rolls at 1974 values and delays legislation passed last spring in introducing 100 per cent assessment of all properties in B.C.

The bill also allows Percy Wright the assessment commissioner, to reduce assessments on properties where it can be shown disparities exist.

Later in the afternoon the premier brought in amendments to the act which he said would plug a wording loophole brought to light by Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips.

Barrett said he did not agree the loophole existed but decided to act on Phillips' representations anyway.

According to Vancouver council, the wording of one section of the bill would have allowed Marathon Realty in Vancouver to avoid paying increased taxes this year.

Kidnap Suspect Held

INNSBRUCK, Austria (Reuter) — Italian police have arrested an Italian suspected of plotting to kidnap wealthy Swiss orchestral conductor Paul Sacher. The man, sought by Austrian and Swiss police since he fled from a police check near here at the end of last month, was arrested by Italian police Monday near the Italian border with Austria.

FIRST QUERY: MINISTER MUM

B.C.'s newest cabinet minister was asked his first question in the house Thursday and rose to the occasion by declining to answer.

Ed Smith (SC — North Peace River) questioned Alf Nunweiler, the minister without portfolio responsible for northern affairs, about an article written in the NDP publication the "Democrat."

Nunweiler was quoted there as saying the first important thing he had done in his new position was hire "a first-rate executive assistant, Steve Wood, a young Prince George lawyer who was born and raised in the North."

The minister described Wood as "bright, a hard worker and an active Party member."

Smith asked which qualification was considered the most important to get the job and his questions received much hooting and laughter but no answer.

The Socred then asked how many executive assistants Nunweiler has hired in total and was told the question would be "taken as notice," meaning Nunweiler will answer it when and if he pleases.

Rent Bill $280,514

The new Rentalsman's office has cost B.C. $280,514 since its inception under legislation passed last spring.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald released the figure for costs up until Oct. 31, in response to a written question in the legislature.

Rentalsman Barrie Clark was appointed early in the summer to head the office established to deal with disputes between landlords and tenants but the office did not begin official operations until Oct. 1.

Macdonald also revealed that a $929,706 budget has been established for funding half-way homes run by private agencies for ex-convicts and persons currently under sentence.

Relax in warm comfort.

Shell has a plan to protect you if your furnace breaks down.
The Comprehensive Protection Plan–just $29.95 for Shell Home Comfort customers

If your furnace breaks down this winter, you could catch more than a cold. For example, you could be billed for $52 to replace a furnace blower—and that doesn't even include labour. Or let's say the burner needs repairs. On an hourly basis, the labour might come to $20—more, if it's a serious problem.

On the other hand, you can become a Shell Home Comfort customer and enjoy the benefits of our Comprehensive Protection Plan for only $29.95 annually.

Compare the cost of Shell's Comprehensive Protection Plan. The Shell Comprehensive Protection Plan covers parts, parts installation, 24-hour emergency burner service, plus regular furnace conditioning. And it costs just $29.95 annually. Compare that with what you're paying now. Keeping in mind that our plan includes parts and installation.

This low cost plan is just one more way Shell provides you with Home Comfort service at the lowest possible cost. Find out about the many other services and benefits we offer. Fill-in, clip and mail the coupon today or phone the Shell Home Comfort Branch shown in the coupon.

Here's what you get for just $29.95

The Shell Comprehensive Protection Plan covers emergency burner service, regular furnace conditioning and the cost of the following parts, including installation charges:

- Fan control
- Limit control for warm air furnace
- Transformer
- Primary control

LEA TO CHECK ROAD ABUSES

Highways Minister Graham Lea has accepted the challenge of a Surrey bus driver to take a personal look at highway driving abuses by recreational vehicle owners.

Lea said he would spend one day before Christmas travelling a Greyhound route with driver Roy Bell. Bell had complained in a letter to Lea that motorists who buy lengthy travel trailers need special licensing and training.

Bell said campers are placed on many trucks that are too small and trailers are pulled by vehicles that are underpowered and lack proper brakes. He also said the total length of recreational units often up to 35 feet is the same as commercial truck units for which special driver training is required.

"Maybe we should be looking at giving people who drive recreational trucks and trailers some form of stiffer driving procedures before we allow them on the road," Lea said. "And some of these units should perhaps have air brakes."

Two Rush Bills Aid Rural Voters

Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owen was called to the legislature Thursday to give royal assent to two bills allowing rural voters, not enumerated in the fall the change to vote in regional and school board elections.

The bills were hurried through legislative process and became law a day after they were introduced, in preparation for most local elections Saturday.

House leader Eileen Dailly promised she and Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer will "watch closely" for complications in cases where elections or advance polls have already been held.

Liberal Leader David Anderson advised the "best thing" the government could do would be to "forget the legislation. It's back-up legislation that will not work and there are serious and practical problems," he said.

Mrs. Dailly said opposition concerns were "rather iffy".

Lorimer has indicated that all returning officers have been directed to act as if the legislation had already been passed and all eligible rural voters are entitled to vote by a written declaration.

The two bills are amendments to the Municipal Act and the Public Schools Act.

Amendments to the Municipal Act allow only voters in regional districts who have not been enumerated to make a declaration and vote on election day. Voters in municipalities which were covered by a full enumeration canvas are not included. The same holds true for voters in school board elections.

Gov't Backs Law Drafting

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Thursday the B.C. government will co-operate with the Canadian Bar Association to establish a non-political foundation for legislative drafting.

For the foundation to be non-political, said Macdonald, the initiative for the proposal must come entirely from the bar.

But B.C. bar association president Peter Manson has been told the government will co-operate with the bar "in every respect," said Macdonald.

Manson originally suggested that the legal profession take the initiative to encourage labor and industry to join with the government in establishing a foundation for legislative drafting of bills.

The foundation would assess the quality of legislation, suggest improvement in drafting technique and encourage research and education in drafting.

Ottawa Awards Bridge Contracts

OTTAWA (CP) — Two contracts valued at $720,196 have been awarded for construction of the Eagle River bridge in the Yukon Territory, the supply and services department announced Thursday.

A $576,980 contract was awarded to bridge and Tank Co. of Canada Ltd. of Hamilton and a $143,216 contract was awarded to Brittain Steel Fabricators Ltd. of New Westminster.

LAST APPEAL

B.C. landlords made a final appeal Thursday to the NDP caucus to change its mind on rent controls.

The Rental Housing Council of B.C. met with the caucus members and asked them to begin a step-by-step withdrawal of rent controls "as an incentive for new construction and the preservation and improvement of the existing stock of rental housing."

They argued that the 10.6 per cent rent increase limit set out in new amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act should be subject to appeals.

If a tenant is faced with a higher rent increase, they said, he should appeal to the government's rent review authority and the landlord be required to justify the higher increase.

At the same time, tenants were appealing to the caucus to establish tighter rent controls and to allow tenants the right to bargain collectively with landlords on questions of rent and living conditions.

'Smear' Charges On Land Holdings

A Socred MLA has charged Resources Minister Bob Williams with a "glaring and blatant conflict of interest" in sharing a land holding with one of his department officials.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River) said Williams' public disclosure, filed in September, reveals that the minister's executive assistant, Bill Boutillier, holds second mortgage on a property owned jointly by Williams, Boutillier and Williams' mother.

Phillips raised the matter during question period in the House Thursday and asked whether the assistant could derive favors from the minister because of the joint holding.

Cabinet members shouted "smear, smear" and challenged Phillips to make an accusation.

Outside the House, Williams said he had held the property with Boutillier for several years but he was not sure how long his assistant had held the second mortgage on the property.

Williams denied emphatically that any conflict of interest exists because of the joint ownership and charged it was "typical" of the opposition to deal with such "irrelevant issues."

The property is in the Kitsilano area of Vancouver and is the site of an apartment building.

Crash Kills 20

LAGOS (Reuter) — About 200 persons were killed and others injured when two trains collided head-on near the Dahomey capital of Cotonou last week, Dahomean embassy sources said here Friday.

Elevator Firms Get Binding Pact

A binding collective agreement on five elevator construction companies and their employees was approved in principle by the legislature Thursday.

Labor Minister Bill King described the legislation as an "innocuous little bill" designed to settle the two-year dispute.

The companies involved, Armon Elevator Canada Ltd., Montgomery Elevator Co. Ltd., Otis Elevator Co. Ltd., Westinghouse Canada Co. Ltd., and Turnbull Co. Ltd., refused to accept terms of an industrial inquiry commission ruling approved by members of the International Union of Elevators' Constructors, Local 82.

Opposition members criticized the bill for "raising the whole issue of government attitude on labor relations."

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) criticized the government for presenting legislation leading to the greatest disruption of labor relations the province has ever seen.

"My objection," he said, "is the abuse of the legislative process by using our extreme authority to resolve this dispute."

Conservative Leader Scott Wallace said the government was making a mockery of its basic position that supports collective bargaining.

Although he supported the legislation, Wallace "wondered if the next episode brought to house) would be strike of the ferry officers who have threatened to cease working Monday.

"The irony for me is I've got to support this bill because I don't believe in the unmitigated power to strike."

Legislation forces the four elevator companies to belong to the Construction Labor Relations Association which bargains for a number of construction companies in the province.

Softer Drug Laws Seen Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's chief drug abuse spokesman, Dr. Robert L. DuPont, is expected to call for de-criminalization of private use of marijuana in a speech tonight, administration sources said.

DuPont's views in a speech to the annual convention of NORML — the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws — would, if adopted, represent a shift in administration policy, which has opposed eliminating criminal penalties for possession of small amounts of the drug.

When the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse recommended removing criminal sanctions for personal use of marijuana in 1972, President Nixon disavowed the report.

Although possession of marijuana is still a crime, the focus of recent federal law enforcement activity has been shifted to major traffickers.

In informal remarks last Tuesday, Attorney General William B. Sambee said that he favors an easing of marijuana laws. A spokesman for Dr. DuPont, who heads the White House Special Action Office on drug abuse prevention, said DuPont's remarks are being cleared with higher officials.

Keep on Buying Ford Assures U.S.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — President Ford has assured Americans they need not postpone purchases to help fight inflation and that he will not seek wage-and-price controls or higher gasoline taxes.

Fielding wide-ranging questions at a news conference, Ford also said:

—He wants Congress to promptly confirm Nelson Rockefeller as vice president and stressed there are "no conditions I can imagine" that would force him to withdraw Rockefeller's nomination.

—He won't fire Gen. George Brown as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff for his remarks about Jewish influence in the U.S.

—He plans to make his trip to the Far East as scheduled next week.

—Republicans "took a licking" in last week's congressional elections because of past scandals and a slumping economy but that is no reason to change the Republican role as "a middle-of-the-road party."

—While the United States can't force Israel to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization, he said "our plans are aimed at trying to get Israel to negotiate additional settlements" with Egypt and other Arab parties.

Ford held the news conference at a convention of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, after a speech to a convention of real estate agents in Las Vegas where he altered the emphasis of his anti-inflation advice to U.S. consumers.

The president previously had urged consumers to "save more" as one way to help in the battle against inflation, but he told the real estate agents he strongly opposes suggestions that the best way to defeat inflation is to curtail buying.

"Instead of curtailing purchases, I say to consumers: buy wisely, shop sharper," Ford said.

As for wage and price controls, Ford declared anew that he will not ask Congress to enact mandatory or standby controls and that there are "no circumstances I foresee today that would justify" such controls.

When asked whether he had in mind any tax increases other than his proposed five-per-cent surtax, Ford responded "no."

He nixed talk of a possible gasoline tax increase. The talk had been spurred by Interior Secretary Rogers Morton's assertion this week that such a tax boost was under consideration as an alternative.

The president scorned suggestions that the U.S. faces a possible depression. He said his economic proposals and existing safeguards such as unemployment insurance would prevent any depression.

On the Middle East, Ford said in response to a question that "our plans are aimed at trying to get the Israelis to negotiate a settlement or additional settlements with the Egyptians and other Arab nations.

But when asked whether he was suggesting that Israel drop its objections to dealing directly with the Palestine Liberation Organization, Ford said, "I didn't say that. . . . I think we have to let the decision as to who will negotiate . . . be the responsibility of the parties involved.

The CBS television network had planned to broadcast the news conference here. But CBS officials later cancelled the plan because the time length of Ford's appearance was too uncertain, they said.

Jeweller Kidnapped

ZURICH (Reuter) — A gunman kidnapped a Swiss jeweller here and forced him to hand over precious stones worth about $700,000, police reported. The gunman ambushed the jeweller in an underground parking lot and forced him to drive to his office and open a safe containing the jewels. He then gagged and bound his victim and escaped.

AID SET FOR ALASKA

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Federal disaster relief has been approved for Alaska's storm stricken northwest coast, where damages are estimated at $16 million.

More than 200 persons were forced to leave their homes when the severe storm flooded towns and native villages from Hooper Bay to Kotzebue Monday and Tuesday.

No deaths were reported.

President Ford declared the coast a disaster area Thursday and the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration arranged to open an office in Nome Saturday.

William H. Mayer, FDAA regional director, said state estimates indicate the damage to public facilities approaches $9 million and damage to private facilities $7 million.

"All victims of the disaster will be able to apply for every form of aid to which they are entitled at the center," said Mayer, who added that disaster recovery efforts along the coast already had begun.

Bikes Outselling Cars Across U.S.

By The Associated Press

Bicycles are now outselling automobiles in the United States, but unfortunately bike fatalities are moving up also, says the Highway Users Federation.

A recent report by the federation showed that an estimated 15.8 million new bicycles were sold in 1973 compared to 11.4 million new cars for that same year.

Bicycle fatalities for 1973 totalled an estimated 1,150, which seems small compared to an estimated 55,800 fatalities for cars over the same period.

It should be noted, however, that bike fatalities rose 5 per cent over the 1972 figure of 1,100 and that figure jumped a thumping 29 per cent above the 1971 total of 850 deaths.

All this proves that bicycle safety programs are not keeping pace with sales, the federation says. The problem becomes serious when you consider that there is an estimated total of 80 million bikes on the roads of America. (There are 101.5 million cars.) The National Safety Council has estimated that some 40,000 cyclists were injured in 1973. This is far below the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission's estimate of one million injured.

The average age of fatalities is also rising, because of the soaring popularity of bike riding among adults. About half of all new bicycles sold are for adults.

The Highway Users Federation has been keeping an eye on the bike safety scene.

Robert M. Calvin, a traffic safety educator and the federation's youth safety program manager says one of the big problems is convincing bicyclists that, like motorists, they are bound by traffic laws.

"Statistics show that in three out of four collisions with motor vehicles, the bicyclist violated a rule of the road at the time of the accident," said Calvin.

Youth Problems Mount in India

BOMBAY (CP) — Sally Fisher, a 56-year-old tourist from Montreal, was admiring the ornate dome of Bombay's Victoria Terminus railway station.

After she and a friend had finished shooting several color photographs of the landmark, Mrs. Fisher shouted: "My wallet is gone."

Within minutes the pickpocket was nabbed by a policeman. He turned out to be a 12-year-old Ashok Khamkar, the only son of a homeless widow.

The Bombay police wanted to send Ashok to a prison juvenile ward pending investigation, but the two Canadians persuaded police to release him on condition that the visitors place him in a private children's welfare home for young delinquents.

Ashok now is learning to become a cycle mechanic.

Nearly 3,000 juvenile delinquents and neglected children are being cared for in several children's homes in this metropolis. But police and welfare officials say that at least 5,000 more delinquents are active, especially in slum areas.

Many criminal gangs are using homeless and destitute children to smuggle illicit liquor into the city from nearby villages, to organize bets in the numbers racket and to pick the pockets of people, particularly foreign tourists.

Similar problems exist in other big Indian cities like Calcutta, New Delhi and Madras. In Calcutta, welfare workers have launched a "save the children" campaign aimed at rehabilitating delinquent kids from slum districts.

Perhaps the most ambitious rehabilitation scheme is the proposed "children's township" in Bombay. Costing more than $1.5 million, it will be spread over 70 acres in a pleasant suburban setting.

At least 2,000 neglected children will find a home in the government-aided township which will have schools, workshops, parks and other rehabilitation facilities.

To emphasize the Indian government's interest in child welfare, President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed flew down to Bombay to inaugurate work on the project.

According to Sarla Mehta, a welfare worker specializing in children's problems, there are at least 35,000 to 50,000 destitute and potentially delinquent children in India's cities. She says many of them are orphans.

Mrs. Mehta says that a recent and welcome trend is the interest wealthy families are taking in such children. Many of them have adopted homeless kids besides giving liberally to child welfare projects like the proposed Bombay township.

Sentenced to Labor

SAIGON (Reuter) — A South Vietnamese military court has sentenced a 52-year-old American, Russell Smith, to 10 years hard labor after convicting him of offences in connection with the attempt export of scrap metal, an official of the court said.

Democrats Scapegoats On VP Stall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has taken command of a Republican drive to blame the Democratic Congress for delaying Nelson Rockefeller's nomination as vice-president.

The president said he ranks his choice of Rockefeller as the foremost achievement of his first 100 days in office. He said he could foresee no circumstances which would cause him to withdraw the nomination.

Ford's call to Congress to vote the nomination up or down by year's end coincided with a painstaking examination by the Senate rules committee of the two controversies that have contributed most to delaying confirmation.

The principal figure in one of these, former Supreme Court justice Arthur Goldberg, refused to accept Rockefeller's apology for his long-concealed role in the financing of a critical Goldberg biography during a Rockefeller campaign against Goldberg. The panel today hears nine more witnesses explain their role in the complicated affair.

At a news conference in Phoenix, Ariz., Ford said he will ask Congress to insert deadlines into the 25th Amendment to the Constitution to prevent prolonged future struggles over the succession to the No. 2 governmental post in the United States.

Earlier Thursday, the Senate's two top Republican leaders complained that Democratic footdragging was subverting the 25th Amendment for partisan political gain.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania read excerpts from the original debate over the presidential succession amendment in which dozens of congressmen said its chief advantage was the speed with which a co-operative Congress might fill a vacancy in the vice-presidency.

Senator Robert Griffin of Michigan, the Republican whip, repeatedly expressed impatience at the delay which he said will cause Ford to leave the country on a trip to Southeast Asia next week without a vice-president "on hand and in office to mind the store."

Democratic committee members including assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia quickly disagreed.

Byrd, one of Rockefeller's most persistent interrogators, said the financing of the Goldberg biography and the large gifts and loans to public officials raise such fundamental questions of legality and ethics that he intends to take his time to air them thoroughly.

At Phoenix, Ford said Rockefeller has nothing to be ashamed of in the gifts.

"There was no political chicanery involved at all," Ford said. "He was generous to people he thought ought to be helped."

Rockefeller pledged in writing that if confirmed he will give no gift to any federal employee except normal Christmas and birthday presents and in cases involving serious medical hardship.

Rockefeller last month apologized to Goldberg for his role in publishing the biography by conservative writer Victor Lasky.

On Wednesday, he told the committee he finds that role—essentially a suggestion that his brother Laurance supply the funds—embarrassing, humiliating and a lapse from his family's normal conduct.

Goldberg, following Rockefeller to the witness table, refused to retract his description of the book as libelous and refused to accept Rockefeller's apology.

Pistol Fire Punctuates Gov't Debate

SAIGON (Reuter) — A pro-government legislator today fired his pistol in the lower house of parliament during a debate on amendments to South Vietnam's political parties law.

The deputy, Nhu Van Uy, fired into the air after coming under attack — both verbal and physical — from opposition members opposed to proposed changes in the law.

A heavy nameplate was thrown at Uy after he used what the opposition members claimed was insulting language. The nameplate missed him.

As opposition deputies crowded around him, Uy took out his postol. A fellow pro-government man grabbed his arm, and the shot went into the air.

Speaker Nguyen Ba Can rang bells to signal suspension of the debate.

Uy continued to brandish his gun before order was restored.

The uproar started after Uy accused the opposition of arrogance and used phrases considered highly insulting to Vietnamese.

The debate brought renewed attacks on the Saigon government, which was accused of wanting to maintain a one-party state.

Barge First Of Kind

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The first of her kind in the world, an $8 million log barge will receive the name Haida Monarch at a christening ceremony in Yarrows shipyard on Saturday.

Capable of self-loading and self-dumping a cargo of 15,000 tons of logs, the Haida Monarch is the first log barge designed to move under her own power.

Her twin 3,600 horse-power diesel engines will give her a cruising speed of 12 knots.

Built for Kingcome Navigation Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, a subsidiary of MacMillan-Bloedel, she will be christened by the wife of Kingcome's general manager, Roy Henderson.

After about two days of sea trials, the Haida Monarch will go into service later this month, operating between bases on the Queen Charlotte Islands, the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Efficiency, rather than esthetics, has resulted in a unique silhouette for ship-watchers.

She's 424 feet in length with a beam of 88 feet, drawing 20½ feet amidships when fully loaded.

She is also the first log barge to carry electrically-powered cranes, instead of diesel-operated ones, made possible by the amount of power she is capable of generating.

Extensive tank tests were carried out with models to check what power she would require and how she would react under various sea conditions before construction began in the fall of 1973.

The dumping process, which entails the Haida Monarch listing to a 35 degree angle, was a major challenge for her designers, the naval architects at Talbot-Jackson and Associates in North Vancouver.

Her main engines have specially-prepared beds to avoid undue strain while the barge is on a list. All equipment and accommodation is designed to avoid undue strain or discomfort. The beds in the crew's quarters are specially designed and the electric stove in the Haida Monarch's galley is set on gimbals.

The Haida Monarch's auxiliary engines have been set on a 15 degree angle so that they can generate power for lights, refrigerators and other equipment during the dumping process.

She will be manned with a minimum crew of 10, each man having his own soundproof cabin. There is a recreation room, complete with television.

The two main factors of this unique craft are her speed and safety.

Kingcome marine superintendent Peter Brown explained:

"Because there is no tow involved, for the same power she can make better speed, making more trips than any conventional barge in a given length of time."

The danger of a tow breaking has been eliminated, Brown said, increasing the safety factor.

A smaller version of the Haida Monarch is also "on the drawing board," Brown said.

She will be 382 feet in length and draw 18½ feet when carrying a full cargo of 10,000 tons of logs.

Posthumous Costs Irk Tory Member

Contracts required by Aberdeen Private Hospital have left relatives paying for rooms long after patients have died, Tory leader Scott Wallace charged in the legislature Thursday.

Wallace said Aberdeen is the only private hospital in Victoria he knows of which requires patients or their relatives to sign a residency agreement for a one-month period.

If the patient dies in the hospital during the month, according to Wallace, the relatives must still pay for the entire month.

"I'm not asking if this is legal or illegal," he said in an interview outside the house. "I'm asking if it is moral or immoral.

"Clearly the practice bears looking into by the consumer or health minister."

Asked in the house, Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young said she would "take the matter as notice," meaning she would look into the situation and return an answer to the legislature.

Wallace said he had been in touch with Aberdeen owner Neil DeMacedo, who refused to "put anything on paper" but said his contracts are legal.

According to Wallace, DeMacedo said the contracts "are the only way we can make the hospital pay."

The matter came to light, said Wallace, when a constituent reported his elderly relative had died five days into a month and he was forced to pay for the entire month.

Wallace said he would contact Human Resources Minister Norm Levi to find out if the government has paid for empty rooms under its program to pay private hospital costs for needy senior citizens.

Contacted today, DMacedo said Wallace's comments sound like a case of a "poor, unfortunate politician who has run out of issues . . . and is grabbing at straws."

He declined to discuss details of monthly charges and said he would leave it to Ms. Young to do so after she had been in touch with him.

But he said that in medical terms, he believes Wallace is "suffering from diarrhoea of the mouth."

He did provide the name and number of a woman who had a relative die after a short stay at Aberdeen four years ago and she told the Times she had received a refund from Aberdeen which "more than satisfied" her.

She praised the hospital for the "very gracious" way they had cared for her terminally-ill sister.

John Tisdalle, former Socred MLA for Saanich and the Islands, said that following Wallace's "very dubious argument," perhaps physicians should return fees where their patient dies.

He said his experience with a relative who died in another private hospital was that a portion of the month's charges was returned.

Barrett Trip Off Ground Despite Fog

Premier Barrett's departure for a two-week tour of China was almost thwarted today by heavy fog shrouding the Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle area.

The premier's 10-member party was to have left Victoria on a Pacific Western flight at 10:40 a.m. today, but the plane was delayed for more than three hours in Seattle by fog.

A government jet was hurriedly arranged and the party left Victoria at about 11 a.m. to fly to Abbottsford airport. The tour members were ferried by car to Vancouver International where their 1:30 p.m. flight to Tokyo was scheduled to leave on time despite a heavy fog cover earlier this morning.

The 10-member official party includes Barrett, Health Minister Dennis Cocke, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, and their wives, NDP whip Emery Barnes, MacMillan-Bloedel president Denis Timmis, International Woodworkers of America regional president Jack Munro and interpreter Quan Wong.

Times reporter Linda Hughes and CBC cameraman Ron Thompson will accompany Barrett on the tour.

The premier's party will spend two days in Tokyo before leaving for Peking where activities will include a banquet given in the premier's honor by the Institute of the International Club.

After two days in Peking, the party will fly to Shihchiachuang, a city about 200 miles south of Peking, for a day-long visit and then return to Peking where Barrett will host a banquet in the Peking Duck restaurant.

The party will then fly to Harbin, a city in the northeast of China and spend three days touring the area before returning to Peking for an ambassador's reception.

From Peking the party will travel to Shanghai and then to Kwangchow, south of Shanghai, for a two-day visit, before leaving for Hong Kong and the flight back to Vancouver.

Sewage Outfall Approval Held

The B.C. Pollution Control Board today gave the Capital Regional District 60 days to provide it with further evidence for permission to discharge sewage into Ganges harbor.

Chairman Ben E. Marr said the pollution board has delayed its final decision on an appeal by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control against issuing a sewage discharge permit to the region because "insufficient evidence was presented to the board".

The appeal was heard at a public hearing held at Ganges in September and aroused widespread interest at the time.

Marr said the "board is concerned that the district's calculations for the treatment plant and outfall system are based on an anticipated population growth rate over a five-year period only."

"If the district's parent proposal is approved, plant extension may have to be considered soon after installation and little assessment has been made of the possible additions or options which may have to be considered at that time," he said.

Marr requested the capital region to supply the following information.

—An assessment of the present method of handling sewage, existing and anticipated future problems with the development of the area.

—Re-assessment of effluent dilution and dispersion based on an anticipated development within a 25-year period. (The board feels this would be more practical.)

—Assessment of options available in the event of the above 25 years forecast indicating potential future problems or if a monitoring program requires modification of works.

—A review of the most recent information on the effect of chlorine residual on marine environment.

SPACE JUNK SEEN

A flaming mass spotted over Victoria skies about 6:30 p.m. Thursday was seen as far north as Fort St. James and south to Seattle.

"It had all the appearances of a typical fireball, although it could have been a bit of satellite or piece of space junk," said Dominion Astrophysical Observatory astronomer Murray Fletcher.

Space junk is the collection of man-made scientific instruments left floating in space when they're no longer useful, he said.

One resident of Austin Ave. near the Gorge saw the fireball, too.

"I saw a big ball of flame leaving a golden trail of fire behind it really moving across the sky, faster than a jet, and going toward Mount Douglas," said Alex Hvidberg.

The fireball was similar to a meteor, said Fletcher, except that it was visible for more than 30 seconds whereas meteors are seldom visible for more than a few seconds.

The appearance of a fireball is not too unusual, said Fletcher who has seen "two or three in the last 10 years."

Parking Government's Lot

After voicing concern about the potential parking problems inherent in the development, Victoria city council Thursday granted rezoning approval to a massive $7 million addition to the B.C. Hydro building at Pandora and Cormorant.

A public hearing was told the new building on the former Hydro parking lot — where excavation work is already in progress — will house about 1,300 provincial government employees, in addition to 500 in the present structure.

A total of 56 parking spaces will be provided within the complex, but architect Bob Siddall said he didn't know how these would be apportioned between visitors and employees.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young commented: "There comes a stage where I believe we have to take it on faith to some degree that the provincial government will produce the goods it has promised to produce," in the way of peripheral parking, shuttle bus services for employees and other transit improvements.

Business, professional and residential objectors were heard by council.

An electronics dealer complained that construction workers engaged on the site are occupying available parking spaces and creating problems for his customers.

Solicitor Sean F. Howard, of 812 Cormorant, submitted a written objection warning that council would leave the city open to a suit for damages if it granted the rezoning, and ignored its parking obligations to others in the neighborhood.

"By passing the bylaw you will be discriminating against others and favoring the applicant in a manner contrary to the rules of law and equity which you must follow in your dealings with all citizens and owners of property," he stated.

Howard also said the city would be creating "a most dangerous precedent" by not insisting on adequate offstreet parking provisions, and claimed the project would be "a disaster for the area."

Ald. Sam Bawlf criticized Public Works Minister Bill Hartley for failing to have a representative at the hearing to answer such complaints, and Mayor Peter Pollen said the lack of an environmental impact study was "insensitive from a government who feels developers are the ogres of the western world."

On another agenda item, council flatly refused a government request that the city establish special loading and unloading zones for provincial government vehicles in the downtown area.

Said Young: "It's difficult to refrain from comment on that particular item."

Added the mayor: "We're going to have to find an alternative for that term 'rapacious entrepreneur'. . ."

Woman, 68, Dies In Suite Fire

A 68-year-old woman died after fire broke out in her apartment in the Mount Douglas Court, 1550 Arrow, shortly before 1 a.m. today.

Saanich fire officials identified the woman as Florence McCarthy.

Deputy chief Art Logie said the woman was rescued from her ground floor apartment by assistant chief Hector McNeil who entered through a broken window and found her lying on the floor, her head against the bathroom door.

Logie said McNeil carried Mrs. McCarthy into a hallway where first aid was applied. She was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital but died about 15 minutes later.

The deputy chief said the cause of the fire has not been determined, although it is believed to have been a carelessly placed cigarette. The fire originated in a bed-chesterfield.

All of the tenants in the apartment block — many of them elderly — were evacuated while firemen fought the fire, which they managed to contain to Mrs. McCarthy's suite.

No estimate of damage was released.

It was the first fire fatality in Saanich this year, Logie said.

Ask The Times

Q. In 1968 at Mill Bay, I was charged no road tax for gasoline for a power lawn mower. It was a lot less than the price of gas for a car. The fuel was drawn from a special tank. It was quite legal but I don't think many people realize this. Can this be done in Victoria? Has the special tax been discontinued? — S.S.

A. Yes, you can get the gas in Victoria. It is known as marked or purple gas and is mainly used for industrial equipment, boats and farm equipment. The tax is three cents a gallon, compared with 15 cents on car gas. B.C. farmers pay no tax on gas used for farm machinery, but they must have a permit.

Q. Can you please tell how to get Brazil nuts out of the shell in one whole piece. I can buy whole, shelled nuts at the store so it can be done. How is it done by commercial people? R.D.

A. B.C. wholesalers say Brazil nuts reach North America already shelled, and they don't know how it's done. They suggest writing to Hugh Chevreau of the Johnson Nut Company, 1220 Birchmont Rd., Scarborough, Ontario.

Council Seeks Study Of Rent Team Use

Victoria city council agreed Thursday to give interim financing assistance to the Victoria Rental Aid Service, but indicated the agency's effectiveness should be assessed before the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee considers further aid next year.

Ald. Alf Hood said municipalities had not received an audited financial statement for either the home-finding group or its splinter group, the Regional Rental Referral Agency.

Their sources of funds and how the money was used were unknown to elected representatives, Hood said, adding: "We're entitled to answers to such questions before 1975 when the grant structure is considered."

The two organizations had received funding from the provincial human resources department, but that help was cut off last month.

The city's interim assistance, approved Thursday by a 5-3 vote, will give Victoria Rental Aid Service $350 a month until mid-February.

Cecilia Moved

Mother Cecilia Mary, 85-year-old founder of the Society of the Love of Jesus, remains at Royal Jubilee Hospital and is in fair condition, a hospital spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the hospital had mistakenly reported Mother Cecilia discharged Thursday after a four-day stay for observation. In fact, she was just moved from one ward to another.

A Volunteer Turn-Off?

It's the era of some whopping government handouts for good causes — and now Ottawa wants to find out whether such largesse is inadvertantly killing the spirit of public service.

So secretary of state Hugh Faulkner has named 15 people across Canada to an advisory council on volunteerism, among them Charles Barber of Victoria, the only council member west of Edmonton.

Barber, 25, is one of the organizers of the Pacific Community Self-Development Society, which built in recent years a highly successful Victoria Cool-Aid operation. He recently completed a 15-month appointment as a member of the Alcohol and Drug Commission of B.C.

He said Thursday that as he understands the function of the new council, it will examine organizations which use volunteers for social service purposes and which receive, or would like to receive federal financial support.

The question: is government inadvertantly making so much money available, through such things as Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives Programs, and in such a clumsy fashion, that it's turning people off volunteering themselves for community betterment programs?

The council itself is going to get generous support from Ottawa. Members will be paid $125 a day and expenses while working for the council.

100 Loggers Laid Off

Rayonier Canada Ltd. today closed its Jordon River logging operations, throwing 100 men out of work.

The closure was due to poor market conditions for lumber.

Normally, there is a winter layoff in mid-December but the closure came one month early and will last well through January.

Reopening will depend upon market conditions, the company said.

An additional 300 will be laid off Nov. 29 at Jeune Landing and Mahatta River on northern Vancouver Island and at Sewell Inlet in the Queen Charlottes.

Another 300 loggers will continue to work at Port McNeill and Holberg on northern Vancouver Island until early in December, when layoffs are anticipated.

Outdoors Class Plan Backed

Greater Victoria school board is making moves to teach its high school students about the outdoors.

Two Mt. Douglas senior secondary school teachers got a warm reception from trustees for their proposal to offer a credit Grade 11 course in outdoors explorations in January.

The course received the recommendation of the board's curriculum committee and is expected to get board approval on Monday.

Industrial education teacher Bill Conconi and art teacher Monty Fulton have been teaching the course on a non-credit basis up to now.

The board is also planning to train other interested high school teachers to teach outdoor education courses.

Conconi chaired a committee of 25 teachers which met this fall to draw up some guidelines for teacher in-service programs in outdoor education.

The committee's recommendations, presented to the curriculum committee Wednesday, stressed instructing teachers in safety techniques — canoeing, water safety, first aid, rescue, life-saving and survival techniques.

Teachers should also be taught hiking techniques, plant identification, use of maps and compass, alpine hiking, ropework and other activities, it said.

The committee recommended the board buy canoes, small sail boats, paddles, life jackets, ropes, ice axes, snow shoes, and cross country skis, and for each school tents, compasses and maps, and first aid supplies.

Conconi and Fulton's Mt. Doug course aims to make students aware of and appreciate the outdoors, as well as teaching them such skills as canoeing, firelighting, orienteering, cooking, hiking, and provision of shelters.

Classroom work will be combined with wilderness hikes and camping trips and visits to museums, archives and libraries.

Watch Out It Works!

Central Saanich's watch on speeding drivers appears to be working.

Only one ticket was issued by a police radar unit in an hour of checking cars Thursday on Keating Cross Road.

Thirty cars had been stopped for speeding in a half-hour period the previous day and warned that tickets would be issued the next day.

"The word got around," police chief Bob Miles said when explaining the reduction in speeding.

'Strong' Canadiens Knock Down Bruins

By The Canadian Press

Henri Richard, hobbling around with a broken ankle, was saying that perhaps Montreal Canadiens, without him in the lineup, might begin to "come on strong."

After losing 8-6 to Buffalo Sabres when Richard left the game with his injury Wednesday night, the Canadiens rallied Thursday night to dump Boston Bruins 4-1.

In the only other National Hockey League game, Buffalo Sabres beat Minnesota North Stars 5-3, moving nine points in front of the Bruins in the Division 4 race.

Richard, the Montreal captain, said his injury will keep him out of the lineup eight to 10 weeks. But he said the team has been known to rally in the past when one of its top players was sidelined with injuries.

"I don't see why they should miss me," said Richard. "Our team has so many good hockey players."

Guy Lafleur scored twice against Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert and Montreal netminder Ken Dryden had one of his best games this season, stopping 39 Boston shots.

Defenceman Guy Lapointe, who scored three times against Buffalo Wednesday, got his ninth goal of the season and Jacques Lemaire added the other Montreal goal.

League points leader Bobby Orr of the Bruins beat Dryden for his 10th goal of the season.

The Canadiens now are four points behind leading Los Angeles in Division 3.

It was the first home loss of the season for the Bruins.

At Buffalo, Rick Martin's two goals led the Sabres who extended their undefeated streak to 10 games, including nine wins and a tie.

Goalie Roger Crozier recorded his third win in as many starts for the Sabres this season, continuing his comeback after missing most of last season due to pancreatis.

Brian Spencer, Rene Robert and Danny Gare provided the other Buffalo goals. Jude Drouin, Murray Oliver and Don Martineau scored for the North Stars.

Meanwhile Richard was not the only NHL player with a fractured ankle. Atlanta Flames announced Thursday that centre Bob Leiter was sidelined with a similar injury Wednesday when he was struck by a shot during the Flames' 4-3 win over Washington Capitals.

CLARKE SAYS 'SORRY' AND CHIEF ACCEPTS

MONTREAL (CP) Centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers has sent a letter of apology to Clarence Campbell for critical remarks he made about the National Hockey League president Nov. 2.

In his letter, Clarke, captain of the Flyers, said:

"I would like to apologize for statements I made to the press about you. The statements were made when I was angry and were not meant maliciously.

"I am very sorry for any discomfort these statements may have caused you."

Clarke had told reporters after a game against Montreal Canadiens that "none of the other big leagues have other old guys as their heads."

The statements came on the same day Campbell had handed out six-game suspensions to Philadelphia wingers Bob Kelly and Don Saleski as the result of a bench-clearing brawl in Oakland Oct. 25.

"As far as I am concerned, I accept Clarke's apology in good faith and the incident is closed," the 69-year-old Campbell said Thursday.

'Versatility' Key to Success For Both Teams in WFC Final

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimo coach Ray Jauch says both teams will have momentum Sunday in the Western Football Conference sudden-death final.

"Momentum is a relevant factor," Jauch said as his Eskimos prepared to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders for the right to advance to the Grey Cup game in Vancouver Nov. 24. "We won our last three games and they won their last four."

But quarterback Ron Lancaster, who directed Saskatchewan to a 24-14 win over British Columbia Lions in the sudden-death semi-final, doesn't think momentum carries over from one game to the next.

"I think it's something that happens during a game," he said. "Just one thing can get it going."

Sunday will mark the Roughriders' ninth straight appearance in a WFC final, and they have moved on to the Grey Cup four times in that period.

"This club just plays better under pressure," says Saskatchewan coach John Payne. "They fight a little harder when they have their backs to the wall."

The Eskimos downed the Roughriders 25-23 in last year's fog-bound WFC final to go to the Grey Cup for the first time since 1960. Edmonton has also taken five of the last seven games with Saskatchewan, with the two losses coming by a combined total of two points.

Payne said past performances will not have any bearing on Sunday's outcome.

Jauch says versatility is the key to the success of both teams.

"The teams work the pass and the run and don't zero in on any one back," he said.

Lancaster, who passed for 20 touchdowns to lead the CFL, has veteran fullback George Reed to lead the ground attack. Reed, who holds most CFL rushing records, ran for 1,447 yards this season to top the league.

Edmonton's offence is directed by quarterback Tom Wilkinson, the WFC nominee for outstanding player in the CFL. He tossed 13 touchdowns and led the CFL in accuracy by completing 66 per cent of his passes.

Roy Bell spearheads the Eskimo rushing game with assistance from Calvin Harrell. Bell was the second-leading rusher in the CFL with 1,341 yards, while Harrell rumbled for 626 and led runners in touchdowns with nine.

Saskatchewan is concerned about George McGowan, last year's outstanding player in the CFL who returned to his wide-receiving slot late in the season after missing most of Edmonton's games with a pulled hamstring.

"Boy, does he make a difference," said Jim Eddy, Saskatchewan defensive coach. "You've got to give him double coverage."

The thought of speedy Larry Highbaugh, a defensive halfback who comes in for key offensive plays, on the field with McGowan unsettles Eddy.

"When they're both in there, you're forced into doing other things."

Wheaties, Oil Kings Tie In Penalty-Filled Battle

By The Canadian Press

Referee Bill Chapple of Brandon had his work cut out for him Thursday night as he issued 174 minutes in penalty time while Brandon Wheat Kings and Edmonton Oil Kings battled to a 7-7 tie in one of two Western Hockey Leagues games to end in ties.

In contrast, only eight penalties were called in Medicine Hat where the hometown Tigers and Winnipeg Clubs ended up with five goals apiece.

The Oil Kings had to fight back for their tie in the game played at Brandon. They went ahead 2-1 after the first period but, following a head-knocking second period, they trailed 5-4. The Edmonton club fought back with three goals in the second half of the final period to gain the tie.

The Edmonton comeback was completed by defenceman John Phillips who connected with a screen shot from the point with just over a minute left in the game.

Wayne Perkins led the way for Oil Kings with two goals, while singles went to Robin Sadler, Terry Bucyk, Mike Will and Garry Rissling.

For Brandon it was Denny McLean, with two, Jeff Sheardown, Gary Ashton, Dan Bonar, Murray Good and Blaine Stoughton.

Edmonton drew 20 penalties in the game, including seven fighting majors, two game misconducts and two misconducts.

The Wheat Kings weren't far off that performance with 18 penalties—seven for fighting; two game misconducts and one misconduct.

In Medicine Hat, a four-goal production by 19-year-old centre Greg Vaydik led the Tigers to their tie, their sixth consecutive game without a loss.

The teams had two goals each after one period before the Tigers took a 4-3 second period lead.

The other goal for Medicine Hat was scored by Gary Vaughan.

Winnipeg's goals were scored by Guy Lash, Tom Legge, Grant Bakin, Kevin McCarthy and Pat Meagher.

Braves Still Winning

By The Associated Press

Buffalo has adjusted its game because of the absence of injured Ernie DiGregorio, their classy playmaking guard, but the other teams in the National Basketball Association can't seem to adjust to the Braves.

Buffalo stretched its winning streak to six games and its Atlantic Division lead to 2½ games over defending league champion Boston by beating the Celtics 112-100 Thursday night.

"We're playing stronger team defence now because we realize we're not going to score as many points without Ernie," said Buffalo coach Jack Ramsay.

Randy Smith of Buffalo fired a game-high 27 points, Jim McMillian added 20, and Bob McAdoo, the league's leading scorer, 18. Jo Jo White was high for Boston with 25.

In other NBA games, Portland downed Atlanta 104-92, New York defeated Cleveland 94-89, and Houston beat Chicago 105-96.

In the American Basketball Association, New York defeated Memphis 108-101, San Antonio beat Kentucky 102-100 in overtime, and St. Louis defeated Virginia 118-96.

John Johnson sparked Portland with 19 points. Atlanta rookie John Drew scored 31 and grabbed 18 rebounds.

Earl Monroe pumped in 26 points to give the Knicks their 12th straight victory over the Cavaliers at Madison Square Garden.

Rudy Tomjanovich scored 24 points for Houston and Chet Walker had 33 for Chicago.

Rule Changes on Field Goals Achieve Purpose . . . Barely

NEW YORK (AP) — The kickers can't kick as much this year. And, perhaps surprisingly, they are not kicking about it.

A number of rule changes were introduced this season, aimed at making life a little more difficult for National Football League place-kickers in order to slice away at their growing dominance of the game.

The changes have worked but, for the most part, the kickers don't seem to mind it much.

The two biggest changes involved field goals. The uprights were moved 10 yards back from the goal line to the end line. And, in the event of a missed field goal on a play that began beyond the 20-yard line, the ball is brought back to the line of scrimmage rather than automatically putting it on the 20.

Last year, through nine games, the league's 26 teams already had attempted 567 field goals and had made 364 of them. The year, the figures are down to 352 attempts and 210 made. The percentage of successful field goal attempts is down only slightly, from 64.2 to 60 per cent.

But the reduction in field goal attempts has led to more punting. Through the first half of last year, there were 871 punts. That is up to 968 through the similar period this season.

And the whole purpose for the changes — to shift the emphasis from field goals to touchdowns — has been achieved, but just barely. Touchdowns are up through nine games, but only to 517 from 498.

"Another rule change has eliminated the stampede downfield by the punting team when the ball is snapped. The ends still can charge down, but the line has to wait for the ball to be kicked. As a result, punt returns have improved.

For example, last year's league-leading punt returner was San Francisco's Bruce Taylor, with a 13.8-yard average. This year's leader is New England's Mack Herron, with an 18.3-yard average. In fact, eight punt returners are matching or surpassing Taylor's 1973 mark.

Blood Flows As Boxers Butt Heads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) World junior lightweight champion Ben Villaflor got a bloody gash over his left eye when he butted heads with Ray Lunny in the sixth round of their non-title fight Thursday night and the referee halted the fight at the round's end, calling it a draw.

Referee Elmer Costa said if Villaflor had been ahead, he would have been awarded a decision, even though the butt was considered accidental, but Lunny led on two of the three scorecards.

Villaflor, 131¾, a Filipino fighting out of Honolulu, now has a record of 65 victories, three draws and four losses. Lunny, 133, of Redwood City, Calif., remains unbeaten with 18 victories and three draws.

UVic Opens Hoop Season With Good News and Bad

University of Victoria Vikettes are healthy for tonight's opening game of the Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball schedule against University of Alberta in Edmonton, but it's another story with the Vikings.

Vikings also are in Edmonton tonight to begin their CWUAA men's season against Alberta Golden Bears, league and playoff champions the last two years, and two UVic players are on the limp.

They are guards Leon Mitchell with a bad knee and Doug Mosher with a severe charley horse in his right leg. Both are making the trip and may see limited action.

"I'm really disappointed about the injury to Mosher," Viking coach Gary Taylor said Thursday. "He's been a steadying influence for us, which is remarkable in that he's a first-year man."

Mosher played for Mt. Douglas Rams last season in the Greater Victoria senior high school league.

Forwards making the trip are Lee Edmondson, Jim Duddridge, Pard Hogwiede, Dave Mulcahy and Lorn Dakin. Other guards are Bert Zethoff, Robbie Parris and Dale Macdonald.

The Bears, coached by Barry Mitchelson, have nine returnees and are favored to make it three championships in a row. Holdovers include Steve Panteluk, a second-team CWUAA all-star forward last year, and 6-foot-5 centre Dave Holland. A strong addition is guard Don Court, a transfer from University of Lethbridge where he played last season for the Pronghorns.

Vikette coach Mike Gallo, aiming to dethrone defending champion UBC Thunderettes this year, will have five forwards and five guards ready for tonight. Only physical problem, a minor one, is a sprained left ankle belonging to forward Edna Ritchie. It's been taped up and she'll play.

Other Vikette forwards are Marg Mainwaring, Cathy Auburn, Lynn Pullen and Teresa Marcin. Guards are Lorna McHattie, Laury Atkinson, Diane Robbie, Janice Turner and Donna Blackstock.

Miss Mainwaring and Miss Ritchie qualified last weekend in Vancouver for the B.C. team at the Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge in February.

Alberta, coached by Debbie Shogan, finished fourth last season in the standings. Among the returnees is Amanda Holloway, the team's top rebounder and second leading scorer.

It's a doubleheader weekend with all four teams in action again Saturday in Edmonton.

A Volleyball Offer Out of the Blue

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

When the topic is volleyball and the speaker is Vic Lindal, you listen.

So when Lindal, the B.C. provincial team coach and one of the most knowledgeable men on the Canadian volleyball scene, began to discourse Thursday on the whereabouts of one Rick Chapple, you couldn't help but pay attention.

Chapple is now in Montreal, his hopes high on making the Canadian national squad which is under the direction of Bill Neville, a Seattle product who's hoping to carry his present roster right through to the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

And should Chapple make the present club, he'll become the second Victorian to do so, the other being 23-year-old Greg Russell.

"Rick's chances of making the team are pretty good, especially with that great attitude of his," said Lindal Thursday in praise of the six-foot-six graduate of Claremont High School.

But until recently, Rick had given little thought of training with the nationals on a regular basis, or of even making the club.

"Rick was thinking about taking time off from the University of British Columbia (where he's competed for two years) and going travelling, probably to Europe. Then Bill Neville dropped a bombshell by calling him recently and asking him if he'd care to join the national training headquarters in Montreal," said Lindal.

"Well the offer came right out of the blue at Rick. He was really surprised, but he thought about it and then came and told me that he'd give it a shot. Then I helped him set up a weight training program to increase his strength."

Chapple first caught Neville's eye when he trained with the nationals prior to the team's games against the touring Japanese national squad in October.

"He impressed Neville with his height and great attitude," said Lindal. "His blocking was especially good, but his attitude is his most important asset. He's so keen, so enthusiastic that it's a real pleasure to work with him."

Lindal also credits Chapple with possessing "great ability to see in his mind's eye what's required to do a job," an intangible in preparing for anything.

With seven or eight positions set on the national squad, Neville is in the market for four or five new faces.

"Rick still has to work on his defence and spiking but those will come, especially with the way he works at things," said Lindal.

Chapple will work out with the nationals three times a week while playing with a local Montreal club.

Chapple may find Neville's lineup a bit too heavy to crack at this stage; perhaps he'll make the club, as Lindal thinks.

Either way, Chapple will go a long way in making a good name for himself in Canadian volleyball circles.

Comedy Cage Team To Play S. J. Willis

We've had the Harlem Globetrotters (dozens of times) and the Harlem Clowns and now, for the first time, the Harlem Nationals are making a visit to Victoria.

Led by comic Eural McKelvy, known to hundreds of thousands of fans as "Big Mac", the Nationals will present their special brand of basketball in a game against the S. J. Willis Homecoming Team Monday night at 8 at the S. J. Willis Junior High School gymnasium.

The acrobatic, six-foot, seven-inch McKelvy was with the Clowns for more than 10 years and is one of the great showmen of travelling basketball teams.

McKelvy, player-owner of the Nationals, has one of the most spectacular shots in the game — a one-handed push from 35 feet.

Fans are warned to be there early as often the comedy routines in the traditional warm-up ceremonies are more entertaining than the game itself.

There will be a preliminary mixed volleyball game at 7, featuring two combined teams of S. J. Willis boys' and girls' "A" players.

SPECTRUM, REYNOLDS FALL

BURNABY — Victoria's hopes were smashed and Burnaby North Vikings once again emerged as the big threat Thursday when the B.C. high school soccer championships opened here.

Both Reynolds Roadrunners and Spectrum, the Victoria league and playoff champions respectively, were swept from the championship section of the three-day tournament with second-round losses.

Reynolds, which blanked Semiahmoo of White Rock 2-0 in the first round, went out 2-0 in the next round to the Vikings, who have dominated the championship since it began four years ago.

Spectrum, which nipped Burnaby Central 3-2 in the first round, was eliminated 5-1 by Alberni District High in the second round.

Dan Hood scored in overtime to give Spectrum its first-round win. Ed Murray and Dale Marshall were the other Spectrum scorers. Murray scored the only Spectrum goal in the game with Alberni.

Roadrunners put up a great fight before going down to the Vikings. They held their slick opponents out through a scoreless first half and didn't concede the first goal until 15 minutes into the second half — and that came on a penalty. The second goal came only seconds later.

Reynolds' coach Henry Kuyvenhoven conceded: "They were just too good for us."

Powell River, the Island's fourth representative, went down 4-1 to Vancouver Technical College in the first round and beat Nelson 3-1 in the second round.

That left the Chieftains as the only Island squad through to the semi-finals. They were to play John Oliver of Vancouver today. John Oliver nipped Prince Rupert and then got past Vernon, both 2-1.

Burnaby North, which won the B.C. title in 1970 and 1972 and shared it last year with Nanaimo — Vic High was the other winner in 1971 — blanked Rutland of the Kootenays 3-0 in the opening round and played Centennial of Coquitlam in the other semi-final.

The championship final is set for 8 p.m. Saturday at Mercer Stadium.

First Round

Burnaby North 3, Rutland 0.
Port Alberni 5, Ashcroft 2.
John Oliver 2, Prince Rupert 1.
Centennial 1, Nelson 0.
Reynolds 2, Semiahmoo 0.
Vernon 3, Chilliwack 0.
Vancouver Technical 4, Powell River 1.
Spectrum 3, Burnaby Central 2.

Second Round

Stags Still Trailers ... With Fewer Fans

By The Canadian Press

Los Angeles Sharks drew an average of 5,338 fans a game while finishing last in the World Hockey Association's Western Division last season.

Right now that record is beginning to look good.

The Sharks, who have since become Michigan Stags, are still in last place, but now the attendance has dipped to an average of 2,841.

A crowd of 1,549 turned out Thursday night to see the Stags win only their third game of the season, 4-2 over Chicago Cougars.

In other WHA games Thursday, New England Whalers beat San Diego Mariners 7-2 and Cleveland Crusaders defeated Phoenix Roadrunners 2-1 in overtime.

The Stags, played their sixth home game at Detroit's Cobo Arena where they drew 2,522 the first game and 1,149 for the second one. After that, attendance climbed briefly and they had 6,429 in the stands last Sunday when they lost 6-1 to Indianapolis.

But Tuesday, they were back down to 1,435 and Thursday's turnout provided little cheering support for the Stags who snapped a six-game losing streak.

Marc Tardif and Danny Gruen scored within a 38-second span midway in the third period to put Michigan on top.

Tardif had also scored earlier to give the Stags a 2-1 lead but Chicago's Darryl Mags tied it early in the third period.

Michigan's Guy Trottier and Chicago's Duke Harris got the other goals.

At Phoenix, Jim Harrison's unassisted goal seven minutes into overtime gave Cleveland its fourth win in nine starts and pulled the Crusaders into second place in the Eastern Division, one point ahead of Indianapolis and seven behind leading New England.

Murray Keogan scored for Phoenix and Jerry Pinder for Cleveland in the first period.

Tom Webster's two goals led New England to its eighth win in 11 games.

Webster and Jim Dorey gave the Whalers a 2-0 lead in the first three minutes. Terry Caffery, Wayne Carleton, Tim Sheehy and John French also scored for the Whalers.

Wayne Rivers had two goals for the Mariners. New England goalie Chris Abrahamsson made 35 saves.

CLEVELAND (2)—Jim Harrison, Jerry Pinder.
PHOENIX (1)—Murray Keogan.

CHICAGO (2)—Daryl Mags, Duke Harris. MICHIGAN (4)—Marc Tardif 2, Guy Trottier, Danny Gruen. Attendance: 1549.

NEW ENGLAND (7) — Tom Webster 2, Jim Dorey, Wayne Carleton, Terry Caffery, John French, Tim Sheehy. SAN DIEGO (2)—Wayne Rivers, 2.

Golf's Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Sneed has been named the greatest golfer of all time in a poll of golfers who attended the recent dedication of golf's Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, N.C. Family Weekly, a Sunday newspaper supplement, took the poll.

Jack Nicklaus placed second and Ben Hogan third. They were followed by Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones, Garry Player and Arnold Palmer.

It's Mt. Doug Again In Island Swimming

Outstanding performances by sisters Cathy and Karen Rushcall as well as Rob Grundison helped Mt. Douglas pick up its third consecutive Vancouver Island high school swimming crown Thursday at Crystal Pool.

Mt. Douglas won the team title with 466 points, a whopping 167 ahead of runner-up Belmont.

St. Michael's University School (boys) and Norfolk House (girls) combined as one entry this year and took third place with 274 points, edging Dunsmuim, who was in the competition for the first time, by only one point.

Oak Bay, who dominated the Island Swimming scene for approximately 20 years, finished filth—its poorest-ever showing.

All of the 12 schools in the competition were from the Greater Victoria area as none of the up-Island schools showed up for the event.

Grundison swept three events, winning the 100-metre butterfly in a time of one minute, 1.5 seconds, capturing the 100-metre freestyle in 55.3 seconds and topping the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:11.9.

Cathy Rushcall won the 200-metre individual medley in 2:35.5 and the 100-metre freestyle in 1:04.4. She also placed runner-up to Alison Noble, a junior high student from Shoreline, in the 100-metre backstroke. Miss Noble, who holds several Canadian age-class records, won in 1:13.4 and was second in the 100-metre freestyle.

Karen Rushcall won the 100-metre butterfly in 1:11.2, placed second in the 200-metre individual medley and finished third in the 100-metre freestyle.

Doug Portelance paced Belmont with wins in the 50-metre backstroke (30.7) and 100-metre bakcstroke (1:06.5). He was also awarded the Bob Smirl Memorial Trophy for the swimmer best combining the qualities of leadership, sportsmanship and ability.

St. Michael's was led by Bill Hope, who won the 200-metre individual medley in 2:24.3 and was second in the 100-metre freestyle.

Bill Noble, Alison's brother, helped Esquimalt to its sixth-place finish with seconds in the 50 and 100-metre backstroke events and a fourth in the 100-metre freestyle.

Mt. Douglas won the girls' team event with 245 points but finished second in the boys' events to St. Michael's.

The top four finishers in each event gained berths in the B.C. championships in New Westminster, Nov. 29-30.

Ardent Salmon Fishermen Still Bringing Them In

Not too many fishermen are getting out, but the ones willing to brave the weather have been returning with some fairly decent salmon catches in the Greater Victoria area.

Limits of small chinooks up to six pounds are grabbing 4½-inch minnows near the mouth of Sooke Harbor and around Secretary Island. Most have been caught on deep lines.

Minnows fished at any depth are producing "very good" catches of chinooks up to 11 pounds in the vicinity of Frazer, Church and Bedford islands as well as in Whirl Bay.

Gordy Bell was one of the fortunate fishmen Wednesday. His limit consisted of fish all over five pounds and the top one weighed 10½ pounds.

Buzz-bombs and stingsildas have also worked well.

Limit catches of chinooks up to 14 pounds are being landed on buzz-bombs, anchovies, minnow and strip between the mouth of the channel in Pedder Bay and the kelp bed.

Olive McCombe has been doing quite well in recent days fishing the stretch of water between Brotchie Ledge and Saxe Point. Her catch consisted mainly of jacks but one winter chinook she landed tipped the scales at 23½ pounds.

Most catches are averaging seven or eight pounds and either green and white, or blue and white hootchies seem to produce best when trolled right near the bottom. Anyone favoring bait should note that minnows are outfishing strip.

★ ★ ★

Trial Island and "Golf Link Point" are yielding winter chinooks weighing as much as 22 pounds with stingsildas the top-producing lure.

Jacks form the main return near Wain Rock and Moses Point in Deep Cove. Hootchies and trip are catching the most fish at all depths.

Further south in Saanich Inlet, Sheppard Point, McCurdy Point and Indian Bay have given up winter chinooks in the eight-pound range to deep-water fishermen while others using light tackle, spinners and worms have been catching blue-backs in the 13 to 15-inch range.

Buzz-bombers working Cowichan Bay, now that the boundary has been lifted, are picking up a few coho and quite a few chums.

Strip-casters are picking up winter chinooks up to 15 pounds in Nanoose Bay, but only grilse and the odd five or six-pounder is being landed near Five Fingers and the White Buoy off Nanaimo.

On the west coast, buzz-bombers are catching chums near the mouth of the Sarita River.

Commercial fishermen report the winter springs are still a two-hour run out to sea from the mouth of Alberni Inlet.

Qualicum Beach waters are also yielding chums to buzz-boms and winter chinooks up to 21 pounds are being boated near Copper Bluff, Quathiaski Cove, Duncan Bay and the Government Wharf in Campbell River by spincasters using buzz-bombs and stingsildas.

Freshwater fishermen using paste and single eggs dangled from floats in Quamichan Lake are returning home with some hefty trout while other anglers working the mouth of Meade Creek in Cowichan Lake have been lucky.

Other likely spots to catch a trout are Comox, Bonanza, Lower Campbell, Upper Campbell, Buttle and Upper Quinsam lakes.

Steelhead are starting to appear in the Puntledge, Campbell and Quinsam rivers.

NIBBLES: Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association are reminded of their monthly Frostbite Derby from dawn to 2 p.m. Sunday.

Hunters should note that the week-long season on antlerless deer ends Sunday for the whole of Vancouver Island.

Wilkinson Rated Best in West

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Tom Wilkinson of Edmonton Eskimos and veteran George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, opponents in Sunday's Western Football Conference sudden-death final here, won two of the major W F C awards announced today.

Wilkinson, the western finalist for the outstanding player award in the Canadian Football League to be presented next week, was named to most valuable player in the WFC. Reed, who holds most CFL running marks, received the Eddie James memorial trophy for top rushing honors in the west.

Other winners were Curtis Wester, British Columbia Lions, outstanding lineman; Rudy Linterman, Calgary Stampeders, outstanding Canadian; Tom Scott, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, rookie of the year; John Helton, Calgary, outstanding defensive player; and Dave Cutler, Edmonton, leading scorer.

Wilkinson led the Eskimos to the WFC regular-season title as he completed 66 per cent of his passes, tops in the CFL.

Wilkinson, who got the Jeff Nicklin memorial trophy as most valuable player, completed 173 of 262 passes for 13 touchdowns. His eastern opponent for the CFL's outstanding player award is Johnny Rodgers of Montreal Alouettes.

TOM WILKINSON
. . . wins MVP award

Reed rushed for 1447 yards this season to lead the league. It was the 10th time in the last 11 years that he surpassed the 1000-yard barrier.

Wester is an offensive tackle who was Edmonton's last 1973 pre-season cut. The second-year graduate from East Texas State is one of the more effective pulling guards in the WFC.

As outstanding lineman, he was awarded the Demarco-Becket memorial trophy. He is also the western finalist for C F L lineman-of-the-year honors.

Linterman took the Dr. Beattie Martin trophy as outstanding Canadian and is the WFC finalist in the competition for top Canadian in the CFL. The seven-year veteran led the west in pass receiving this year with 64 receptions for 951 yards and one touchdown.

The Dave Dryburgh trophy for leading scorer went to Cutler, a placement specialist who kicked for 144 points this season to lead both conferences.

It's the second year in a row Cutler has won the award.

Casper Leading Morocco Event

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Billy Casper of the United States led a group of internatioal golfers Thursday in the $85,000 International Grand Prix tournament at Rabat's Dar Es Salaam course.

Casper's score after 36 holes was 140, one stroke ahead of American Larry Ziegler, Huan Lu of Formosa and Jean Garaialde of France.

Aaron Signs Pact For Two Seasons

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Home run king Henry Aaron, traded from verge of retirement with Atlanta Braves to a second career as a designated hitter with Milwaukee Brewers, has signed a two-year playing contract.

Brewers president Alan Bud Selig announced Aaron had signed the two-year contract during a news conference Thursday marking the slugger's return to the city where he started his career with the National League Milwaukee Braves in 1954.

Aaron, with 733 career home runs, originally said he would retire after the 1974 season when he eclipsed Ruth's landmark of 714 homers. He had been only expected to sign a one-year playing contract with the Brewers.

In a surprise announcement at the end of the season, however, Aaron said he would like to play another year. He said he was dissatisfied with the Braves and wanted to return to Milwaukee.

A deal was subsequently worked out.

It Will Be Just Like Dunkirk

Officials of the Victoria Power Squadron are keeping their fingers crossed, hoping that an exercise slated for Sunday goes without a hitch.

The exercise will look like a local Dunkirk evacuation with 95 pleasure craft (both sail and power setting out from the Sidney area.

Object of the exercise is to give the 400 students taking the power squadron's boat handling course at night school classes a chance to put some of their classroom-learned skills into practice.

Also along for the exercise will be 70 volunteer instructors to check on their pupil's progress.

Field Hockey Tourney

Twelve teams from Lower Island schools will compete in the one-day annual Bridgman Cup high school girls' field hockey tournament which gets under way at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at Lansdowne Junior High.

Oak Bay, Mt. Douglas, Spectrum and Esquimalt, all of the Greater Victoria area, plus Queen Margaret's of Duncan and Edward Milne, of Sooke, will play in Section "A" of the round-robin tournament.

Norfolk House, Vic High and St. Margaret's, all of Victoria, together with Brentwood College, Cowichan and Parkland of Sidney are in Section "B".

Teams meet each of the other five schools in round-robin play in their section, with the winners of the sections meeting in the final at 3:40 p.m.

There are no semi-finals in the tournament. If the number of points from wins and ties do not produce outright winners after round-robin play, then the school in each section with the best goals for-and-against aggregate go into the final. If that doesn't produce finalists, then the next steps are wins and losses against each other, deflected corners and finally, a toss of a coin.

In the final, if there is a tie there will be 10 minutes overtime. And if scores are still tied after all that, the trophy will be shared.

Esquimalt Drops Gulls To Pad Lead

Esquimalt boosted its lead to three points in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League on Thursday night by tripping second-place Juan de Fuca Gulls 3-1 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

After playing to a scoreless deadlock in the first period, Esquimalt went ahead 2-1 in the second session on goals by John Entzminger and Murray Allen. Gary Becktold was the other Esquimalt marksman while Dave Archibald averted a shutout for Gulls.

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

The assorted armada of sailboats and power cruisers, ranging upwards from 24 feet in length, will head out to Bedwell Harbor on South Pender Island, arriving there in time for a luncheon break from noon to 1:30 p.m.

On the way, the students will be tested on their knowledge of boat types and terminology, navigational aids and compass readings, plotting and general boat handling.

On the way back the armada will stop off at Sidney Spit in order to practise anchor drill, arriving back at their various home berths about 4:30 p.m.

This is the largest student body ever taken afloat by VPS since it started its night class program. Cruisemaster Bob Smith is to be congratulated on having been able to muster so many skippers who are willing to offer their time and their boats for the project.

Another armada will be massed off Sidney on Saturday — all sail this time — when the Canoe Bay Sailing Club starts another six-miler in their fall and winter series.

Sixty-three boats competed in Sunday's race, the entire fleet all finishing within an hour of each other.

Cam Thomson's Cal-Lorri was over-all winner, followed by Bill Bush's Caliente, Kevin McCullough's Catalina 27, Will Jensen's Tiara, Steve Meredith's Impasse, John Graeme's Starwagon, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, Dave Fletcher's Enes-Tu, Steve Vagvölgyi's Fulmar and Alan Dickinson's Viking.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club's dinghy sailors have started their frostbite fall and winter racing.

They will be out in full force Saturday. The first race is scheduled for 1 p.m. in Cadboro Bay.

On Sunday RVYC keel boats will be joined by boats from the Turkey Head Sailing Association for a long-distance race. They will get their start gun at 10 a.m. in the vicinity of Flower Island at Cadboro Bay.

The Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, has another full slate of racing lined up for Sunday.

Keel boats will begin racing at noon in Esquimalt Harbor, the dinghy competitors beginning their series racing an hour later.

Dennis Carlow was top Fireball sailor in last Sunday's competition. After him came Bob Lewis of Edmonton and Grant Davis.

THD
Yamaha reveals The Nature of The Beast.

Total Harmonic Distortion. This type of distortion is caused by the creation of harmonics of the desired fundamental tone. For example, when a 100Hz tone is received by the amplifier it tends, in addition, to produce weaker 2000Hz (second harmonic) and 3000Hz (third harmonic), etc. tones. The sum of these unwanted harmonics is stated as a percentage of the total signal present in the output. The lower the better.

ESQUIMALT IN FINAL AGAINST MT. DOUG

Esquimalt and Mt. Douglas tangle tonight in the Lower Vancouver Island high school boys' volleyball championship at Oak Bay Junior High School.

Esquimalt gained the berth with a 15-7, 5-15, 15-6 win over previously-unbeaten Victoria High in one semi-final Thursday night while Mt. Douglas advanced with a 15-13, 15-3 decision over Belmont.

Belmont meets Victoria in the consolation final at 7 tonight and the championship final is set for 8:30.

All four semi-finalists advance to the Island championship tournament Nov. 22-23 in Victoria. The provincial title will also be decided in Victoria, Dec. 5-7.

Schedule Completed, But Problems Remain

By The Canadian Press

Financial problems continued to plague the World Football League right down to the last day of its regular schedule Thursday.

Florida Blazers defeated Southern California Sun 27-24 in a meaningless contest Thursday night, closing out the troubled league's first season.

Meanwhile, Birmingham Americans, who have already been hit by a lien against their equipment, were locked out of their rented offices Thursday amid reports that the team's players and coach Jack Gotta and his staff have not received any paycheques in two weeks.

Reports about the late paycheques appeared in the Birmingham Post-Herald but no players were immediately available for comment.

The manager of the motel where the Americans had two offices confirmed that the offices had been closed, saying the decision was made at the motel chain's head office.

The office closing followed Wednesday's court order attaching the team's assets until it pays back taxes to the state of Alabama. The team has also admitted owing taxes to the city of Birmingham and Jefferson County.

The last game of the regular season wound up with Dave Strock kicking a 15-yard field goal for the winning points for Florida, another of the financially-troubled teams among the 10 remaining clubs.

Trailing by 17 points at halftime, the Sun came back in the second half and had scored 14 points in the final quarter to tie the game.

Florida's Tommy Reamon captured the WFL rushing title, running 68 yards to complete the 20-game schedule with a total of 1,576 yards.

Reds vs. Russia On Hockey Tour

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Providence Reds of the American Hockey League will play the Russian National Hockey Club here Jan. 6.

The game will be the final one in the Russian tour which begins Dec. 26 at New Haven and includes stops in Springfield, Mass., Baltimore, and Hershey, Pa.

Lee Trailing by One In Mexican Tourney

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Tom Aycock of the United states took a one-stroke lead over defending champion Lee Trevino and two others after the first round of the $40,000 Mexican national open golf tournament Thursday.

Aycock finished the 6995-yard, par-72 Lonas Golf Club course with a four-under 68.

Trevino was tied at 69 with Mexican Miguel Hernandez and Jim Ahern. Charles Sifford carded a 70 to tie for fifth with Mexicans Oscar Carda, Trinidad Reyes and Hector Alvarez.

Mike Reasor was tied in ninth place with Frank Whibley of Toronto and Ireland's Eddie Bolland at 71.

There are a total of 160 players in the tournament — 118 professionals and 32 amateurs — chasing the $8,000 first prize.

Change 'Generations' Off

EDMONTON (CP) — Discrimination against women has been a part of the Canadian way of life and it will take generations to change, says the chairman of the Alberta Human Rights Commission.

Max Wyman, 58, who left his post as president of the University of Alberta in July to become the commission's first chairman, said the commission is increasingly handling cases which have implications for classes of people rather than individuals. But the commission needed time to build a body of legal precedent before discrimination could be fully suppressed.

"I think in this country we've always been against discrimination because of color and creed but discrimination because of sex has been the Canadian way of life," said the soft-spoken Dr. Wyman, now on sabbatical leave from the university and writing two technical books for mathematicians.

"Women have been in sexually stereotyped jobs such as nursing and secretarial work and that has been the way we envisaged women in the work force. We often paid them less money for doing the same job. Gradually I think that type of philosophy became unacceptable.

"To change it, when you have a philosophy that's permeated our society for 100 years, you need legislation. It's not going to be overcome in just one generation."

Dr. Wyman mentioned a case before the commission involving seven nursing aides at an Edmonton hospital who were being paid about $150 a month less than their male counterparts for exactly the same work.

The commission found for the nurses, which means it will cost the provincial government a great deal of money to raise the pay of the 4,000 nursing aides in Alberta. Dr. Wyman said it will be interesting to see whether the people of Alberta are prepared to pay the price of eliminating this incidence of sexual discrimination.

The commission relies on the attorney-general's office to take cases to court and has power only to hold an inquiry and seek a settlement, often with the help of the glare of publicity.

The changes in attitude in society, Dr. Wyman said, often have resulted from outspoken persons raising problems.

"We need radicals who want to change our society, who have new ideas and are willing to speak for them and in some cases become martyrs for them. You need them in a democracy because it's too often too easy to go along and do the same things over and over again . . .

"In a country as diverse and as large as Canada, I think we are going to survive as a country only if we can tolerate all of these differences of moralities, lifestyles and cultures. It shows up in an indifference in the law to all of these variations."

The decisions the commission makes often challenge some laws in favor of others and it will take years of court precedent to clarify the law, he said. For example, a change in a collective agreement because it discriminates against women will place the traditional sanctity of contractual law in doubt.

CAVEAT EMPTOR:

Tire Selection Vital

LYNNE GORDON

It may be the time of the year when your driving habits have to change radically. You wake up one morning to find your familiar safe route a hazardous course, covered with snow or sleet, greasy wetness or even ice.

Have you made the change to winter tires or are you still struggling with the decision?

Mention the subject of tires and most men and women tend to shrug their shoulders indifierently. Of all consumer topics, I bet this rates the lowest in interest.

Yet, it's a subject you'll wish you new more about if you are forced with an emergency manoeuvre. Then it may be too late.

The proper selection of tires is vital to your safety as well as your mobility. To drive with tires that have 1-12 inch, or less, of tread depth, is inviting disaster.

CONFUSING JARGON

When you go to buy tires, you are faced with a confusing ungjkle of terms such as: plies, belted-bias, radials, nylon, polyester, fiberglass, steel; 80 series, 78 series, 70 series, 60 series. Add to that the manufacturers' brand name and descriptions like DELUXE, Premium, First Line and Custom and you have a pretty impossible task sorting out the proper tire for your needs.

Since the manufacturer can set his own standard on most terms, the Deluxe Line may be no better than the Premium one from another.

When you finally wade through this mind boggling jargon, it all boils down to three basic types; the bias, the belted-bias and the radial. And here are many combinations of materials, widths and designs in each type.

The trick is to match the tires to your car, the load you carry and to your driving habits and expectations.

At this point don't be sucked in by price alone, or by advertising gimmicks.

If you drive primarily in the suburbs between home, school and the shopping centre, you may get away with the cheapest tire, the bias ply.

For a lot of city driving and a moderate amount on the highway, step up to the next price bracket and consider a belted-bias tire.

But for hard driving and high speed on the highway, the radial is the best and most expensive. It is long wearing, has the best handling characteristics and is virtually puncture proof. In fact, most 1975 cars will carry steel-belted radials as part of the original equipment.

Just one tip, radial tires have relatively weak but flexible sidewalls which give them their excellent characteristics. But because of this, if you are the kind of driver who bangs into the curb a lot when parking, they will blow out faster.

For best all around performance, its best to use the same tires on all four wheel positions and in the case of radials, mixing is DEFINITELY OUT.

SNOW TIRES

As with conventional tires, it is essential to select winter tires which fit your particular driving needs.

The same advice goes about mixing. If you have belted-bias, put two belted bias on the rear wheels. If you have radials, two radials on the back.

If you don't know what kind of tire you have, get down on your hands and knees and check the sidewalls. That's the one way you can make absolutely sure you know what you've got.

Make sure you get a gutsy tire.

Before buying, look at the tread pattern. Don't just look at the surface. Take your car ey and poke it into the grooves and cipes to make sure they cut deeply.

Tread patterns vary considerably in this respect. Some tires will lose most of their gripping power before they are half worn.

If you drive in heavy snow most of the year, think about four snow tires. After all, about 70 per cent of your braking and 100 per cent of your steering is done by the front tires.

The only time you should consider re-treads, is if you do a moderate amount of driving in the suburbs. For long mileage and snow-covered roads, your steel belted radials are still the best.

For driving on ice, studs are ideal, if they are allowed in your province. (They have been banned in Ontario.)

The key to not getting stuck, is to use as little gas as possible, and keep your momentum going. Once you spin your tires, you've lost almost all your traction.

For correct size and inflation pressure, read the label usually found on the glove compartment door or check the manufacturers car manual. The correct tire pressure is vital to your safety.

Under-inflated tires buckle in the middle. Only the outer edges of the tread are in effective contact with the road. This tends to reduce traction.

Let me puncture an old wives tale right here. It is particularly unwise to let air out of tires, during the winter, in the/ mistaken notion that soft tires will improve traction. This is untrue and DANGEROUS .

Also, an over inflated tire will reduce traction surface and cause the tire to bounce and lose contact with the road.

Guarantees and warranties must be checkked carefully.

Four Built Treehouse For Utility

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — As kids, Michael, Laurie, Peter, and Marni led comfortable, middle-class lives. In a negative sort of way, it probably has a lot to do with why they are planning to spend this winter in a treehouse.

Since April, Michael McCurlie, 22, and Laurie Olsen, 20, have been living in the treehouse in a secluded cedar forest beside the Speed River outside this western Ontario city.

In August, 23-year-old Peter Wood, and 20-year-old Marni Willoughby joined them in the two-bedroom, split-level structure.

The treehouse, located on a friend's land, was built for $200 by Michael and Laurie's brother, Jack, in two weeks, using spruce plywood and two-by-fours in a modified T-bar construction. It rests in a triangle of large cedar trees.

Neither had any carpentry experience, but had built a smaller treehouse on the same site three years ago. Jack and Michael lived there for a month. Vandals wrecked that structure.

Right now, they're busy insulating the house. Then they plan to panel the inside and lay carpets. They have already put a small wood stove in the main room.

Laurie works nights at a pizza parlor here, and Michael works bars and clubs as a member of the rock band Elvin. Peter, a fourth-year fine arts student, and Marni, in third-year sociology attend University of Guelph.

The two couples see little of each other, except Sundays, everyone's day off.

"So it doesn't really get crowded here," Michael said. "Besides, we all like each other."

A few weeks ago, the treehouse was robbed. Taken were two bass clarinets, and oboe, a portable stove, a lantern, and about 100 records, total value about $1,500.

"Until this happened," Michael said," the girl and I were saving about $150 a month on rent. Now we're lucky if we'll break even."

Everything in the house is there for its utility, not its beauty. Soon, locks will be added to the utility of the place.

The wooden ice-box, also desk and table, provided the house with its picture window. When they tried to bring the ice-box up by pulley, they found it too big to fit through the door. So they cut a hole in the side of the treehouse to get it inside, then put windows in the hole. It gives a great view of the river.

They get drinking water from a nearby farm, and now burn a load of cherrywood given them by friends. They cook on a camping stove, and wash dishes with boiled river water.

They had a vegetable garden, arranged in "companion" planting, combinations of vegetables and herbs to keep away insects. They planted one-tenth of an acre, and it grew so well they couldn't use all the produce.

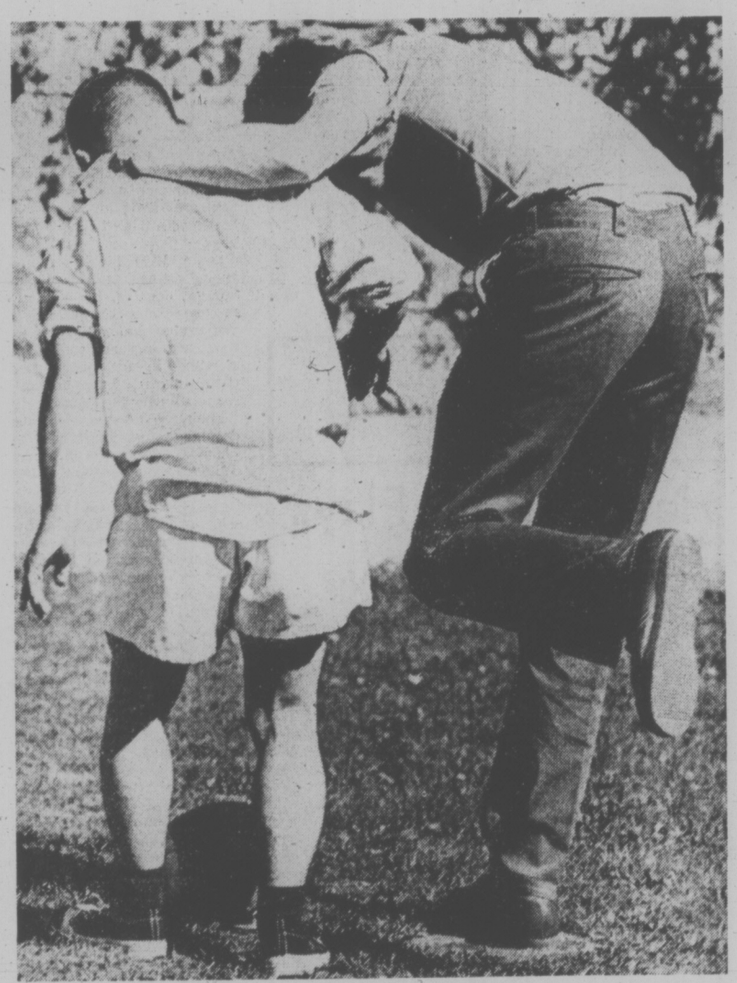
Foam mattresses are used as beds, with eiderdown sleeping bags on top. Nails become clotheshangers, and every niche of empty space is used for storage.

The plumbing is outdoors, which means a trip down the rope ladder and a 100-foot walk to a cedar grove to an old wooden armchair with part of the seat removed, perched over a deep pit.

For the winter, they're buying a chemical toilet and building a shed on the porch to house it.

"I'll probably use the old one as much as I can. I like to sit out there and watch the birds. They're really curious, they're not used to seeing people sitting out there in an armchair," Michael said.

The household spends only $20 a week on food, eating healthy, if not necessarily, health foods. By next spring, Michael figures, he and Laurie can quit their jobs and do what they've always wanted: Observe and record life in the forest for one year, see nature in its full cycle.



THREE DAYS a week, 15 boys from Woodlands School in New Westminster get together with prisoners at the Matsqui Institution, a federal medium security penitentiary. The boys are all classed as profoundly retarded. Former chaplain, Rev. Mel Cropley started the project.

Family Doctor Returns

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The family doctor, headed for "almost certain extinction" 10 years ago, is thriving today thanks to public outrage against impersonal disease-oriented medicine.

That is the prognosis from Dr. Donald Rice of Toronto, executive director of the College of Family Physicians of Canada and president-elect of the world organization of national colleges, academies, and academic associations of general practitioners-family physicians.

Rice told the opening session of the sixth world conference on general practice-family medicine that family medicine has become a specialty "commanding all the recognition and kudos affording the more traditional and senior medical disciplines of medicine, surgery, pediatries and obstretics."

He said the revolutionary change in family medicine comes about because the public "has expressed concern that the practice of medicine has become fragmented, impersonal — disease-oriented rather than people oriented."

"While acknowledging the need for specialization and sub-specialization in keeping with advances in medical knowledge and technology, the public is demanding that more emphasis be directed toward the service aspect of our health care systems," he said.

Rice said that throughout the world people want "well-trained family physicians, working with other health professionals." They want a personal physician to look after their own and their family's health care needs."

Witness In Form

NEW YORK (UPI) — A model took the witness stand earlier this week dressed in nothing more above the waist than a brassiere.

The witness, Paula Mann, displayed the "anti-creep" features of her playtex "cross your heart" bra in a case involving accusations of pattern copying by "Splendor Form" and "Forever Yours."

Judge William Conner, who presided, reserved decision and comment.

Quilting Returns in U.S. As 'Salvage Art' Form

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ancestors of U.S. residents created quilts mostly for creature comfort and from necessity. What they may not have considered was that they also were creating art.

"Salvage art" is the term a husband-wife team of collectors of antique quilts call it. For in the days before the United States became the affluent society, nothing was discarded. Scraps of fabric from making clothing and other items went into a patchwork and intricate patterning and stitching of bed coverings.

Now people are quilting again, even to holding oldtime quilting bees (now usually a group working for charity or church fund-raising). There's a massive new interest in all needlecrafts including crochet, needlepoint and embroidery, and all textiles are coming into their own as an art form.

Museums are collecting and exhibiting. Some of the revival comes from nostalgia for the days when people had more time and patience for the crafts. There is the "don't waste" push of the ecologists.

And whether the whole matter also has something to do with the present state of our economy is difficult to determine.

"They say that quilting goes with a depression or recession," said Patsy Orlofsky. "I'm not sure what that indicates now."

Mrs. Orlofsky and her husband, Myron, an attorney, collect antique quilts. They have 300, mostly 18th and 19th century dated, in their upstate New York home. Quilts are draped on beds, hung on walls, spill over backs of chairs and sofas, are stored in chests and baskets.

They told how their collecting began.

A cousin of Mrs. Orlofsky started them several years ago when they saw some quilts she'd acquired for her Bucks County, Pa., farm. The relative had acquired heirlooms for as little as 25 to 50 cents each.

"Besides their beauty," Mrs. Orlofsky said, "we were intrigued with the way quilts reflected periods in our history."

Many valuable quilts had slogans and mottoes, patriotic motifs and Biblical quotations worked into their designs.

Cancer Budget Set

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The American Cancer Society says it will spend a record $26.5 million for research next year. The research will concentrate on viruses and immunology — how viruses affect development of the disease and how the body's immune-defence mechanism attempts to fend off a cancerous attack.

Wonderful World of Animals

Dear Dr. Miller: I've already named my new puppy Mortimer because his upper teeth hang out way in front of his lower teeth. When I complained where I bought him about this, they said most of this breed look that way when they're young but that the lower jaw grows out faster than the upper one, so by the time they're grown up the upper and lower teeth meet. I've had a couple of other dogs before in my life and I never heard of this but the seller guaranteed me that this would happen so I guess it's OK. Is it? — V.N.

Dear V.N.: Normally the upper front teeth will meet the lower or overlap the lower incisors slightly. In some cases where the overlapping is excessive, it may indeed assume normal relationship by the time the puppy has matured. Unfortunately, in your case as described, the puppy, no matter how old it gets, will still have a severe malocclusion. Those who make long term guarantees regarding a dog's condition or health are often relying on the fact that the owner will become so attached to the dog that a defect or health problem, whatever it may be, will be accepted by the owner rather than giving up what has become a much-loved member of the family. In the case of malocclusion, there is seldom a serious health problem involved though occasionally corrective dental procedures may be required to prevent early loss of important teeth.

Fall and fireplaces seem to go together, particularly as the air gets crisper and nippier. Chimney checking prior to the first fire is an important thing to do. Occasionally, the chimney is a temporary home for bird or beast (squirrls or what-have-you).

Functioning fireplaces also need to be properly screened to prevent visits from imprudent puppies or perplexed parakeets.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Please tell me how I can brush Mathilda's coat easiest. She's a very long-haired Persian. This lady I know who's a real cat person says the way to do it is to brush her with short strokes starting at the back and working to the front. Nobody told Mathilda this; I can barely start before she begins objecting with those claws. Can you tell me how I can get her combed? — D. W.

DEAR D. W.: Mathilda may be sensitive to a comb with teeth that are too fine, or a brush with bristles that are too sharp. Possibly you're brushing (or combing) her too briskly. Or perhaps she didn't get enough time to get used to this grooming procedure when you began it. Mathilda might also be agreeable to a switch — that is grooming her from the head to tail instead of from tail to head — especially if the new routine is performed gently.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Irish won't put on weight. I had him checked months ago and no sign of any worms or any other problem, they said. He was running a lot, though, so I started keeping him penned-up thinking maybe he was running off all his fat. It hasn't done any good. He hardly gets out at all anymore and he's still skinny, even though he's getting the recommended food and eats a lot. How do you fatten up a Setter like this anyway0 — C.N.

DEAR C.N.: It could be Irish isn't destined to be a fat dog. As far as health is concerned, a lean Irish Setter would, on the average, be healthier than a fat, flabby one. For that matter, fat, flabby Irish Setters are in the minority anyway since this breed tends to be hyperactive and burn up calories. Whether Irish could actually handle more calories, be they carbohydrate or fat in his diet, would be up to his doctor to determine. Confining Irish to load on the lard would be self-defeating as he would fret and stew so much from the confinement that he would worry off his weight anyway. Better to see that he gets plenty of physical exercise — this breed definitely needs it — and hope that you can get him to consume enough calories to hold his weight (and even add a pound or two).

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WILLIAM WELCH

When the familiar delivery-room exhortation, "Bear down, Mother," is pronounced in the casual throaty baritone of a busy obstetrician, it strikes some young mothers-to-be, bulging in their sweat-drenched hospital gowns, as yet another example of today's inhuman doctor.

The recollection of the quick-step, monthly checkups, however technically adequate, and the general feeling of having been treated in an assembly line can become overwhelming when her nine months' ordeal is climaxed by what comes through to her as little more than the bored cheerleading of a non-playing captain.

Of course, if she had had twins, or triplets, or a breech delivery, or a Caesarian section, or required forcepts, her obstetrician would have been "interested," and she would have been grateful.

But since more than 90 per cent of deliveries are uncomplicated and, for the most part predictably so, he is not always that "interested" and she is not all that grateful.

Perhaps this is why the American College of Nurse-Midwives is able to report that the number of midwives now practicing in the United States has tripled in the past year.

Some 1,200 highly trained young women, not only with nursing degrees, but with up to two years of obstetrical and prepartum and post partum training as well, are standing in for overworked obstetricians in delivery rooms all over the country.

They are present from the day the pregnancy is confirmed, take part in counselling the mother-to-be at her regular checkups and are responsible for the delivery itself for all normal births. Many women welcome the sympathetic camaraderie of another woman, and the sense of being attended with the concern of an understanding friend.

A return to the Middle Ages? Not at all. It is estimated that throughout the world, midwives deliver eight out of every 10 babies, and that includes the majority of births, even in such technologically advanced countries as England, West Germany, Scandinavia and the Netherlands.

In this country, whether to blame the shortage of obstetricians or the wish of some women liberationists to steer clear of men obstetricians, the demand of many of the young to have their babies at home, or the feeling that many doctors are too impersonal, whatever the cause, midwifery, with the blessing incidentally of the American College of Obstricians and Gynecologists, is on the march.

Heart Victim Plays But Not at Love

DEAR ABBY: I am 50 and my husband, Walter, is 52. Two years ago he had a heart attack, but he recovered and is now enjoying excellent health.

Walter plays tennis at least three times every week, so he's not exactly an invalid, right?

However, when it comes to lovemaking, I am told not to "bother him" because he doesn't want to take any chances on damaging his heart.

Before his coronary, he wasn't the world's greatest lover, but now he has an excuse. (Or has he?)

Please ask one of your medical consultants and let me know. Don't advise me to ask Walter's doctor because he is also Walter's tennis buddy. Thanks.—Missing something.

DEAR MISSING: I consulted Dr. Donald B. Effler, the famous Cleveland Clinic heart surgeon, who is cooler than Denton Cooley and hotter than Michael DeBakey. His response: "If Walter, age 52, is enjoying regular tennis, but will not take care of his homework, three possibilities come to mind: a) Walter's got something going on the outside, b) Walter's wife has lost something that must have looked good to him a number of years ago or c) Walter is one of those rare men who loses interest in sex at 52. In any event, judging from his wife's letter, Walter's past heart attack is most likely a phony excuse.

"Very few coronary patients are advised against sexual activity at home. This simple observation, made long ago, gave rise to the aphorism, 'There's nothing dangerous about sex, it's the chasing after it that can kill you.'"

DEAR ABBY: Our 27-year-old son is a college graduate who lives and works a few hundred miles from us. Two years ago he met a very nice girl three years his junior, and they have gone together ever since.

My husband and I hope to see them get married — since they are devoted to each other and are certainly not too young — but they tell us they have no such plans for now.

Recently they rented an apartment and are now openly living together. This bothers me much more than it does my husband.

Our son would like some help in furnishing his apartment, and while I would gladly give him things if he were married, I feel it is wrong under these circumstances.

Yesterday I was asked by a friend to give her my son's address and also his girl friend's, so she could invite them to a wedding. I was embarrased to tell her the address was the same for both.

I understand that the lifestyle and morals of these young people are not mine, but I am hurt just the same. Must I accept this arrangement publicly, go along with it and keep my thoughts to myself?—Unhappy Mother

DEAR MOTHER: If you want to maintain a good relationship with your son, yes.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that small-town bartender that he doesn't have to lie. If someone phones the bar and asks if Joe Blow is there, all he has to do is page Joe Blow by calling his name loudly.

If Joe Blow doesn't want to answer the page, it's his business. That way the bartender isn't in the middle.—Lady Bartender

DEAR LADY: Leave it to a lady to figure out how to keep from getting in the middle.

Professor Attacks Rape Law

TORONTO (CP) — Names of rape victims should no longer legally be kept secret to end the idea that being raped is shameful, Lorenne Clark, a professor at the University of Toronto, says.

She said that rape should be declassified as a major crime and treated as other assaults to eliminate sexism from law.

The law expresses the male notion of "women as property," she said, and a raped woman as "damaged, a used piece of furniture."

Being raped is no more shameful than being attacked on other parts of the body, the professor said in a speech to about 400 people.

She said that in rape trials the victim seems to be more on trial than the attacker.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Sat., Nov. 16
By SIDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Learning process is stimulated. Correspondence, communication also comes into spotlight. You find where the barriers are and how to hurdle them. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio are likely to be in picture. Take long-range view. Become more sensitive to potential.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relationship is intensified. Nothing is halfway. It is all or nothing, including money and love. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Concern with the hidden or occult is emphasized. One who makes promise will back it — know it — start making plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis is on co-operation, partnership, joint efforts, legal commitments, including marriage. If single, moves are afoot to change and challenge domestic situation. If married, adjustment is going to occur. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons may be in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Employment, basic services may cause you to be restless. Grass is not necessarily greener elsewhere. But you may have to learn that through direct experience. Meantime, maintain balance and preserve health. Avoid extremes, excesses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with creative efforts, changes of scenery, affair of heart and dealings with children. Your emotional responses dominate. You imprint style. You draw to you persons who want yout to succeed. Know it and act like you know it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Project can be successfully concluded. Family matter is settled. You'll sleep better as result. Aries, Libra persons may be involved. What seems to be the start of something is probably the opposite. Don't hang on to past. Get rid of burden not really your own.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You meet someone who inspires — your ideas begin to click. Opportunity is here and now. Refuse to be discouraged by associate who lacks, spark, imagination. Get going — be a self-starter. Short journey proves fruitful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent is on income, personal possessions, valuables. Consolidate. Review assets, deficits. Get rid of non-essentials. Get valid appraisal. Solicit opinions of those who know their business. Don't expect something of value for nothing. Pay fair prices — and be glad of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle high — audit goes in your favor. Emphasize independence, creativity. Be original. Means be yourself — don't imitate. What is best for you now is what comes naturally. You will understand. Another Sagittarian — and a Gemini — could figure in important ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Restrictions, delays are part of a current, natural cycle. Know it and avoid panic. Visit one confined to home, hospital. Be quiet within. Answers will be forthcoming. Attend to specifics. Be definite, positive and confident. You're going to win!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent is on changes in connection with one of opposite sex. You reach new understanding. You also open lines of communication. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. A friend conveys encouraging message.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis is on where you are going in connection with career, business. Key is to get backing from one who cares for you in more than a perfunctory way. Family member could be in picture — in a pleasant way.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, introspective, creative and moody. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles in your life. In December, domestic change, adjustment is highlighted. Forces have been scattered, but contact made in July will pay dividends in 1975. Money picture should be brighter.

A Dose of Astonishment: Bill for Groceries $889

LARAMIE, Wyo. (NYT)—Dean Otte wheeled his flatbed truck up to the back door of the Ideal Food Market and began loading groceries; Mary Wood, the store manager, checked them off.

Once case of canned green beans. One case of canned plums. One case of mayonnaise. Two hundred pounds of sugar. One case of frozen broccoli. On and on it went, through typewritten pages, and half a storeroom, as they loaded.

"Am I starting to look a little green?" asked Linda Otte, Dean's wife. "There's good reason; it's time to write the check."

The amount: $889.09.

"That's not bad; last year it was over $1,100," said Mrs. Otte, smiling.

"But last year you bought twice as much," said Mrs. Wood, not smiling.

For weekly grocery shoppers, food price increases over the past year are usually swallowed in small, infuriating doses. For once-a-year shoppers like the Otte family, the food price spiral is swallowed in one whooping dose of astonishment.

"I had friends who shop a lot tell me, 'Oh, Linda, you're just going to die next time you go to the store,' " said Mrs. Otte. "Well, here I am and they were right. I thought maybe we could get by with less, but I may hate myself next year, what with President Ford saying prices could double again in two years if we're not careful."

The Ottes shop for basic groceries only once a year because they often get snowbound for weeks, even months, on their cattle ranch near the Medicine Bow National Forest, 93 miles by road from Laramie. The nearest telephone is 54 miles away, over a gravel road, which tends to disappear under snow in the winter. With a two-way radio, they can reach the mailman, or the John Deere dealer in Rock River, for forwarding phone messages. In semi-emergencies, getting out usually involves a long cold snowmobile ride. In dire emergencies, helicopters can be called in.

For meat, the Ottes slaughter their own beef. For dairy products, they milk cows and make cream, butter, and cottage cheese. For eggs, they have three dozen uneconomical hens.

"We figured they'd have to lay 220 dozen eggs at 90 cents a dozen just to pay for the feed I bought for them the other day," said Otte.

"But it's a question of either having eggs or not having them."

Fresh greens and vegetables are non-existent at the Otte ranch in winter.

"When we finally got out two winters ago, and went to a restaurant, I said, 'If that waitress brings me a jello salad, I'm going to throw it in her face,' " Otte recalled.

Being in the cattle business means that the grocery bill this year hurts even more. With cattle prices depressed, the object at the Otte ranch is to stop losing money. Inviting in autumn elk hunters helps some.

Actually it's the Bell-Otte Ranch, Incorporated. Mrs. Otte's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, live six miles down the road. Mrs. Bell has been a yearly shopper since 1931, when, she recalled, "A hundred dollars worth of groceries could get you through the year." Her husband's father dropped out of a trail herd from Texas in 1883 to homestead the ranch, which now encompasses some 27,000 acres, most of them dry and sagebrush-covered.

Between the two families Mrs. Bell cooks for two people and Mrs. Otte cooks for four are five freezers and lots of basement shelves. They buy from the Laramie Ideal on the store's plan of wholesale cost, plus 10 per cent.

This year they decided to compare some prices. A case of margarine that cost $12 last year was $19.09 this year. Sugar, which cost $1.29 for a 10-pound sack two years ago, was $4.78 this year. A case of canned soda pop which cost $1.94 two years ago, was $3.64 this year. A single package of spaghetti, which Mrs. Otte remembered buying for about 34 cents just last spring, cost 82 cents now.

"Surprised isn't the word," Mrs. Otte said, as she made out her check. "I'm hurt."

Doctors Say Coast Needs Help

PORT RENFREW — Patients at this southern Vancouver Island community appreciated Drs. Dale and Joan Stogryn so much they tried to keep them here with a petition.

The husband-and-wife team spent a season with commercial fishermen off Vancouver Island after a plea from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union to provincial Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

Joan said the season ran a bit late this year and they had to leave Port Renfrew before it ended.

The Stogryns will be making a report on their experiences to the Emergency Health Services Commission. They say there is a need for more doctors and first-aid-trained people or paramedics in remote areas of the British Columbia coast.

The Stogryns started the season at Goose Bay, 50 miles north of Port Hardy. Their only access was by air or water.

"The company estimated there were 1,000 to 2,000 fishermen in the area," said Dale.

The two young doctors were chosen because they had just finished interning at Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster. They gained experience in dealing with severe accidents and general practice cases during their work with numerous traffic victims and outpatients in the hospital's emergency department.

Jean said they treated about 75 fishermen at Goose Bay.

Dale said they had to fly out one person with an injured back and two others were referred to hospital. Mostly they handled small cases — sprains, skin poisonings from handling fish and stings from red jelly fish.

But at Port Renfrew, a fisherman was whipped into the sea by a rope snaked around his leg as it was pulled tight by a power skiff. His ankle was so severely broken it protruded through the skin.

"He lost a lot of blood and also got dunked in the water for five to 10 minutes or so, which doesn't help because of the cold," said Joan.

His transfer to a hospital in Victoria was completed within two hours.

"However it gave me time to stabilize the patient and the whole thing went smoothly," said Joan.

One problem with being doctors to fishing fleets is the same as being a doctor in remote areas, the Stogryns said — the isolation of the patients.

Dale said many patients stayed away because a trip to the doctor would mean a two-hour boat ride or more.

Joan said an ideal situation would be to have more doctors at strategic points in remote areas and more paramedics who could be on the spot at an emergency. There are first-aid-trained men working for fishing and logging companies on the coast now, but not enough, she said.

HUSBAND, wife doctor team, Dale and Joan Stogryn, served fishermen during past season near Port Renfrew.

$33 Million Budget For Schools

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The school board has given provisional approval to a $33 million budget for next year, a 20-per-cent increase over this year's budget.

Approval came at a board meeting Wednesday, about a week after the board approved a $26.9 million operating budget. The $33 million budget includes operating costs as well as capital expenditures.

Chairman Macdonald Burbidge said capital expenditures include major renovations to two secondary schools and construction of a satellite school next to Windsor High School.

The operating budget grew through additiona of 90 teachers to increase the district's staff to 1,130.

Final approval of the 1975 budget should be obtained in February, said Burbidge.

UNESCO Tribute

ROME (Reuter) — The Vatican has awarded the John XXIII International Peace Prize to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), an announcement said Thursday. The prize, established in 1963, involves a money award but Vatican officials have not revealed how much has been granted to UNESCO.

TV Webs Slate Second Season Debuts

BURR

Times News Services

The ABC television network says it will put seven new programs on the air early next year as mid-season replacements for two series already cancelled and four others that will be cancelled.

On Oct. 9 the network said it was cancelling The Texas Wheelers and Kodiak.

This week ABC added The New Land, Paper Moon, Nakia and The Sonny Comedy Revue starring Sonny Bono.

All are first-season programs that premiered in September.

ABC said its six new mid-season series are:

Toma, a new version of the hour-long police series ABC cancelled last year after the star, Tony Musante, asked out of the show. The new version stars Robert Blake, starts Jan. 10 and will appear Friday nights.

Saturday Night at the Movies, two hours of films which will start Jan. 11.

Hotel Baltimore, a half-hour Thursday night comedy series produced by Norman Lear and concerning life in a gone-to-seed hotel. Premiering on Jan. 16, it will be followed on that date by:

Karen, another half-hour comedy which stars Karen Valentine as a single career girl in Washington.

Barney Miller, starting Jan. 19, a half-hour New York police comedy series that will be aired Sunday nights and star Hal Linden.

S.W.A.T., a one-hour Monday night series about a special weapons and tactical team on the police force of a large city.

Caribe, also premiering on that date, is another hour-long police series that is set in Miami and stars Stacey Keach.

Ironside, starring Raymond Burr and in its eighth season, is being cancelled in January and replaced with an hour-long private detective series, NBC-TV said Thursday.

The new show, Archer, stars Brian Keith and is based on the Ross MacDonald novels about private detective Lew Archer. It will replace Ironside on Thursday nights starting Jan. 30, NBC said.

There would be no other evening program cancellations, the network added.

The Burr series was the third cut by NBC as part of its mid-season program changes, and the 11th network series cancelled since the season began in September.

CBS, after saying it will drop Sons and Daughters and The Paul Sand Show, is expected to cancel one or more additional series.

NBC previously said it was dropping Born Free after Jan. 13, succeeding it with a weekly Smothers Brothers variety show, and replacing Sierra from Dec. 19 to mid-March with The Mac Davis music and variety show.

After that, the network says, the Davis show will be replaced by two half-hour comedies, Sunshine, and The Bob Crane Show, the later previously entitled Second Chance.

NBC, which has said the Davis program might return next fall as a regular series, said Thursday it also is cancelling three daytime game shows, Name That Tune, Winning Streak and Jeopardy.

BIG SWITCH PLAYED ON GAME SHOW IDEA

NEW YORK (AP) — About every game shown on television has a play-at-home version on sale in toy stores. But a new play-at-home TV game now coming on the market isn't seen on television. Nor is it likely to be.

The reason: Its goal is to encourage less TV viewing by children.

The game is Switch. It's being sold by mail by Action for Children's Television, an activist group which, since 1968, has demanded higher quality children's programs without commercial on television.

The general aim of the $1.50 plaything "is to let families know there's something else to life than television," says Peggy Charren, president of ACT, based in Newtonville, Mass.

BUT IT'S NOT CRUEL TO SWALLOW A FROG!

MARKET DRAYTON, England (UPI) — Derek Podmore was not cruel when he swallowed a live frog in a pub, a magistrates' court ruled Thursday.

Derek Podmore was hauled into court and charged with causing the frog unnecessary suffering.

Frank Fuller said he saw Podmore take the frog out of a can, gulp a mouthful of beer, swallow the frog and wash it down with more beer.

"He said it was delicious, although he could feel the frog jumping around in his stomach," Fuller testified.

Vet Elvred Jones testified that in his opinion swallowing the frog was cruel. "It must have died either from suffocation or shock," he said. But the magistrates ruled otherwise.

The Worth Of a Kiss

LONDON (UPI) — How much is a kiss worth? Judge William Strabb values a lifetime of kisses at $6,400.

The judge awarded the money in damages Thursday to a 23-year-old housewife who lost the ability to kiss when she was injured in an automobile accident seven weeks after she was married.

Her injury is "no trivial matter" for a young wife and mother, the judge said.

SOMEONE IN CHICAGO WAGES PRIVATE ANTI-PORN BATTLE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Explosions rocked two theatres specializing in adult films, a dynamite bomb was found in a third theatre and a fire was discovered at a fourth Thursday night.

One person was injured in the series of blasts.

"Apparently, somebody just doesn't like skin flicks," one police investigator said.

The first explosion rocked the Rialto Theatre in the Loop, blowing out a portion of the back wall of the theatre and leaving the movie screen in a shambles.

Only a handful of patrons was in the movie house at the time and there were no injuries.

Police speculated the blast may have been caused by a bomb placed on a window at the rear of the building.

Minutes later and less than a block away, a small fire was discovered on the roof of the Follies Theatre. No damage was done and no one was injured. Police said the fire was definitely set.

Another explosion occurred at the Newberry Theatre on the near north side, injuring one person. He was listed in fair condition with cuts on the face and legs. The explosion ripped a door on the side of the building off its hinges.

Another bomb was planted at the Bijou Theatre near the Newberry but only the blasting caps of the bomb went off, police said.

Authorities said the bomb consisted of several sticks of dynamite in a plastic bag.

"That could have made a hell of a mess if it went off," a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said there were no suspects in the bombings, but the incidents "certainly appear connected at this time."

2nd Wage Hike Given

TORONTO (CP) — An agreement signed Thursday between the Steel Co. of Canada (Stelco) and the United Steelworkers of America will give 16,000 Stelco employees a second interim wage increase starting Aug. 1.

The increase, ranging between 15 cents and $1.06 an hour, follows an interim 15 cents-an-hour raise agreed to by Stelco and local 1005 in April to compensate for cost-of-living increases.

Bill Elliott, an international representative for the steelworkers, said he believes the raise—to be given as a bonus—marks the first time a company has granted two wage increases during the term of a collective agreement.

Most workers now earn $4.81 an hour.

Employees Organized

Seventeen employees of Acklands Ltd. retail-wholesale operation at 2015 Government have been organized by Local 351 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The union has applied for and is awaiting certification by the provincial labor relations board.

CANDY VANDALISM: DENTIST FINED $12

MASSET, (CP) — Dr. Robert Orr, a dentist who overturned candy counters in a store Oct. 22 to protest the effects of candy on children's teeth, has been ordered to pay $12 in damages in return for a conditional court discharge.

He was found guilty in court Thursday night of wilful damage to the Delmos Co-Op Store.

Orr's lawyer, Carrie Linde, said he plans to appeal the decision.

Orr, the only dentist for 5,600 people in the Queen Charlotte Islands off the north coast of B.C., said this week he is giving up his practice to work with Haida Indian children and plans to write a book on dental health.

Meanwhile Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Thursday he is sympathetic to the plight of Orr.

Cocke said he understands the frustration of a dentist working alone in such an area and this situation points out the need for better distribution of medical and dental services.

Cocke said his department hopes to have an announcement early next year on development of a provincial dental scheme. But he says the big problems facing such a scheme are manpower distribution and lack of prevention.

To solve the manpower problem, the health minister said alternatives are being considered, such as New Zealand's para-dental program. He ruled out a dentiecare program similar to medicare.

Heath Hangs on to Post

LONDON (UPI) — Conservative Party Leader Edward Heath, under heavy fire for leading his party to defeat in three out of the last four general elections, has won the first round in a fight to oust him from the party leadership.

But he has agreed to an immediate review of the procedure under which the Conservative party elects its leaders.

"I am the servant of the party," Heath told a critical meeting of rank-and-file Conservative party members of parliament Thursday night.

Heath met his critics head-on at a meeting of the so-called "1922 committee." Its membership consists of all rank-and-file Conservative party lawmakers.

The meeting was private, but party officials said there was no strong "Heath must go" demand.

Committee chairman Edward Du Cann, one of Heath's most outspoken critics since he lost the Oct. 10 general election, said, "It was a cordial and good humored meeting and the statement by the leader of the party was well received."

Another committee member, who refused to be identified, said, "Nobody said Ted must go. Equally, nobody said Ted must stay."

Since 1965 the Conservative party has elected its leaders by ballots of all Conservative members of the House of Commons. Heath himself was the first party leader to be elected in this way.

But the rules set up then made no provision for getting rid of the leader. Unless he quits or dies there is no way of ousting him.

GATT Solution Sought To Canada, EEC Issue

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada and the European Economic Community after a long wrangle as to how much this country should get in trade compensation because of Britain's entering the common market have referred the multi-million dollar dispute to a GATT panel.

It is a unique development in world trading circles.

The dispute between Canada and the EEC has been simmering for months. When they were unable to reach agreement Canada proposed the establishment of a panel of experts by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) to examine the claims on both sides.

The panel will bring down a decision as to which side is in the right. However the finding of the panel will not necessarily be binding, government officials in external and the industry, trade and commerce departments said Friday.

The historic move could have a big impact on Canada's relations with the EEC. It also sets a precedent in the world trading community which is being watched closely by all countries involved.

Canada along with a number of other nations affected by Britain's joining the EEC has been negotiating for many months to obtain fair compensation for the trading advantages it lost by the United Kingdom's action.

There has been agreement on the dollar size of the debt owed to this country. It is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $600,000,000.

But there has been no agreement on how that debt is to be discharged.

Under the GATT, Article 24, paragraph six, it is provided that in the eventuality of a nation suffering severe trading losses through such a development, the adversely affected country shall be properly compensated.

Canada and Britain have been close trading partners for many years. There were British Commonwealth tariff perferences which worked to the advantages of both countries. There were agreements binding the tariffs at certain low preferential rates.

Some of those "bound tariffs" went by the board when Britain joined the EEC. Canada has watched as tariffs have climbed above fixed levels, one official explained, and consequently this country is entitled to compensation under the GATT.

This led to a series of negotiations between Canada and the ECC and negotiations between the EEC and other countries affected, including the United States and Japan for example.

Finally after long drawn out meeting the other nations and EEC have reached agreement. But as of last July Canada had still to accept the agreement.

The EEC said then it had had enough of negotiating. As far as it was concerned it was now ready to propose forms of settlement. But Canada said "hold it." Canada still was not satisfied.

The Americans and the EEC have since entered into an agreement. But Canada said that was not good enough for this country. This proposal was not tailored to meet Canada's situation. It provided compensations for the U.S. and Japan and other affected nations.

The catch was that there were reductions in a number of products for those nations which did not benefit Canada because this country was not an exporter of those products.

The Residents,
Municipality of Esquimalt

Dear Neighbours:

There is no place like home.

On November 16th you can contribute to our home community by voting at the Esquimalt Recreation Centre, 527 Fraser Street between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. However if you cannot vote on that date, an Advanced Poll will be open at the Municipal Hall on Thursday, November 14th and Friday, November 15th, from 8:30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

In 1973 only 36.12% of eligible voters exercised their privilege to vote. This year, only you, as an individual resident among 7646 voting residents of Esquimalt, can improve our Polling statistics.

Please get involved in our neighbourhood and vote. Now you do have a choice.

Sincerely,

Robert L. Peden

Inflation Bypasses U.S. Wines

NEW YORK (UPI) — American wine drinkers can look forward to better wines at steady or even lower prices for the next several years, an industry spokesman says.

"It's a confluence of weird circumstances," said Alexander McNally, international wine manager of Heublein, Inc., noting that the amount of wine available is growing at a faster rate than the demand.

As a result, he said, the traditional economic pressures of supply and demand will bring the price down.

"You can always lay off people in the auto industry and just stop producing cars. It's different in the wine industry. The vines are there and they produce grapes."

He also said in an interview that the wine scandal in France will have little influence on prices in this country, except for a possible trend away from prestigious French wines to other wines.

Heublein distributes both domestic and foreign wines, including some of the imported Chateau wines.

The 1974 California crop — just harvested — was a large one, McNally said, calling it "the best in the last 20 years in terms of quality and one of the most outstanding as far as weather and grape maturity.

"And, for the first time in 15 years, more wine-type than raisin varieties were harvested."

Americans are drinking more wine, McNally said. "The growth rate is between 7 and 10 per cent a year. There hadn't been enough good wine to meet the market demands."

Then about five years ago, vintners began planting more vines, both in Europe and in America, he said.

In California, the number of acres planted in grapes has tripled — most of it high-quality wine grapes. In the next four years, McNally said, the wines produced from those grapes will hit the market.

"There will be more wine from Europe. It will be enormously large in California. It costs very little more to produce a lot of wine than it does to produce just a little wine.

"So the price of new wine will be going down. And even the wine that is already on the market will keep a steady price. With inflation, that means that, in relation to other products, it, too, will be less expensive.

"There'll be a lot of wine and a lot of selection. With inflation the way it is a lot of people are doing without those Swiss vacations. Instead, they're staying at home, drinking wine, and going to the ball game."

He said many companies are now introducing new, high-quality wines that sell for less than $2 a bottle. He noted an Inglenook Navelle French Colombard, which sells for $1.88 and a Colony Zinfadel, which sells for $1.69. His firm distributes both labels.

France Stomps on Fraud

PARIS (UPI) — France is drafting strict new controls to prevent wine dealers from such abuses as putting fancy labels on fermented grape juice doctored to pass for expensive vintages.

Officials have begun work on the measures without waiting for a Bordeaux court to hand down verdicts in the "winegate" trial, which has cast a shadow over France's wine industry.

The court trying 18 merchants on charges of falsely labelling or doctoring wine completed hearing testimony last week and is expected to hand down its decision Dec. 18.

In Bordeaux, the Association of Generic Bordeaux Wine Producers has proposed tough controls on dealers, including a "conformity certificate" for bulk wines and stricter labeling rules.

The association says wine bottles should include labels of guarantee and vintners ought to use separate warehouses for ordinary and expensive vintages.

In Brussels, Common Market officials said they are also drawing up "standards and quality control to prevent wine fraud."

The French agriculture ministry has hastily signed a new decree limiting the number of wine grapes grown per acre to keep quality high. Grapes from intensively planted land can only be used to make liquers.

"These severe restrictions will improve quality and in the long run gain back for France its reputation for fine wines," one American wine critic said. "In the short run, there will be a few lean years especially for Bordeaux."

The "Bordeaux 18" defendents have been accused of using chemicals to upgrade wine illegally and of altering their records in a cover-up.

Acting on a tip, the government fraud squad forced its way into the offices of two defendants, Yvan and Lionel Cruse, last year, and claimed to have found 2 million bottles of falsely labeled wine.

UNDERGROUND LIB

SATELLITE BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Satellite Beach City manager Richard Shinn gave a slight push to the women's liberation movement Thursday when he approved a requisition for a "personhole" cover for a water main.

The order form, which went to Shinn for approval, was filled out by a woman clerk in the street water department, who changed the wording from "manhole cover" to the term showing no gender.

Shinn said later he signed the requsition "as part of our women's lib program."

FOR OAK BAY ALDERMAN
RE-ELECT
JOHN GOULT

Over the last four years the direction of Oak Bay Municipal government has changed. There was a philosophy that growth for growth's sake alone was good, that bigness was always better. At successive elections Oak Bay citizens have returned aldermen who believe as I do in the preservation of Oak Bay's character and in the improvement of the quality of its life.

I believe we can limit new apartment construction to existing zones and indeed improve the zoning by-law. I believe we can build our new buildings better and more attractively and in that we have made a start. I believe that municipal services to people have been and can continue to be improved. I believe the people of Oak Bay desire co-operation with other Municipalities but not amalgamation and that they want a productive partnership with the Regional Board to improve the whole area.

SOLUTION MONDAY

4 Blood Clinics Scheduled

Four Red Cross blood donor clinics are scheduled for next week in downtown Victoria.

Monday's clinic at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St., will be open from 2:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Location is the same for Tuesday's which will be open from 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9 p.m.

On Wednesday donations will be accepted at the council anteroom at Victoria City Hall between 9 a.m. and noon or 1 and 4 p.m.

On Thursday the clinic will be in the Princess Charlotte Room of the Empress hotel from 2 to 5 and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, West made what appeared to him to be a logical interpretation of the North-South bidding; and, as a consequence, he elected to lead a trump against South's game contract. Unfortunately for his side, the lead turned out to be a costly one. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

♠ 8 5 2
♥ 5

♣ K Q 10 9

WEST
♠ Q 9 7 4

♥ 3
♦ Q 6 3

SOUTH
♠ K
♥ A K Q J 10 9 8 7 2
♦ K 5
♣ 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♥.

South's opening two-club bid was artificial and forcing for one round. North's two-diamond response was artificial and forcing, announcing fewer than seven high-card points. South's rebid of three hearts, although not forcing, guaranteed a solid heart suit. North, having the most he could have been expected to have, elected to bid the game in hearts.

North's raise to four hearts had its effect on West, who felt that the bid was based on shortness in either spades, diamonds, or clubs (who would have believed that the shortness was in trumps?) And so, in an attempt to reduce dummy's ruffing ability, West chose a trump as his opening lead.

Had West elected to lead the six of trumps, the deal would have drifted into oblivion, for declarer would then probably have ended up losing one spade, two diamonds, and one club. However, West selected the trump four as his opening lead. As is evident, the boards' five-spot was played perforce, East followed with the three, and south dropped the deuce from his own hand.

When declarer had recovered from his astonishment at having gained access to his "entryless" dummy, he quickly led the jack of diamonds off the board. When East followed suit with the three, declarer played the five from his own hand. West took the trick with the ace, and that was that. Declarer's only losers were a diamond, a spade, and a club.

Note that if West had led the six of trumps at trick one, declarer would have had no entry to dummy, and would have had to play continually from his own hand. But, not being clairvoyant, and knowing that he was not going to win the trick, West naturally led the lowest trump he had.

LSD Charge Dismissed

NANAIMO — A charge against two Victoria men of possessing LSD for the purpose of trafficking was dismissed in provincial court here Thursday.

Brian Gadbois, 22, of 200 Dallas, and Rudy Cinaflone, 19, of 2721 Rock Bay, were charged with possessing the drug Sept. 28.

They had originally been accused of possessing cocain and MDA for the purpose of trafficking, but the charge was changed Thursday.

In the same court, Gadbois pleaded guilty to resisting arrest Sept. 28 by a Nanaimo RCMP officer and was fined $250.

Veteran Traded

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia '76ers have traded forward Tom Van Arsdale to Atlanta Hawks for centre-forward Clyde Lee and a third round draft pick next year. The 31-year-old Van Arsdale, a 10-year National Basketball Association veteran, lost his starting position this year to Billy Cunningham.

A Perfect Time For Clean-Up

Several hours of this weekend would be well and pleasantly occupied outdoors with whatever odds and ends you have had brought to your attention during the last week or two.

You may have thought everything was attended to but as the season progresses you see things to be improved before winter.

Among these suggestions spot the ones applying to your garden and start first thing tomorrow morning.

You may have rooted cutting of hardy shrubs still in cans or pots from perhaps a year ago; now is a fine time to get them out. If more than one in a container, knock out the whole ball of roots and separate carefully by shaking the tangled roots apart.

A small patch of ground sheltered from winter wind will be a perfect home for these plants until spring.

Put them just far enough apart so that a nice ball of soil can be taken up when you plant them permanently.

Still not sure where you want them? Then you put each rooted cutting into a 48-ounce can, having three holes punched in the bottom for drainage. Also use stones at the bottom and a porous mixture of coarse peatmoss and soil from compost heap.

As well as rose cuttings with masses of good roots, I came across some forgotten seedlings of Meconopsis, the Blue Tibetan-poppy, in a small container. Remembering they like a deep root run, I've put each seedling into a 48-ounce can, also with good drainage and a soil mix of sandy compost.

Now that the rain has dampened the soil, pulling out perennial weeds is almost a pleasure for you can see you've got the whole root system.

Along path edges and near old established shrubs is a favorite place for all kinds of deep rooted weeds. Birds bring some seeds and deposit them when enjoying the seclusion of large shrubs. Other seeds such as thistles and dandelions are blown in on late summer winds, lodging wherever an obstruction occurs.

We scarcely notice the plants in their first year but as they flower we recognize them. By that time, roots are well down. Now we can get most of them out. Put them into the middle of a compost heap, they will rot away into good soil.

Among rock plants, do the weeding very carefully using bare hands if possible to avoid damaging rare paints.

Should you find a healthy weed growing through a mat plant that you know has a deep root system, work at pulling out the weed entirely without disturbing your wanted plant.

In the vegetable garden, gather and take off yellowing leaves of perennial broccoli, kale, and sprouts. Take only yellow leaves, don't strip green ones.

Sugar pod, or edible pod, peas still give a handful of pods twice a week so we leave the vines. The supports of other peas, tomatoes and pole beans have already been stored. Discard broken or poor supports.

A small bonfire of bramble cane prunings rids you of woody plant material which takes too long to compost.

The ashes are useful if kept dry in a can for spring sprinkling around onions and the dianthus family — pinks and carnations.

Before you quit for the day have you forgotten some daffodil or tulip bulbs in the basement? They certainly should be making roots in good garden soil now.

Not a bad day's work even though you have only a half of these jobs to do.

Grits Bare Finances

By GLENN SOMERVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—The public registry on Liberal cabinet members' financial holdings—finally opened Friday after months of delay—bares relatively little about their real personal wealth.

Cabinet members were told last December by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that they must either set up a trust arrangements or publicly register their holdings to comply with conflict-of-interest guides.

Only seven cabinet ministers chose to declare their holdings publicly, without any trust agreements, which permits them to continue administering their property personally.

They were Finance Minister John Turner, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, Justice Minister Otto Lang, Regional Economic Expansion Minister Don Jamieson, Manpower Minister Robert Andras and Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner.

Five new cabinet ministers were given an extension until Dec. 31 to put their financial affairs in order and file a statement with D. R. Taylor, appointed last May as assistant deputy registrar general to handle registries under the auspices of the corporate affairs department.

The remaining 17 cabinet members either set up blind or frozen trusts for their holdings or had their property declared exempt from registry listing requirements.

Prime Minister Trudeau's declaration shows that all his property was put in a frozen trust last March 18, which means that the holdings cannot be bought or sold while the trust is in effect.

The declaration form does not require that cabinet members reveal the property that is in the trust.

MacEachen Shuffle on Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen refused Thursday to commit Canada to additional international food aid this year until he hears what other countries are willing to do.

He sidestepped the question during repeated questioning from Opposition leader Robert Stanfield, who based his questions on news reports from the Rome food conference.

MacEachen said Canada has set aside $50 million that could be used to buy about 250,000 tons of additional grain this year.

But additional aid should not be decided upon until it was shown that other countries would "put money on the table" to help countries in need of food.

But the minister, in comments in the Commons and later to reporters, was careful not to say that the amount of assistance Canada gives this year is dependent upon the response of other countries.

The background of the situation is this:

—If grain-producing countries were to make up the shortage of up to 10 million tons of grain faced by the world's hungry this year, Canada's share might be one million tons, worth about $200 million.

—As part of its regular aid program, Canada is committed to giving about 750,000 tons of grain this year.

—This situation should not be confused with the long-term food problem which has seen Canada commit one million tons of grain a year, starting next year.

MacEachen has said that $50 million is available for food aid this year but has refused to designate it to specific spending.

How Canada spends that amount will not be known until after a meeting of the International Wheat Council in London later this month, by which time available stocks and current world needs may be determined.

Rights 'Too Equal'

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments to the War Veterans Allowance Act do not meet the stated government objective of treating men and women equally under the act, the Senate was told Thursday.

"The equalities propounded by this bill appear to be more equal in favor of the female by five years," said Senator Rheal Belisle (PC—Ontario)).

"The male veterans must still wait until age 60 to gain an allowance, whereas a female veteran or the widow of a veteran or the common-law widow of a veteran can begin receiving benefits on reaching the age of 55."

A BATTLE WON!

OTTAWA (CP) — Dean Whiteway, the MP who pitched a tent on Parliament Hill to dramatize postal service shortcomings in Sandy Hook, Man., won his battle Thursday.

The Selkirk Progressive Conservative said he was notified during the day that the post office will install "brand spanking-new, metal-lock boxes" for the 82 residents of the centre, located about 40 miles north of Winnipeg.

"Oh, it's a great day for Sandy Hook. I've got good news to send back there," he beamed.

Last week, the newly-elected MP erected a tent in a corridor near the office of Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey. It was ordered removed two hours later by Commons Speaker James Jerome, but not before Mr. Whiteway had made his point.

Sandy Hook residents had been asking for extended postal hours. Their post offiee closes during lunchtime, then shuts for the day at 3 p.m.

Allmand Denies Farm Boss Quiz

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand denied Thursday that the RCMP used a Saskatoon travel agency to gather information on Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union.

"They say they are not watching Atkinson," the minister told reporters after being questioned in the Commons.

Bill George Thompson, manager of P. Lawson Travel Ltd., said in a telephone interview from Saskatoon that he was asked for information by RCMP officers "about the time" Atkinson organized a 1971 tractor demonstration on the Trans-Canada Highway in Prince Edward Island.

"It was just to find out what flights he was on," Thompson said. "And it was just the once.

"They (the RCMP) do it with Air Canada, with everybody."

Atkinson, reached at NFU offices in Saskatoon, said he was angered by the disclosure and has sent a letter to Allmand asking for an investigation.

The RCMP uses all available sources of information during an investigation, but he had been told that no travel agency checks were made on Atkinson, Allmand added.

Although Atkinson had been arrested during the P.E.I. demonstration, he said, there was no reason to suspect him of subversive activities.

Further checks would be made with the RCMP to clarify the situation, he said.

The subject was raised initially Thursday by Lorne Nystrom (NDP—York-Melville) who cited news reports indicating an agency was being used to check the whereabouts of Atkinson and native leaders.

Allmand said he has not checked whether the RCMP monitors travel agencies for information on native leaders.

Atkinson said he will recommend to NFU officials that they withdraw their account for Thompson's agency.

"This is serious. It has serious implications for the National Farmers Union. I resent very much it happening."

Thompson said he can understand the NFU leader's reaction.

"The whole thing makes him sound almost like a subversive. He has a right to be upset."

Allmand also was asked in the Commons whether the RCMP is investigating other union leaders or members of Parliament.

Such investigations would only take place if individuals were suspected of committing criminal offences "or if there were serious suspicions about their committing breaches against the security of the country," Allmand said.

PERSEVERANCE PAYS FOR EDMONTON MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Perseverence paid off Thursday for Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) when the Commons approved in principle a private bill he had unsuccessfull introduced four times before.

It would require electoral boundary commissions to give reasons for the changes they recommend in federal riding boundaries.

Lambert said members of Parliament could more effectively criticize proposed changes if they knew the reasons behind the recommendations.

MPs still would not be allowed to amend the recommendations of the independent commissions. However, the commissions might be persuaded to amend their own recommendations if MPs were able to make more informed criticism of the proposals.

Lambert said he prefers the old system of a special Commons committee recommending boundary changes. But it was unlikely the new system of independent boundary commissions would be abolished.

"I think every commission should be punished by having to go and try to service the constituencies that they have set set up," he said.

Huge Ottawa Grab —Stanfield

STANFIELD

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has launched "a massive two-pronged assault" to grab control of natural resources from the provinces, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday night.

During a sometimes-stormy Commons debate on the proposed petroleum administration act, Stanfield said the bill, which would give Ottawa final authority to set the selling price of domestically-produced and oil and natural gas, is the first prong in the attack.

The second, he said, is the proposal, outlined in the May 6 government budget, to remove the oil company right to claim provincial royalty payments as a federal income tax deduction.

The budget was defeated by the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats in the last Parliament, but Stanfield said he expects the scheme to be revived when Finance Minister John Turner brings down a new one Monday night.

"What we're witnessing is a very powerful, very determined attempt by Ottawa to take control of the administration of natural resources in this country . . ." he charged.

War Grave Visit Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A delegation including veterans of the Second World War Italian campaign will visit Canadian cemeteries in Italy next May, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald announced Thursday.

MacDonald, who will lead the delegation, said memorial services will be held in most of the cemeteries for 5,000 dead.

The visit would coincide with the 30th anniversary of the liberation of Italy

LONG-TERM SUGAR PLAN STUDIED

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will consider signing a long-term sugar supply agreement with a sugar-producing country, Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Sugar supplies generally have been handled well by private industry but a government-to-government supply arrangement "is a matter which will be considered," he told the Commons.

He did not elaborate, but Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellett said outside the Commons that talks on future sugar supplies have been held with the Cuban ambassador. He said prices were not discussed but did not give details.

Gillespie's remarks came in response to Leonel Beaudoin (SC—Richmond) who said sugar prices would drop 65 per cent if Canada could arrange a long-term supply deal with the European Economic Community.

Such an agreement would knock out middlemen who contribute to current high prices, he said.

Break Chains: Davey

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, chairman of a 1970 study on the mass media, says the government should consider breaking up the country's big newspaper chains.

It's too late to establish a press ownership review board because the chains have grown substantially since the recommendation for such a board four years ago by his committee, Davey said Thursday.

The only alternative is action to break up the chains before they engulf almost the entire newspaper industry, he added.

When the media study, which became known as the "Davey report," was issued in December, 1970, chains controlled 60 per cent of Canada's daily newspapers.

Group ownership now has reached 80 per cent, he said.

The committee said the trend could be stopped by a review board to screen chain take-overs of independently-owned newspapers and block those that were not considered in the public interest.

Any such action now would be ineffective and would only act as a punitive measure against the few remaining non-chain newspaper, Davey said.

North Saanich: Six Candidates

Six candidates will compete in Saturday's election for the three open aldermanic seats on North Saanich council.

All seats are for two-year terms.

Incumbent Ald. George Cumpston is seeking re-election to both council and the regional board. Ald. Eric Sherwood, who is now in the middle of a two-year term, is also seeking election as North Saanich's representative on the regional board.

Candidates for council include:

BEA BOND, 9019 Lochside, Empress Hotel office manager.

One of her main concerns is the construction of an acute care wing at the Mount Newton hospital. People in the area are pleased to have the extended care hospital, she says, but the need for acute care facilities is urgent.

Parks and the tri-municipal recreation centre are both needed for the community, she says, and she hopes the recreation complex will be built within a few years.

She is also concerned with getting a more standardized water system for North Saanich.

GEORGE CUMPSTON, 11338 Chalet Road, retired chartered accountant.

Cumpston has spent six years as a Nort Saanich alderman and two years on the Capital Region Board.

He says his own particular concern is the lack of people with experience on North Saanich council.

He says he is concerned with inflation in the municipality: "It is making a mess of things."

He says that because he is retired he has the time to attend to both municipal and regional matters.

BARRY DU TEMPLE, 930 Ardmore, golf course employee.

He is concerned with the rights of the individual resident of the municipality versus the rights of the whole community.

Individuals are often hurt in the course of community planning, he says, and action must be taken to ensure their rights.

Laws must be carefully thought out, he says, so community and individual rights can be brought together without anyone getting hurt.

GILBERT MONTGOMERY, 1860 Swartz Bay Road, federal government employee.

The Peninsula area is in dire need of a new acute care hospital, he says.

He also supports the concept of a regional plan for the whole district as an overall plan is necessary for development of an area.

The tri-municipal recreation committee is important to the area, he says, and he thinks that with the three Peninsula communities working together, a recreation complex can be built.

PETER TREDGETT, 10841 Deep Cover Road, director of Eaton's interior decorating department.

Tredgett feels a full plan should be made of available water in the municipality as well as the immediate and future needs of residents. "We should find out as much as we can about it and then go from there."

Orderly plainning for water and sewers in the area are necessary and good business methods should be applied to the local government so the taxpayers' money won't be waster.

GEORGE WESTWOOD, 9705 Glenelg, retired naval officer.

One of his main concerns for the municipality is the protection of the quality of life now enjoyed. He says the area must be protected from unplanned development and is concerned that growth for growth's sake not take place.

He says he will try to keep municipal costs and taxes down and is concerned with the lack of progress on the acute care wing of the Peninsula hospital.

North Saanich's "fragmented" water system needs to be brought together, he says.

Incumbent Ald. ERIC SHERWOOD, 1968 McTavish, businessman, is running against George Cumpston for the position of regional representative.

Sherwood says he is concerned with the escalation of growth on the Peninsula and feels it needs to be controlled and directed to certain areas. This can only be done on a regional basis, he says.

Communities tend to develop on their own without regard for other communities in the region, he says and he believes in co-operation with other municipalities in the area "if we are to attain a satisfying quality of life."

Paintings on Show

PARIS (AFP) — An exhibition of 78 works by French-Canadian painter Jean-Paul Lemieux opened at the Modern Art Museum Thursday. The paintings, completed between 1956 and 1973, consist of portraits, landscapes and family scenes.

Judge Says No

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — A judge ruled Thursday it was indecent for Bernita van Heerden 21, to dance naked in the first Miss Nude South Africa competition. He imposed a $288 fine and a 120-day suspended jail sentence.

Today's Highlights

Santa Claus Parade, on 2, 6 and 8. Eaton's 70th annual parade brings Santa Claus to town. Ernie Coombs (as Mr. Dressup) reports on Channel 2 and 6 coverage from 9:30 to 11 a.m., and Romper Room's Miss Betty reports for Channel 8's coverage from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Wide World of Sports, on 8 at 4:30, and 4 at 5. Events include coverage of the 18th World Gymnastic Championships taped at Varna, Bulgaria. Among the top entrants in the women's events are Luimilla Turischeva and Olga Korbyt; gold medalists from the USSR. (90 mins.)

Famous Classic Tales, on 12 at 5. An animated version of Jules Verne's 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. (60 mins.)

Evening at Symphony, on 9 at 8:30. Conductor Michael Tilson Thomas and pianist Misha Dichter combine their talents with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a performance of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor. (60 mins.)

World at War, on 12 at 8:30. Battle of Stalingrad (August 1942 — February 1943) — a bitter German defeat at the hands of the Russians. Films re-create the fierce battle — the Russians' refusal to flee; the frozen, starving Germans trying to fight. Also, a dramatic re-enactment shows the Russians surrounding the best of Hitler's troops. (60 mins.)

Roads to Freedom, on 9 at 10. Debut of Jean Paul Sartre's drama examining the collapse of pre-Second World War France and the essence of existence. Sartre focuses on three people: an intellectual, a homosexual and a Communist — each trapped in a moral crisis and each unable to think or act decisively. (60 mins.)

SANTA CLAUS ushers in Christmas when he arrives with Eaton's traditional children's parade to be telecast on Saturday morning at 9:30 on Channels 2, 6 and 8.

THE OSMONDS, one of the most popular contemporary singing groups today, welcome guest stars Andy Williams and composer Isaac Hayes to an hour-long family musical special to be telecast on Saturday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8. One of the program's highlights will be the inclusion of selections from the Osmonds' highly-acclaimed Las Vegas stage act.

SARTRE DRAMAS FOR ADULTS ONLY

The Roads to Freedom, a 13-part BBC series, will debut on Channel 9 Saturday, November 19 at 10:00 p.m.

According to General Manger, Dr. Richard J. Meyer, "Channel 9 would like to emphasize that much of the material contained in this series is adult in nature. That is the reason we have slotted the series to air as late as 10:00 p.m. on Saturday. We recommend that parents do not permit their younger children to watch it at all and to use discretion in letting their high schoolers watch it.

"Since tht series is based on the work of Jean-Paul Sartre, France's leading contemporary novelist, essayist and playwright, we do not feel that Roads to Freedom is a classic and anticipate that it will be enjoyed by a large adult audience."

B.C. History Comes to Life In CBC Radio Drama Series

A calvacade of colorful characters from the gold rush era parades through a series on B.C. history written by playwright George Ryga for The Bush and The Salon. Titled, Miners, Gentlemen and Other Hard Cases, Ryga describes it as "contemporary reinterpretation of B.C. in the latter part of the 19th century. It highlights individuals as catalysts of history, and by going back to our roots, brings to light our own mythology".

The six-part series will be broadcast Fridays at 9:03 p.m. from November 22 to December 27 on both CBC AM and CBC FM Radio.

Ryga has based his scripts on stories from N. L. Barlee's, now defunct Canada West magazine. The two writers are neighbors at Summerland, B.C. Each hour-long program has two parts, and a sub-title: She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain — Or Will She? (November 22); Measure For Measure in the Pioneer Court (November 29); The House-warming and the Claim-bake (December 6) Fiddler Bill's Yarn (December 13); A Claim Is Like A Beautiful Dame (December 20); and A Workman's Course is Full of Woe (December 27).

The mining era in the Kootenay-Bounadry region is seen from the vantage point of 1974 through the eyes of a a newspaper editor. The style is entertaining, rather than informative in traditional textbook style, and ballads, arranged and performed by Dick Clements, are interspersed throughout the episodes.

seen from the vantage point

Since 1962, a number of works by Ryga have been given exposure on CBC Radio and TV. Ryga first came to national attention with The Ecstasy of Rita Joe (the Royal Winnipeg Ballet version of this play will be telecast on CBC-TV's Musicamera series Wednesday, Novemer 20 at 8:30 p.m.). Some of his other plays include Captives of the Faceless Drummer (also aired on CBC Radio), Sunrise on Sarah, and Portrait of Angelica.

Movies

Dr. Strangelove (xxxx), on 7 at 6. This 1964 masterpiece of cinema satire, produced and directed by Stanley Kubrick, is quite simply one of the greatest, funniest, and most shattering motion pictures ever made. Kubrick casts a perceptive, but jaundiced eye on a crazed U.S. Air Force general who is determined to save the world-from an imagined Communist takeover — and nearly starts World War Three in the process. Peter Sellers plays three different roles brilliantly, and Sterling Hayden portraying the general, gives the best performance of his career. George C. Scott is equally brilliant. A classic movie that makes a pertinent and devastating statement about the U.S. military. Recommended.

Where Eagles Dare, on 4 at 8. No rating available on this 1969 movie rendering of Alistair MacLean's novel about a crack Second World War commando team, disguised as Germans, that tries to rescue an American officer held in an impregnable fortress in Bavaria. An excellent cast includes Richard Burton, Clint Eastwood, Mary Ure, Patrick Wymark and Anton Differing.

Pepi (xxxx), on 6 at 8:30. Alan Arkin's flawless, luminous performance as a New York Puerto Rican widower who wants a better life for his two sons, is the highlight of this 1969 drama. He will win your heart as he comes up with an outrageous plan to set his boys adrift in a boat off the coast of Florida in the hopes of their finding a better home with some wealthy people he is sure will rescue his children. The movie has charm and pathos in well-measured amounts, and is beautifully directed by Arthur Hiller.

Salt and Pepper (xx), on 2 at 9. A 1968 British-made hipster comedy about a couple of swinging London club owners, Charles Salt played by Sammy Davis Jr. and Christopher Pepper portrayed by Peter Lawford, who unwittingly and unwillingly become involved in murder and international intrigue. Filmed on location in London.

The Godfather (xxxx), on 5 at 9. (Part 1). A two-part showing (conclusion on Monday, same time and channel of Hollywood's all-time box-office hit, the 1972 adaptation of Mario Puzo's best-seller. Set in the 1940s, the story focuses on the Corleones, a fictional Mafia family headed by a strong-willed partiarch — the Godfather — and the family's bloody struggle for power among organized-crime factions. Powerful action (Marlon Brando — Oscar winner for Best Actor), brilliant direction (Frances Ford Coppola) and a fine screenplay (Puzo and Coppola), plus superb editing, combine to paint a compelling portrait of family pride, broad corruption and remorseless violence. Recommended (but due to excessive violence, not for the whole family).

High Plains Drifter, on 8 at 9. An unpreviewed 1973 western with Clint Eastwood once again portraying the mysterious and deadly man with no name. Eastwood directed this violent revenge tale filmed in the style of the Italian westerns he made for Sergio Leone (The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, A Fistfull of Dollars, etc.)

Paranoia, on 13 at 9. No rating available on this 1968 Italian-made melodrama starring Carroll Baker as a wealthy widow victimized by an erotic-minded young couple.

The Stalking Moon, on 7 at 11. No rating available on this 1969 outdoor suspense melodrama starring Gregory Peck and eva Marie Saint as a couple pursued by unseen killers in late 19th-century Arizona.

Li'l Abner (xx), on 11 at 11. Peter Palmer and Leslie Parrish star in this 1969 movie adaptation of the Broadway musical based on the famous Al Capp cartoon characters of Dogpatch.

Touch of Evil (xxxx), on 13 at 11. Orson Welles directed and stars in this offbeat 1958 suspense thriller about a sinister, corrupt detective in a Mexican border town. Unsuccessful at the box office when first released, the film today is regarded by many critics as one of Welles' best. Starring with Welles are Charlton Heston and Janet Leigh with cameo appearances by Marlene Dietrich, Joseph Cotten and Mercedes McCambridge.

Giant (xxxx), on 5 at 11:15. An entertaining 1956 film adaptation of Edna Ferber's epic saga about the growth of Texas cattle and oil empires of two men — Rock Hudson and James Dean — and their mutual love for the beautiful Elizabeth Taylor. The story covers two generations and paints a fascinating portrait of the people who struck it rich in Texas. Mercedes McCambridge is excellent in a supporting role.

The Fortune Cookie (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. An entertaining 1965 satire, directed by Billy Wilder and featuring an Academy Award-winning performance by Walter Matthau as a shyster lawyer who connives with his weak-willed brother-in-law (well played by Jack Lemmon) to launch a phony lawsuit. When Lemmon is knocked down by a football player while performing his job as a TV cameraman, Matthau as his money-hungry brother-in-law sees a chance to score big.

High Plains Drifter, on 6 at 11:35. (See earlier this evening for details.)

A Hole in the Head (xxx), on 4 at 11:45. Frank Sinatra and Eleanor Parker star in this 1959 comedy about a good-time Charlie who comes to the end of his financial rope and has to re-evaluate his place in life. Edward G. Robinson is a standout as Sinatra's older brother who bails him out time and again.

Not As a Stranger (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A strong cast highlights this somewhat watered-down-1955 movie version of Morton Thompson's best-selling novel about doctors and their degrees of dedication. The operating scenes are far superior to tht soap opera tendencies of the personal drama. Cast includes Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Olivia de Havilland, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford and Charles Bickford.

Her Jungle Love, on 13 at 1. Ray Milland and Dorothy Lamour star in this 1939 adventure about a pilot forced down in the tropical wilds, who finds danger and romance with a lovely native girl.

Napoleon, on 6 at 1:35. A 1955 French-made biography, directed by Sacha Guitry and starring Raymond Pellegrin in the title role. The cast also includes Orson Welles.

Shake Hands with the Devil (xxx), on 8 at 2:30. A grim, but well-acted 1959 drama about the 1921 Irish rebellion, starring James Cagney, Don Murray, Michael Redgrave, Dana Wynter and Glynis Johns.

Movies

The Reluctant Heroes (xx), on 8 at 2:30. A 1971 drama set during the Korean War about an army historian who uses ancient tactics to save his squad. Cast includes Ken Berry, Cameron Mitchell and Jim Hutton.

Mad Monster Party, on 11 at 2:30. A 1968 puppet feature with an old Dr. Frankenstein holding a convention of monsters.

The Flight of the Phoenix (xxx), on 7 at 4. A fine cast (James Stewart, Richard Attenborough, Peter Finch and Hardy Krugar) plus an edge-of-the-seat suspense finale highlighis this 1966 adventure drama. The exciting story revolves around a group of plane crash survivors who fight the desert and other awesome odds in order to save themselves.

Flame of the Barbary Coast (xx), on 11 at 4. John Wayne and Ann Dvorak star in this predictable 1945 adventure about a Montana cattleman who falls for a San Francisco singer.

Knives of the Avenger (x), on 13 at 4. A 1965 Italian-made spectacle about Viking feuds and vengeance in 8th century Europe.

PAUL NEWMAN
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

High Plains Drifter, on 4 at 9. An unpreviewed 1973 western with Clint Eastwood once again portraying the deadly man with no name. Eastwood directed this violent revenge tale in the style of the Italian westerns he made for Sergio Leone (The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, and A Fistful of Dollars etc.)

Harper (xxx), on 12 at 9. A fast-paced 1966 private eye yarn with Paul Newman playing a Bogart-type detective who gets beaten up as much as he dishes it out. No super tough-guy but a cool operator, Newman is excellent as Harper, an investigator hired to see who's causing a prominent wealthy California family a great deal of trouble. A better than average supporting cast of pros include Lauren Bacall, Robert Wagner, Janet Leigh, Julie Harris and Arthur Hill.

Singin' in the Rain (xxxx), on 4 at 11:30. This 1952 movie is one of the best musicals Hollywood has ever made. Grand production numbers (including a very lavish Broadway Melody Ballet) highlight the story which centres on the transition period from silents to talkies. Gene Kelly and Donald O'Connor are a great dancing team and Debbie Reynolds keeps with their professional pace. Jean Hagen is a standout in the role of a silent film star with a speech problem.

The Glass Sphinx (x), on 12 at 11:30. Robert Taylor plays an archeologist in Egypt who unwittingly becomes involved in murder and intrigue in this 1967 Italian-made adventure.

She Done Him Wrong (xxx), on 2 at 11:45. This 1933 bawdy Bowery fable set in the Gay Nineties is a comedy classic and rumored to be the personal favorite film of its star — Mae West. And, one of her favorite leading men, Cary Grant, co-stars.

Not As a Stranger (xxx), on 6 at 11:50. Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Olivia de Havilland, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford and Charles Bickford star in this 1955 somewhat watered-down movie version of Morton Thompson's best seller about doctors and their degrees of dedication. The operating room scenes are far superior to the soap opera tendencies of the personal dramas.

The Longest Night (xx), on 7 at midnight. Based on a real-life incident, this 1972 made-for-TV drama deals with a kidnapped heiress buried alive in a coffin-like box that has a life-support system designed to last only a week. David Janssen, James Farentino, Phyllis Thaxter and Skye Aubrey are some of the familiar TV faces that make up the cast.

Napoleon, on 8 at midnight. A 1955 French-made biography, directed by Sacha Guitry, and starring Raymond Pellegrin in the title role. Orson Welles is also in the cast.

MAE WEST
. . . on 2 at 11:45 p.m.

Shake Hands with the Devil (xxx), on 6 at 2:40. A grim, but well-acted account of the 1921 Irish Rebellion, filmed in 1959 with an excellent cast that includes James Cagney, Don Murray, Michael Redgrave, Dana Wynter and Glynis Johns.

Today's Highlights

Sandy Duncan Special, on 12 at 5. Gene Kelly, John Davidson and Paul Lynde join host Sandy Duncan for an hour of comedy, music and dancing. Highlights include Gene and Sandy teaming for a medley of songs from some well-known Gene Kelly movies including An American in Paris and Singin' in the Rain. (60 mins.)

Tom Jones, on 12 at 6. Tom's guests include Liza Minnelli, English singer Frankie Vaughn and comic Pat Cooper. (60 mins.)

Washington Temple . . . A New Landmark, on 7 at 6:30. A tour of the new Mormon temple in Washington, D.C., including interviews with First Lady Betty Ford and Chief Justice Warren Burger, who visited there. (30 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 7:30. Searching for the smallest particles in nature, scientists have theorized the existence of the quark, a subatomic particle believed to be even smaller than protons and electrons. Tonight's program traces attempts to prove that quarks are real. (60 mins.)

Masterpiece Theatre, on 9 at 8:30. Part 3 of this new 13-part series finds the family in the country for the weekend — with a few surprises in store. The capable butler receives another offer of employment while James gets a more romantic offer. (60 mins.)

Firing Line, on 9 at 9:30. Host William Buckley Jr. and guest Morton Sosland, editor and publisher of The Milling and Baking News, discuss the issue of selling American grain to the Soviet Union, and the current problem of the world food shortage. (60 mins.)

Marketplace, on 2 and 6 at 10. Tonight's program examines toy safety and the value of various toys as play objects, with hosts Joan Watson and George Finstad. (Postponed from an earlier date.)

Drug Demo, on 5 at 11. A report on drugs commonly abused — their appearance, effects and slang names—and the withdrawl symptoms they may cause. (30 mins.)

Weekend, on 5 at 11:30. Another in the series of NBC late-night newsmagazine shows. Topics tonight include a profile of Playboy's Hugh Hefner and a look at women football players. (60 mins.)

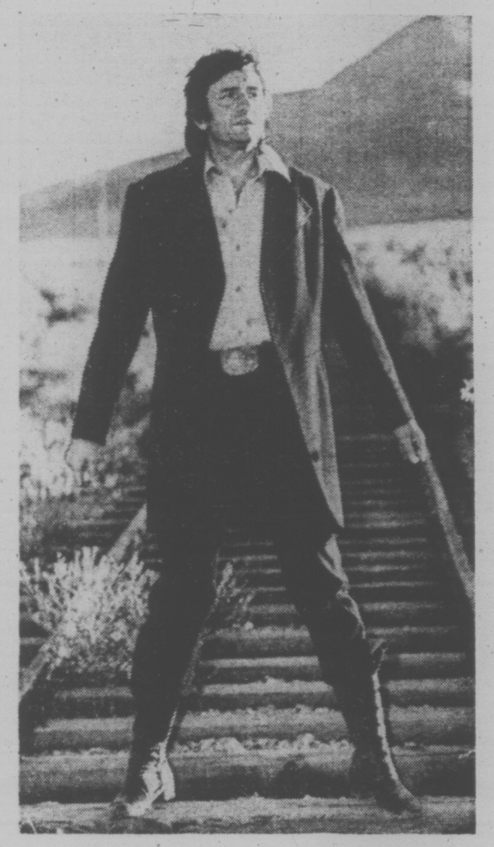
Railroads Have Special Meaning for Singer-Host

"Railroads are a very important thing to me," said Johnny Cash as he relaxed in his trailer, which equipped with a dressing room. "When I was five years old, a train was my savior. It saved our lives. That big formidable hunk of black iron and puffin' steam took my family from the death of the flood waters to the safety of my grandfather's house in the hills. So, I have a real love for trains."

Cash was just finishing scenes from his new ABC Television Network special, Johnny Cash Ridin' the Rails — The Great American Train Story, which airs on Friday, Nov. 22 (10:00-11:00 p.m.). He had been filming all day outside of Atlanta, Georgia, and the crowds who gathered to watch were awestruck and respectful. After Cash had gone out to say hello to his fans, shaking hands, signing autographs, and posing for pictures with anyone who asked, he came back to rest in his trailer.

"In the flood of the winter of '37-'38 I was five years old, and the flood waters ran us out of northern Arkansas. The police came through and told us we would have to leave, that transportation was provided. They gave us ten minutes warning. They said that the levee was breaking and this whole country is going to be flooded and you have ten minutes to get your children ready. The bus was going to the end of the road and turning around and if if we weren't ready they would leave without us.

"Well, we were ready in ten minutes," remembered Cash.



Johnny Cash

"My mother had dressed us all. It was January and it was freezing cold. The flood water was rising. We could see it rising. It was rising so fast. We got on the bus which took us to the train, and we got on a fast passenger train called 'The Lone Star'. I remember that train ride down through the white river bottom very vividly," said Cash.

"The first half of the journey was very bad, the levee had burst by the time we got there and the water had not only flooded the land but had flooded the railroad tracks as well. I remember the sound of the steam engine when we got into the deep water and it would hit the fire box. The flood waters came way up on the wheels. Men were walking waist-deep in the water ahead of the engine looking for logs. The train was creeping along, they were afrad the track was washed out, and for miles in every direction all you could see was water. You couldn't see any railroad track in any direction. There were the tops of trees sticking out, and there was us on the train.

'The Lone Star' just kept creeping along the white river bottom flat lands of Arkansas.

"Some of those memories that I have of trains from when I was 3, 4 and 5 years old are so vivid," Cash paused. "Now I use the train as a memory vehicle to take me to another time and place — to tell a story or sing a song. I love trains, they inspire me. I always get a song idea from the rythm of the wheels. I always write a song when I ride a train.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE — Clint Eastwood once again portrays "the man with no name" who rides in to straighten out a twisted town in, High Plains Drifter, the Sunday night movie to be telecast at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

SANDY DUNCAN will be joined by guests Gene Kelly, Paul Lynde and John Davidson when she hosts an hour-long musical-variety special to be telecast on Sunday at 5 p.m. on Channel 12.

Industry Names MTM 'Person of the Year'

Four-time Emmy winner Mary Tyler Moore, star of The Mary Tyler Moore show, has been named "Person of the Year" by the Television Bureau of Advertising, the sales arm of the television industry.

Miss Moore, who is being cited for showing the warm and human side of television by portraying a working woman at a television station, will be hopored at a black-tie banquet in Los Angeles on Sunday, Nov. 17. The award will be presented in conjunction with the bureau's 20th annual membership meeting, with the banquet attended by about 500 guests representing television, business and civic groups.

The Friday Man (xx), on 13 at noon. A 1968 French-made crime-drama set in Paris about a vicious criminal gang that only strikes on Fridays. European cast dubbed into English.

Ferry to Hong Kong (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A slow-moving, 1960 British-made adventure-drama about a drifter who is exiled on a ferry boat to Macao, because he has no passport. When the ship is attacked, he is given the opportunity of becoming a hero. a competent cast includes Curt Jurgens, Sylvia Sims and Orson Welles.

Appointment with Danger (xxx), on 11 at 1. A well-made 1951 crime-drama about a postal inspector who tries to prevent a big mail robbery. Good performances are turned in by Alan Ladd, Jan Sterling and Phyllis Calvert, and especially by Jack Webb in the role of a killer.

The Americanization of Emily (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. An excellent 1964 anti-war film, written by Paddy Chayefsky (Marty), which uses comedy to make its point. James Garner expertly portrays a Second World War Navy officer whose main job is to supply a variety of creature comforts—including girls—to his superiors. And matching Garner's performance all the way is Julie Andrews delightful portrayal of a British war widow, who despises Garner's non-heroic attitude, but can't help falling in love with him.

JULIE ANDREWS
. . . on 5 at 3:30 p.m.

Bright Victory (xxx), on 13 at 8. Arthur Kennedy and Peggy Dow star in this poignant 1952 drama about the crisis-laden rehabilitation of a Second World War soldier who is blinded in battle. Kennedy gives one of the best performances of his career as the victim and Miss Dow is perfect as the understanding girl who finally gives him the courage he needs to go on.

The Godfather (xxxx), on 5 at 9. (Conclusion). See Saturday evening for details.

The Vikings (xxx), on 4 at 11. Beautiful on-location filming in Norway highlights this rousing, elaborately mounted adventure epic which tells the story of the Vikings' invasion of England. Filmed in 1958 with Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh.

The Fly (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Excellent special effects and a literate script highlights better-than-average 1958 sci-fi thriller about a scientific miscalculation that causes a man to turn into a mutation. Capable performances are turned in by Vincent Price, Al Hedison and Herbert Marshall.

Beware—The Blob (x), on 7 at 11:45. Robert Walker, Godfrey Cambridge, Carol Lynley and Larry Hagman star in this 1972 sequel to the 1959 horror melodrama about a shapeless mass that terrorizes mankind.

Night Train to Milan, on 2 at midnight. No rating available on this 1966 Italian-made drama about a former prisoner of war travelling on a train, who suddenly encounters a Nazi concentration camp doctor. Jack Palance and Yvonne Furneaux star.

A Matter of Innocence (xx), on 6 at midnight. A sentimental 1968 tale in which a grown up Hayley Mills actually has an affair with a dashing Indian gigolo, played with slick charm by Shashi Kapoor. Based on a Noel Coward short story, the plot follows the transformation of plain Polly to sexy Polly, thanks to the death of her wealthy aunt. Trevor Howard is totally wasted in the role of Polly's ne'er-do-well uncle.

Color Me Dead, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1970 Australian-made mystery-drama about a dying man's search for an escaped prisoner, starring Tom Tryon and Carolyn Jones.

HAYLEY MILLS
. . . on 6 at midnight

Best of the Blues, on 13 at 12:30. A 1939 backstage musical drama starring Lloyd Nolan and Dorothy Lamour.

Sands of Iwo Jima (xxx), on 8 at 2:05. John Wayne is excellent in this action-packed 1949 tale of marines in the Pacific during the Second World War.

Fort Juma (x), on 6 at 2:10. Mediocre 1955 western with the standard plot of the cavalry vs. the Indians, starring Peter Graves.

Today's Highlights

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at 11:30. M-A-S-H co-star McLean Stevenson subs as host for Johnny, who's away tonight. (90 mins.)

Nashville – The City Music Built

Nashville at the Garden, a country music special filmed at New York's Madison Square Garden, will be telecast on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 11. The following article offers some background on Nashville, the "country music capital of the U.S.A."

By SYLVIA RECTOR

NASHVILLE, Tenn.

Boom town, they call it. Not just here. Ask in New York or Los Angeles, where they're wondering how the hillbillies did it.

The "hillbillies" know. They grin about it as their hard leather bootheels urge Cadillacs along middle Tennessee's hill country roads. They're heading out to Franklin or Hendersonville, where a discreet mailbox punctuates the end of a long curving drive leading to a ranch-style estate.

Boom town, but not built on oil or steel. It's the city music built.

The industry offices and recording studios hiding inside a dozen blocks of converted wooden buildings now rub shoulders with occasional glass and steel. And there's a new hotel on the corner across from the Country Music Hall of Fame.

But there's no neon Music Row. And they still work in shirtsleeves.

Downtown, from Capitol Hill over to the Cumberland River and beyond the apartments, and Honkytonks squeeze together like those in most other cities of a half-million people.

But this city's bloodstream and soul are different.

The Ryman Auditorium, that red-brick Gothic womb of the Grand Ole Opry, stands around the corner from Tootsie's Orchid Lounge, a former haunt of stars who stopped in to wet their whistles before the Opry curtains opened.

But the Opry moved out Briley Parkway to Opryland, U.S.A., a vast music "theme" park with acres of shows and amusement rides. With it went something special.

Mood Slower

The country-music aura downtown these days is only a ghost of its former self. But aura or no aura, $200 million worth of country-music records were sold last year and more than 95 per cent of them were out in Nashville.

This city is sophisticated enough to play host to the Grammy awards and to allow big-name entertainers to come and go with little fanfare.

The tourists, out of place in their new, straw cowboy hats, still flock to Tootsie's to gawk at walls papered with thousands of celebrity pictures. The stars don't come in as often but things haven't changed that much.

The city's mood is slower than in New York or Los Angeles. That's part of its secret.

"It's a good creative atmosphere, like the Village in New York a few years ago or Paris in Gertrude Stein's day," observed Jerry Wood of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP).

And Jerry Bradley, head of Nashville's RCA product, wouldn't leave. "Now you take New York for example. I wouldn't even catch a plane to go there and record. The musicians come in and do their sessions and take their 10-minute breaks and come back and play some more. And then they take the subway home.

"Down here, all of us get together and put their heads together and throw in their own licks and we make a record. All of us together.

"I can remember when they could only do one session in this town at a time because there was just one string section," recalled Bradley. The American Federation of Musicians local now lists 2,200 members.

The 15,877 recording sessions completed in Nashville in 1973 are roughly triple the 1969 figure. Fifty-two per cent of all singles produced in the world last year were cut here.

In 1962, 81 radio stations programmed country music. Now 1,166 stations have at least two hours of country music each day.

The swelling country tide is pulling Nashville with it.

Boom Town

City fathers who copyrighted the nickname Music City, U.S. don't have to go far for justification: 57 recording studios, a half-dozen record-pressing companies and 34 talent agencies.

Recording artists can cut records with more than 200 labels here, choose from 237 publishing firms and who knows how many record promoters.

One of the town's entertainment kings seemed amused that country entertainers were being invited to the annual Swan Ball, a West Nashville social event which seemingly required a blood test for entrance. Blue. Green is good enough now.

"They kinda changed their minds when they started seeing all that money coming in here," he said.

Tourists spent more than $100 million in the metropolitan area last year. About 1.7 million thronged Opryland last year and the Grande Ole Opry itself brings in an average 15,000 people every weekend of the year.

How many people and how much money is the country-music industry worth? The state's department of economic and community development counts 5,000 employed in recording, booking and publishing alone. That doesn't include promotion, trade magazines or any of the related industries.

The department estimates gross receipts from the industry for the greater Nashville area at $300 million annually.

If this is a boom town, music is its fuse.

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN plays the part of Thomas Mendip, a man who finds life no longer worth living, and Eileen Atkins portrays Jennett Jourdemayne, a young woman accused of being a witch in Hollywood Television Theatre's production of Christopher Fry's, The Lady's Not For Burning, to be telecast on Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 2:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and co-hosts the Hudson Brothers welcome Sen. Edward Kennedy, "Bobby Van" and his wife Elaine Joyce, and former White House press secretary Jerry terHorst. (60 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7).

Dinah Shore Show, on 7 at 3:30. Dinah talks with Tony Randall, comedy writing husband-and-wife team Joe Bologna and Renee Taylor and singer Roz Clark. (90 mins.)

Zee Cooking School, on 9 at 7:30. A "how to" series for children and teenagers. Tonight: how to make hearty soups. (30 mins.)

America, on 9 at 8. Host Alistair Cooke continues with his award-winning series as he looks at the year 1848 — the discovery of gold in California. Cooke also draws attention to the settlers of mid-America, expecially the Thomas Lincoln family, who gave America its 16th President. (30 mins.)

Police Story, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. Lloyd Bridges (out of scuba gear and into uniform) plays a police officer driven with a neurotic desire to be a perfect cop. He is unable to handle the imperfections in himself, and his overreaction to a practical joke provides his first jolting realization. Christopher Connelly (Paper Moon) and Shelley Fabares also star. (60 min.)

Happy Anniversary and Goodbye, on 7 and 12 at 9. A 1974 comedy-drama special starring Lucille Ball and Art Carney as 25-year marrieds facing a crossroads in their lives. (90 mins.)

Soundstage, on 9 at 10. Featured performer tonight is Jose Feliciano, blind singer-guitarist whose music combines jazz, rock and the Latin beat. (60 mins.)

LUCY ADDS A FEW POUNDS through the help of CBS's Costume Department when she stars with Art Carney in a comedy-drama special, Happy Anniversary and Goodbye, to be telecast on Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12. They portray a couple who, after 25 years of marriage, decide they don't like each other any more. He moves out and she embarks on a body-improvement program in the hopes of finding a new lease on life.

Movies

A Black Veil for Lisa (xx), on 13 at noon and 8 at 12:45. John Mills portrays a narcotics policeman on the trail of a drug ring in Hamburg in this 1968 Italian-made crime-drama.

The Easy Life (xxxx), on 11 at 1. Fine performances by Vittorio Gassman, Jean-Louis Trintignant and Catherine Spaak highlight this absorbing 1963 Italian-made drama of a happy-go-lucky extrovert who has an unusual effect on a serious young law student when they are thrown together by chance. The film offers sharp observations of contrasting personalities, and holds together all the way.

Last Train to Gun Hill (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A better-than-average action-packed 1959 western about a marshall out to avenge the brutal murder of his Indian wife. Good performances are turned in by Kirk Douglas, Anthony Quinn and Carolyn Jones.

The Naked Runner (x), on 12 at 7. A badly written, poorly directed and ineptly acted 1967 spy drama with Frank Sinatra as a businessman involved in international intrigue. Made when the spy film rage was slowing down after all the James Bond imitations, this film's camera trickery tries to cover up for a hollow story and Sinatra's wooden acting.

Panic on the 5:22, on 8 at 7:30. An unpreviewed 1974 made-for-TV crime-drama about three young hoods who attempt to rob the powerful and wealthy members of a commuter train's private club car. Cast includes Reni Santoni, Lynda Day George, Laurence Luckinbill, Andrew Duggan and Ina Balin.

Magnificent Obsession (xx), on 13 at 8. Rock Hudson, Jane Wyman and Barbara Rush star in this 1954 film version of the Lloyd C. Douglas novel about a playboy, responsible for a woman's blindness, who devotes himself to medicine. Not as good as the 1935 version which starred Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor.

It Couldn't Happen to a Nicer Guy, on 4 at 8:30. Paul Sorvino, Michael Learned (The Waltons) and Bob Dishy star in this unpreviewed 1974 made-for-TV comedy about a real-estate salesman who is raped at gunpoint by a beautiful woman.

Virginia Hill, on 5 at 8:30. Some advance publicity received on this 1974 TV drama indicates that it might be worth watching. Dyan Cannon stars as Virginia Hill, in this dramatized biography of the woman who rose from poverty to become the wealthy moll of gangster Bugsy Sigel. The story traces Virginia's life and loves through a series of flashbacks as she testifies before the 1951 Senate committee that investigated organized crime.

Shane (xxxx), on 11 at 9. This simple story of a gunfighter coming to the aid of homesteaders has been filmed with amazing skill by George Stevens, and since its release in 1953, has become a western classic. There's action, drama, beautiful scenerey and fine performances by Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur, Jack Palance, and the late Brandon de Wilde.

A Killing in Every Corner, on 4 at 11:30. A bizarre made-for-TV murder thriller about a criminal psychologist who uses human "guinea pigs" to test the behavior patterns of killers. Cast includes Patrick Magee and Joanna Pettet.

High Noon (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. Gary Cooper won an Oscar for his role in this 1952 western classic about a brave lawman who has to face outlaws sworn to kill him on his wedding day. Highly stylized, with flawless editing, an Academy Award-winning score (Do Not Forsake Me, Oh My Darling), superb direction (Fred Zinnemann) and an excellent supporting cast that includes Grace Kelly, Thomas Mitchell, Lloyd Bridges, Katy Jurado, Otto Krugar, Lee Van Cleef and Lon Chaney.

Sunday in New York (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. An entertaining 1964 comedy about a young woman in New York who meets a dashing young man and quite innocently has her older brother thinking wrong thoughts. The story is a little "cutesy", but fine performances by Jane Fonda, Cliff Robertson and Rod Taylor make it pleasantly so.

Nightmare in the Sun (xx), on 2 at midnight. John Derek, Ursula Andress, Aldo Ray and Arthur O'Connell star in this 1963 drama of love and lust about the no-good wife of a rancher who's been playing around with the sheriff and is the cause of an innocent hitchhiker's involvement in murder and terror.

The Lost Weekend (xxxx), on 13 at 12:30. Four Oscars went to this grim and brutal 1945 study of a man's bout with the bottle, featuring an inspiring performance by Ray Milland and flawless co-direction by Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett. Jane Wyman co-stars.

Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here (xxx) on 6 at 1. A gripping, superbly directed and finely written 1969 western chase story about a search for a renegade Indian in 1909 California. One of the few Hollywood films to ever deal sensitively with the question of the American white man's treatment of the Indian. Excellent performances by Robert Redford, Robert Blake and Katherine Ross add to the film's interest.

The Battle of Neretva (xx), on 8 at 1. Standard 1969 Second World War epic about the defeat of the Germans on the Nererva River, starring Yul Brynner and Hardy Krugar.

The Shakiest Gun in the West (xx), on 6 at 2:55. A 1968 remake of, The Paleface, starring Don Knotts as the Eastern dentist whose misadventures make him a hero of the Old West.

It Takes All Kinds (xx), on 8 at 3:10. Vera Miles and Robert Lansing star in this 1969 Australian-made melodrama set in Sydney, about a U.S. seaman drawn into a plot to rob a museum.

This Country in the Morning

Ex-Radio Host Writes About His Old Program

By GAIL HELGASON

EDMONTON — "We weren't the Canadian Esquire or the Canadian Merv Griffin show; we were This Country In the Morning," wrote Peter Gzowski.

The CBC radio program, a 167-minute mixture of interviews, musings, recipes, music, chit-chat, verse and games — appeared after the 9 a.m. news for almost three years, until Mr. Gzowski resigned as host last June.

Although the program drew only 118,000 listeners daily across the country, many listeners felt it typified the best of what radio could be, and rarely is. It was conversational, stimulating, funny, sad, and above all, entertaining.

PETER GZOWSKI

Peter Gzowski's Book About This Country in the Morning is an attempt to recreate the spirit of the program for those who knew it, and to parallel if for those who didn't. He succeeds because the book projects the same beguiling qualities as the show.

There is no logical sequence. Bits of nonsense, limericks and recipes are intermingled with an essay written by an Ontario man who faced death at 33, or a report on pollution in Pincher Creek, Alta.

Gzowski's sensitivity and humor as a host emerge as clearly in print as they did on air. "We didn't want to exploit his pain, only to share his strength," he writes of the young man facing death.

He delights in the offbeat. For example, three pages are taken up with suggestions — many contributed by listeners — on the how to spend Chinook Day, a self-proclaimed holiday in midwinter.

But the most appealing parts of the book are contributed by listeners. Reprinted letters from a Peace River farmer named Vic Dardick express the struggles and rewards of farming in Canada's most northerly farming country. "I believe I have found myself here, but it has cost me dearly," he says.

Many experiences and emotions recounted in this book are universal, but others are distinctly Canadian: A hockey mother recites her feelings of regret as her eight-year-old goes off to the rink; Dardick writes of a magnificent wild stallion in northern Alberta.

The end result of this book is a heightened sense of the day-to-day activities, and thoughts of Canadians.

Mr. Gzowski writes: "There are more literate, wise, even brilliant Canadians who have never been paid a cent for what they've written than there are copies of books sold by some people I once considered in a class by themselves.

SERIES SPIN-OFF SPAWNS A SERIES OF SPIN-OFFS

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — We are now deep enough into the new television season to confirm that some of the biggest hits are spinoffs from other shows.

If you don't know what a spinoff is, try to imagine Mark Twain as a TV writer and producer.

Twain sells CBS on a series called All in ehe River. It's the heart-warming story of a small-town boy, Tom Sawyer, growing up along the Mississippi.

The show is such a smash that even a secondary character, Huck Finn, becomes a big star. Finn naturally is no longer content to play second banana in All in the River.

So he goes to NBC and gets his own series. Called Huckleberry and Sire, it is a socological drama about a small-town boy with a n'er-do-well, drunken father.

The next season ABC comes up with Surrogate Mother, the star of which is Tom Sawyer's Aunt Polly. A situation comedy, it relates the experiences of a spinster who is rearing her late sister's son.

CBS promptly counters with Half Breed, a melodrama in which the principal character is Injun Joe, who plays the villain in All in the River.

A reflection of the plight of American Indians today, Half Breed recounts the radicalization of a sensitive young man of mixed parentage who becomes disillusioned and embittered by the double dealings of the white man's world.

Although Half Breed is more of a critical than a commercial success, NBC does not like to see another network get all the credit for producing heavy stuff. So it brings out Sissy.

In this series the focus is on Tom Sawyer's half-brother Sidney, a minor character in All in the River.

A psychological drama with homosexual overtones, it explores the impact of sibling rivalry and peer group pressure on male adolescence.

ABC, not wishing to be left out, offers a dramatic series called Pappy. A spinoff from a spinoff, it dwells on the struggles of Huckleberry's father to conquer alcoholism.

That, of course, prompts CBS to spin off another spinoff. This one, Strange Freedom, boldly tackles the racial theme, picking up the life of Jim, a runaway slave in Pappy, after he escapes bondage.

By this time Mark Twain is a millionaire several times over and leads a life of leisure. But NBC coaxes him out of retirement for one final spinoff.

The result is River Rogues, the hilarious escapades of the Duke and the Dauphin, two lovable con artists first introduced in Strange Freedom.

Movies

Dirty Heroes (xx), on 13 at noon. Curt Jurgens and John Ireland portray escaped Allied POWs who join forces with the Dutch underground in this 1969 Italian-made Second World War drama.

Upstairs and Downstairs (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. A charming 1960 English-made comedy about a young married couple and their problems in obtaining the right servant girl. Cast includes Michael Craig and Anne Heywood.

High Hell (xx), on 11 at 1. Routine 1958 outdoor adventure about gold mining, greed and romance in the Canadian Rockies, starring John Derek.

The Fakers, on 5 at 3:30. No rating available on this violent 1969 story of the FBI vs. American Nazis.

Corvette K-225 (xxx), on 13 at 8. Actual combat footage highlights this true-life 1943 war drama about the brave officers and crew of a Canadian fighting ship in the North Atlantic, starring Randolph Scott, Barry Fitzgerald, Noah Berry Jr. and Ella Raines.

Panic on the 5:22, on 4 at 8:30. An unpreviewed 1974 made-for-TV crime-drama about three young hoods who try and rob the powerful and wealthy members of a commuter train's private club car. Cast includes Reni Santoni, Lynda Day George, Lurence Luckinbill, Andrew Duggan and Ina Balin.

The Rounders (xxx), on 8 at 8:30. An engaging 1965 comedy-western starring Glenn Ford and Henry Fonda as a couple of modern-day horse-wranglers who share some comical adventures when they decide to enter a roan in a rodeo. A good supporting cast of familiar faces — Chill Wills, Edgar Buchanan and Denver Pyle — help keep the comedy rolling briskly along.

Elephant Walk (xx), on 11 at 9. A 1954 soap opera played against the splendor of Ceylon about a young English bride who comes to her new husband's plantation and finds the adjustment to her new life difficult. Cast includes a youthful and beautiful Elizabeth Taylor, Peter Finch and Dana Andrews. Action fans may enjoy the large elephant stampede which climaxes the film.

The People (xx), on 12 at 10. Kim Darby and William Shatner star in this 1972 made-for-TV sci-fi tale about a young teacher who comes to a secluded valley whose inhabitants possess strange powers and a secret bond.

Seven Thieves (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A suspenseful, well-made 1960 melodrama about a plan to rob the Monte Carlo gambling vaults, with fine performances by Edward G. Robinson, Rod Steiger, Eli Wallach and Joan Collins. The only drawback is a somewhat weak ending, which nevertheless won't hurt the preceeding thrills.

In Cold Blood (xxxx), on 7 at 11:45. Writer-producer-director Richard Brooks skillfully handled this 1967 movie adaptation of Truman Capote's best-selling novel based on the true-life incident of two ex-xons who slaughtered a Kansas farmer and his family in cold blood. Gripping scenes, played in stark documentary style, build up to the actual multiple 1959 murders of the Clutter family in their Holcomb, Kansas home. This is obviously not for the squeamish but it is superbly done.

Five Branded Women (xx), on 2, at midnight. A clumsy 1960 Second World War drama about five young women who suffer the wrath of their townspeople when they are found to be friendly with the Nazis. Cast includes Silvana Mangano, Barbara Bel Geddes, Vera Miles, Jeanne Moreau (who really allowed their heads to be shaved) and Van Heflin star.

Odds Against Tomorrow (xxx), on 6, at midnight. Harry Belafonte, Robert Ryan, Ed Begley and Shelley Winters star in this tense 1959 story of three bank robbers who plan the big job that will put them all on "easy street." Ryan is perfect as the ex-con who resents having Belafonte in the group, but Harry is not very good in a straight acting role.

The Razor's Edge (xx), on 8 at midnight. A rambling, tedious 1946 film rendering of Somerset Maugham's equally long-winded novel about a First World War flier's quest for spiritual peace, starring Tyrone Power, Gene Tierney, Clifton Webb and Anne Baxter.

The Remarkable Andrew (xx), on 13 at 12:30. Interesting, well-played fantasy about the ghosts of America's founding fathers who come to the aid of a timid young man who is fighting small-town graft. Filmed in 1942 with William Holden and Brian Donlevy.

Huk (x), on 6 at 2. A plantation owner tries to protect his property from renegade guerillas in this 1956 adventure starring George Montgomery.

Blanche Fury (xx), on 8 at 3:05. A 1948 British-made melodrama of greed, illicit love and murder at a 19th century country estate, starring Valerie Hobson and Stewart Granger.

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Host Milton Berle and comics Dick Martin, Mort Sahl and Pat Buttram look at comedy film clips recalling the routines by such comedy kings as Abbott and Costello, Charlie Chaplin, Ben Turpin and the more contemporary Nichols and May and Rowan and Martin. (90 mins.)

Award-Winning Series Repeated on Channel 9

With the recent discovery of two long-lost notebooks, the story of the genius of Leonardo da Vinci bursts forth once more. Who was this man who painted magnificently, created mechanical inventions centuries ahead of his time? Who were the people who influenced him, and what were the times and events that spawned this brilliant Florentine?

The Life of Leonardo da Vinci, a five-part series about the man, from his illegitimate birth in 1452 to his death 67 years later, debuts on Channel 9 at 9 p.m. Wednesday, November 20.

This is the series that has won numerous awards in Europe, including the Grand Prize in the 12th Monte Carlo International Film Festival and was shown in this country in the summer of 1972.

Philippe Leroy stars as the adult da Vinci. Over 100 sets were designed for the series, which took two years to produce.

Ben Gazzara serves as host, introducing each program, and giving American viewers background information on the world 500 years ago and the artist's progress in that world. Scenes of Renaissance Florence are seen, as well as da Vinci's most famous paintings, including the Adoration of the Magi, The Last Supper and the Gioconda, known throughout the world as Mona Lisa.

From his insecure childhood as the bastard son of a peasant woman and a notary, da Vinci is trained in the studio workshop of Andrea del Verrocchio in what then was the artisan's craft of painting. Here he grows from a young artist toward early artistic immortality with works such as Adoration of the Magi, shown on the series premiere Wednesday, November 20 at 9 p.m.

The inventive side of da Vinci's gifts pervades the second episode Wednesday November 27 at 9 p.m., during which the artist accepts the role of courtier to Milan's Lodovico il Moro. Although he spends much of this period preparing court festivals, studying anatomy and working with mechanical apparatus, he also produces such paintings as Lady with an Ermine and The Virgin of the Rocks, the latter work now being in the Louvre.

Da Vinci flees to Venice from the French occupation of Milan in 1499 and makes plans (never formally enacted) for the invention of submarines to defend Venice from the French-allied Turkish fleet, in the third program Wednesday, December 4 at 9 p.m. The most outstanding product of this time in da Vinci's life is his painting of one of the world's great masterpieces, The Last Supper, for the refectory at the monastery at Milan's Santa Maria della Grazie.

Celebrities Help Launch New Health Series—Feeling Good

Four of the country's top entertainers — Johnny Cash, Bill Cosby, B. B. King and Helen Reddy — will star in the first episode of Feeling Good, the new television series on health care for adults which will be broadcast Wednesday, November 20 at 8:00 p.m. on KCTS-9. Channel 9 will repeat the series Sundays at 5:30 p.m. and Mondays at 9:00 a.m.

They will join the resident company of the new series to help promote better health. Feeling Good, produced by CTW, creators of Sesame Street and The Electric Company, will be seen weekly on the 250 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service.

Country and Western star Johnny Cash will appear in a segment on mental health, singing about the need for a "Helping Hand" in time of trouble. Cash said that it seemed important to him to do this program because there was a time when he needed help and was afraid to ask. "I was lucky enough," he said, "somebody sought me out and helped me. Not everybody has that." Appearing in this show is his way of offering help to those who need it, he feels.

Bill Cosby and Helen Reddy take part in a segement on prenatal care. Cosby, suspended in air as an unborn baby, praises his mother for taking good care of herself — thereby ensuring that he will be born healthy. He also chides his parents for selecting a name he does not like. (This fetal comedian wants to be called "the Avenger").

In a more serious vein, Helen Reddy sings of the changes a new baby brings to a woman's life. She also encourages women to start medical care as soon as they suspect they are pregnant. Of prenatal care, she says: "No baby should be without it, and no baby need be."

These stars are the first of many celebrities who will appear during the 26 weekly programs of the experimental series

CANADIAN BALLET ON MUSICAMERA

The Ecstasy of Rita Joe has been a hit as a stage play, an international success as a ballet, and now looks as if it will score yet another triumph — this time as a television production.

Featuring the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, and based on George Ryga's searing stage play of a young Indian girl who leaves the reservation for the white man's city, Rita Joe makes its TV debut on CBC's Musicamera series Wednesday, November 20 at 8:30 p.m.

The 60-minute version of Norbert Vesak's ballet stars Ana Maria de Gorriz in the title role and Salvatore Aiello as her man Jamie Paul. Their dancing could hardly be better, but viewers can't help but also be impressed by the imaginative way in which producer-director Don S. Williams has used the medium to convey full meaning.

The CBC Winnipeg veteran was involved in the ballet's original stage version for which he created filmed background material. In the new TV version Williams is given far wider scope to display his talents, as seen, for example, by his use of soft-hued color tones to capture mood; blurred focusing when Rita Joe tries to recall her past life on the reservation; and slow motion as Rita and Jamie gambol across fields and she tries to cling to the happy moments in her life.

Other techniques are employed to take advantage of the new medium, such as when Rita Joe watches her life flash before her eyes as she stands before an accusing judge in the courtroom. But Williams also maintains proper respect for the artistry both in front of and behind his cameras, and the love sequence emerges as tender as ever, a piece of sheer sensuous choreography by collaborator Vesak.

Chief Dan George, the legendary white-haired Indian actor, radiates great presence cast in the role of Rita Joe's father. A special bond of affection already exists between them for in real life Chief George has adopted Miss de Gorriz as his 48th grandchild.

The production also features a haunting soundtrack specially composed and sung by Vancouver's Ann Mortifee, with words by George Ryga. In addition, Miss Mortifee authored, and sings on the program, a special prologue concerning a real-life Rita Joe.

Much of the outdoor filming was done on-location in Winnipeg and, in the final death scene, the sidewalk Rita Joe is sprawled on is on the city's Main Street. Certain other scenes involving Chief George were shot at the Roseau Indian Reserve situated about 75 miles southeast of the city.

The original ballet version of The Ecstasy of Rita Joe premiered to critical acclaim in the summer of 1971 at Ottawa's National Arts Centre. Now, after over a year's work by CBC Winnipeg production staff under the aegis of Williams, a national audience can experience another Rita Joe opening night that has borrowed the best of talents from the previous two.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 2:30 and 7 at 6:30. Sex psychologists William Masters and Virginia Masters are Mike's co-hosts today and their guests include Patty Duke and her husband John Astin, Anne Jackson and her husband Eli Wallach, and actress Susan Strasberg. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7).

Carol Burnett, on 2 and 6 at 8. In her American television debut, award-winning actress Maggie Smith joins Carol and her regulars Harvey Korman and Vicki Lawrence, and comedy favorite Tim Conway. (60 mins.)

Peanuts, on 7 and 12 at 8. Charlie Brown Thanksgiving — a holiday cartoon feast with the Peanuts gang. (30 mins.)

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8. This week's subject is the 1960 NFL championship football game between the Green Bay Packers and the Philadelphia Packers. This 1960 campaign was a milestone in Packer history as head coach Vince Lombardi lead a team that had won only one game in 1958 to the NFL Western Division title. (30 mins.)

Benjamin Franklin: The Ambassador, on 7 at 9:30. Part biography and part history, this made-for-television costume drama is the first of four special on Benjamin Franklin to be telecast this season. Eddie Albert portrays him at age 72, when he was a diplomat from the American colonies to the Parisian court of Louis XVI. It's 1778, and a troubled America is still fighting for its independence. An excellent supporting cast includes Gig Young and Alexis Smith. (90 mins.)

Melear, on 8 at 9:30. The Venetian Affair, an examination by host-correspondent Michael Melear of the efforts being made to restore the art treasures and face of old Venice while the city's industrial suburbs which are causing massive pollutions problems, are ignored. (30 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. JFK — A Time to Remember, recalling the personal and private side of President John F. Kennedy with reminiscences by Kennedy's family and friends, on the 11th anniversary of his assassination in Dallas. Among those interviewed are Pierre Salinger, JFK's press secretary; his mother Rose and brother Ted; and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Theodore White. (90 mins.)

President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas, 11 years ago today.

Child TV Star Now a Writer

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Paul Petersen, the kid who played Jeff Stone on the old Donna Reed television series, had a difficult time growing up but has finally overcome the child star stigma.

It cost him all of the million dollars he earned, a marriage and psychological scars he will carry to his grave.

He starred in the family show for eight years, from age 12 to 20. Now that he is 29 and wise beyond his years, Paul has turned from acting to writing. He's also grown a bristling mustache, wears mod lenses and studded denim outfits and his hair long and shaggy.

Paul makes his home in Westport, Conn., with his second wife, rising each morning to work on his books. They are a series of paperback James Bond-type heroes of a young man named Eric Saveman.

The illustrations on the cover have Saveman looking like the twin brother of the author. The first two books have sold 250,000 copies.

"I was lucky enough to have all the bad things, the phony Hollywood background when I was young enough to overcome it. There was time for me to come back.

"I lived it up, spent all my money and didn't realize some day I would get a bill for it."

The bill came three or four years ago when he was broke, down and out and friendless. The pals of his salad days melted away with the affluence. Even his house was washed away by a mud slide.

"I was the resident corpse in Hollywood," Petersen said without malice. "I was the kind of guy parents pointed out to their kids and said, 'don't turn out like him.' "

Then along came a man named David Oliphant, a member of New York's publishing fraternity, who encouraged Paul to write and sell television scripts. He also introduced Paul to his current publishers, Simon and Schuster.

"I prefer writing to acting," Paul said. "I know what fads are. I was a bad actor. As a writer I don't have to think about beginning a casting director for work or depending on an agent.

"I deliver my manuscript on time and cleanly done. I can say, 'this is my work.' I did it. It's mine. No actor can say those things."

Expired Paul simply couldn't find work. Nobody wanted him.

One good thing emerged from the travail, his relationship with Donna Reed and co-stars Carl Betz and Shelley Fabares. They held monthly get-together for lunch at the Bistro restaurant until Paul moved away.

On his brief visit this month they reunited once again.

"Those reunions are wonderful," he said. "We don't have to explain ourselves. We shared so much during those eight years together we're closer than a family."

Much closer. All four cast members were divorced during or after the series. All have remarried.

It's a topy-turvey world, is Hollywood, where a make-believe family is stronger, happier and healthier—not to mention more enduring — than the real thing.

Tennis Turns on Celebrities

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — The happy-go-lucky movie star who laughs when he rolls a bowling ball down the gutter on Celebrity Bowling becomes a snarling ogre when he backhands a ball into the net on Celebrity Tennis.

Joe Siegman, who produces both shows, is amazed at the contrast.

"The stars are serious about their tennis and more inclined to have fun while they're bowling," he observed.

"About 30 celebrities have appeared as participants on both programs. The man or women who is relaxed on a bowling alley is up tight on the tennis court."

Siegman is hard put to explain the transformation. He suspects having an opponent on the other side of the net feels the competitive fires in performers who compete for jobs with one another almost daily.

"There's a difference in the sports, too," Siegman said. "You can enjoy yourself bowling with a great deal of practice or experience.

"But tennis requires a modicum of expertise or at least technique. Tennis players can't enjoy the game unless they play hard and well.

"And there is less element of luck involved in tennis. A novice can bowl a respectable game. A kid can drop a bowling ball on the lane and have it roll down for a strike. You can't luck out on the court."

Siegman films all 26 tennis shows in four days, pairing players according to their availability and their ability. He says Bill Cosby, Ed Ames, Jim Francisicus, Burt Bacharach and Ron Ely are among the best of the male players.

Of the ladies he thinks Janet Leigh, Claudine Longet, Barbara Anderson and Elke Sommer are tops.

Celebrity Bowling is about to start its fifth year on the air. Celebrity Tennis, which gets better ratings, will launch its second year in the coming season.

"There are many more bowlers than tennis players in Hollywood," Siegman said. "So we'll be using many of the same star tennis players again this year. Fifty-seven of them appeared on the show last year."

"A star can be a lousy bowler and still be entertaining. And we get the stars who won't do 'Hollywood Squares' or any of the other cerebral shows where they might embarrass themselves."

Siegman is amused by the stars who say they have never bowled in their lives, then go off to practice for weeks in advance of their appearances on the show.

It's different with the tennis players. They're out on the courts several times a week, grimly improving their games for the video matches.

DORIS DAY
. . . on 13 at 8 p.m.

Glad Hanna (xx), on 13 at noon. Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour star in this romantic 1940 story of a Mohawk Valley stableboy who joins a circus in the 1830s.

Killers Three (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A grim, realistic 1969 drama about the unglamorous life of a criminal war veteran starring Robert Walker and Diane Varsi.

The Vagabond King (xx), on 11 at 1. Katherine Grayson, Oreste and Rita Moreno star in this elaborate 1956 remake of Rudolf Erim's operetta about romance and royal intrigue in 15th century France.

All in a Night's Work (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A sophisticated 1961 comedy about an unlikely romance between a rich heir and a girl linked to the death of his benefactor. The script features some well-timed laughs beautifully handled by Shirley MacLaine, Cliff Robertson and Dean Martin.

Pillow Talk (xxx), on 13 at 8. The best of the Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies, this one made in 1959 about a career girl and a songwriter who feud — and fall in love — over the phone. Tony Randall is very funny in a supporting role and Hudson is surprisingly skillful.

Cannon for Cordoba (xx), on 12 at 9:30. George Peppard and Raf Vallone star in this 1970 Italian-made adventure tale about bandits and revolutionaries on the 1912 Mexico-Texas border.

The Comancheros (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A big-scale, action-filled 1961 western tale about a Texas Ranger who infiltrates a gang supplying guns and liquor to the Indians. An excellent top-flight cast includes John Wayne, Lee Marvin, Stuart Whitman and Nehemiah Persoff.

The Screaming Woman, on 7 at 12:45. Olivia de Havilland stars in this 1972 TV thriller, adapted from a Ray Bradbury story about a recently released mental patient who hears the hideous screams of a woman who has been buried alive.

Make Mine Mink (xxx), on 2 at midnight. A hilarious 1960 British-made comedy about a delightful quartet of genteel fur thieves, starring Terry-Thomas, Billie Whitelaw, Athlene Seyler and Hattie Jacques. The English have a knack for making these zany comedies, and this is one of the better ones.

Jessica (xx), on 6 at midnight. When a glamorous midwife turns men's heads in a small Italian village, the women of the town pull a Lysistrata, and go on strike, in this slow-moving 1962 comedy starring Angie Dickinson and Maurice Chevalier.

Doctor in Distress (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Another in the series of British-made comedies, this one filmed in 1964 and continues the medical shenanigans with Dirk Bogarde, James Robertson Justice and Samantha Eggar. The plot this time 'round has James Robertson Justice falling in love with a pretty physiotherapist and Bogarde involved with a pretty actress. Good performances and some amusing situations make this comedy one of the best of the series.

Wake Island (xxx), on 13 at 12:30. A dramatic 1942 tribute to the U.S. Marines, focusing on their glorious but bitter defeat on Wake Island, starring Brian Donlevy and William Bendix.

Western Union (xx), on 8 at 2:10. A well-made 1941 western describing the hazards faced by the men who layed the first transcontinental Western Union wire in 1861. Cast includes Randolph Scott, Robert Young and Dean Jagger.

Lonelyhearts (xxx), on 6 at 2:30. A good cast (Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan, Myrna Loy and Maureen Stapleton) flounders with a poorly written script in this overlong and brooding 1958 story about a newspaperman who writes a lonely-hearts column and takes his work seriously — with near tragic results. Of the cast, Miss Stapleton fares best as the wife of a cripple who hungers for a passionate love.

SAMANTHA EGGER

Movies

The Dirty Game (xxx), on 13 at noon. A trio of spy tales linked together by the reminiscences of a retired CIA chief, filmed in 1967 and starring Robert Ryan, Henry Fonda and Vittorio Gassman.

Hot Enough for June (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Dirk Bogarde, Sylvia Koscina and Robert Morley star in this 1964 drama about a Britisher duped into becoming a spy.

Stranger on the Third Floor (xxx), on 11 at 1. A well-produced 1940 suspense thriller about a reporter convinced a confirmed man is innocent of murder — and sets about trying to prove it. Peter Lorre, Margaret Tallichet and John McGuire star.

The Angry Hills (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Robert Mitchum portrays a U.S. war correspondent caught in the chaos of 1941 Nazi-occupied Greece, in this 1959 drama based on a lesser known Leon Uris novel. Stanley Baker and Gia Scala co-star.

Portrait in Black (xx), on 13 at 8. A slick 1960 Hollywood melodrama with the standard ingredients of a bed-ridden tycoon, a dissatisfied wife, and a weak-willed doctor in love with the wife — mix well with murder, blackmail and revenge — and you have a fairly entertaining tale starring Lana Turner, Anthony Quinn, Lloyd Nolan, Richard Basehart, John Saxon and Sandra Dee.

The Ipcress File (xxxx), on 7 at 9. A first-rate 1965 espionage yarn which will keep you guessing from start to finish. Michael Caine's British agent Harry Palmer is a magnificent example of role and star fitting like a glove and the exciting camerawork heightens the action at every plot twist. It's a tense and complex story that finds Palmer investigating the kidnapping of scientists detained behind the Iron Curtain.

Elmer Gantry (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Acadamy Award-winning performances by Burt Lancaster and Shirley Jones highlight this excellent 1960 film version of Sinclair Lewis' best-selling novel about an unscrupulous salesman who becomes a fire-breathing preacher under the tent of a lady evangelist (Jean Simmons).

SHIRLEY JONES
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

MICHAEL CAINE
. . . on 7 at 9 p.m.

Circus of Fear (xx), on 6 at midnight. Christopher Lee, Leo Genn and Suzy Kendall star in this 1967 English-made mystery about brutal murder under the big top.

Peeping Tom (x), on 8 at midnight. A sick-and-nasty 1961 British-made horror film about a demented photographer who kills models while making portraits of their reactions to death.

Operation Crossbow (xx), on 12 at midnight. A rip roaring 1965 Second World War espionage adventure crammed with as much action as possible. Although Sophia Loren is top-billed, she has only a brief role — it's really George Peppard, Tom Courtney and Jeremy Kemp as a trio of agents assigned to destroy a heavily guarded Nazi munitions installation who keep things buzzing.

Union Pacific (xxx), on 13 at 12:30. Cecil B. DeMille directed this 1939 railroad epic saga of linking the east and west by rails. It won't be as grandiose on a TV screen but it's still good entertainment. Cast includes Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck.

Tunes of Glory (xxxx), on 8 at 1:50. A brilliant, flawlessly acted 1960 British-made drama recommended particularly for the magnificent and memorable performances of John Mills and Alec Guinness. The story concerns the bitter struggle between a vicious, careless, goldbricking colonel (Guinness) and the intelligent, disciplined, civilized young officer (Mills) who supersedes him in command. You won't be disappointed if you stay up for this one.

The Horse Soldiers (xx), on 6 at 1:55. John Wayne and William Holden star in this 1959 sprawling John Ford western set during the Civil War, about two union officers with contrasting military and moral viewpoints.

Today's Highlights

FORD TO RUN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will definitely run for the presidency in 1976, his chief spokesman said today.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Ford changed the "probably" that he was said before to "definitely" last Monday while talking to persons outside the White House.

It was learned that Ford gave an interview to be published in U.S. News and World Report this weekend in which he said he definitely will run.

Asked why Ford had positively made up his mind two years before the election, Nessen said:

"I guess you've heard him say how much he enjoys being president."

RCMP HOGTIED IN THEFT PROBE

Hotel Swoop Nets Couple

RIFLES AND SHOTGUNS ready, police officers manned roadblocks through southern Vancouver Island today after two couples disarmed and hogtied a pair of policemen in a downtown hotel just after midnight. A couple, suspects in the case, was arrested at Port Renfrew this morning. Officers shown here checked traffic on the Trans-Canada Highway at Goldstream. (Bill Halkett photo).

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Seven RCMP officers from Sidney, Colwood and Sooke stormed the Port Renfrew Hotel at 10 a.m. today and arrested a man and a woman, suspects in an early morning assault on two plain clothes policemen.

A spokesman said no shots were fired though the couple was believed armed and no one was injured.

Heavily-armed police are still manning roadblocks throughout southern Vancouver Island today, looking for two other suspects, a man and a woman, who disarmed, handcuffed and hogtied the two Colwood RCMP officers in the Executive House, 777 Douglas, early today.

A senior RCMP official said Cpl. Ed Currie and Const. Wendal Milne, plainclothes officers attached to the general investigation section, entered a room in the hotel shortly after midnight in the course of an investigation into a theft of $17,000 from a store in Courtenay Wednesday.

A man and a woman met the officers at the door and invited them in.

Without warning, the man pulled out a gun — believed to be similar to a 9-mm revolver — disarmed the officers and handcuffed them.

Another couple, registered in a separate room in the hotel, appeared and helped gag and tie up the officers, binding their legs to their wrists.

The four then fled, taking the officers' guns. They tore out the phone as they left.

Currie managed to knock a glass off a table and used a broken shard to cut through the ropes. Within 10 minutes he and Milne were free.

The two officers, still handcuffed, ran to the registration desk and alerted police.

Victoria police Inspector Richard said there was "a strong possible chance" the four were involved in the theft of $17,000 from a safe at the Eaton's store in Courtenay Wednesday.

Ward issued descriptions of the four:

—A male, aged 27, five feet 10 inches tall, 180 pounds, medium-length dark brown or black hair, wearing a black shirt and black cord pants, tattoos on both his arms, and a small gold band on his left little finger.

—A man, late twenties, extremely pale, long thin face, six feet one inch tall, 175 pounds, long shoulder-length black hair and wearing a three-quarter length black coat.

—A woman, 27 years old, 135 pounds, medium-length brown hair, wearing a ring on her left hand, and with a cut on her forehead.

—A woman, late twenties, blonde hair, slight build, attractive, and wearing a full-length green and grey leather coat.

Ward said a Colwood RCMP patrol officer had stopped one of the men driving on the Island Highway late Thursday night. The man was unable to produce a driver's licence but gave a name.

Ward said the officer let the man go but shortly afterwards grew suspicious.

Later in the evening officers located the car, a late model Buick, in the Executive House parking lot.

Police found the car in the hotel lot and presume the four made their getaway in another vehicle — believed to be a light-colored Chevrolet product.

The four used fictitious names when they registered.

Ward said Currie and Milne were not sure they were entering the right room and thus were unprepared for the reception they received.

WEEKEND FERRIES TO RUN

There will be no weekend interruption of ferry service and negotiations for 650 government-employed ferry officers resume Monday in Vancouver. However, preparations for rotating strikes proceed in the background.

A strike vote among the 500 licensed personnel employed by B.C. Ferries, about 150 employed by highways department ferries and eight working for the forest service gives the officer's component of B.C. Government Employees Union marine branch 93 per cent support in favor of a walkout.

But today chief negotiator Peter Marshall said he had been contacted by the Public Service Commission and there was agreement to resume talks which went to mediation and collapsed two weeks ago.

Marshall said the sides were "getting together as intelligent people can do . . . sit down and talk about the thing and see if we can get this settled."

The union has given assurance there would be no strike action before Tuesday at the earliest, although strike notice service this morning would entitle officers to walk off their ships as early as Monday.

Marshall said executive which met Thursday in Sidney decided a system of rotating strikes terminal-by-terminal would be most effective in case it is not possible to reach a settlement.

Officers also would be willing to negotiate emergency service in the Gulf Islands.

A strike of all units represented by the licensed component of BCGEU marine branch would halt government ferries everywhere in B.C.

Lalonde 'Party' To Plans

McKENZIE
. . . to Supreme Court

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Health Minister Marc Lalonde disclosed Thursday that he was a party to the first suggestion that he use a distillery private jet for his controversial flight to Israel last week.

And Opposition leader Robert Stanfield today said the minister should resign if he had misled the house.

Lalonde stated that it was he who proposed that the Israeli embassy here make all the arrangements for the flight aboard the Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. aircraft.

The minister gave this information for the first time when questioned in the Commons for the second day this week about the flight which opposition MPs have suggested represents a possible conflict of interest.

During Thursday's exchange, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told MPs that they could discuss the flight in question and the practice of cabinet ministers accepting free rides from private corporations when proposed conflict of interest legislation goes to a House committee for study later this session.

The prime minister earlier this week, in an indirect rebuke to Lalonde, stated that it is contrary to government policy for ministers to accept free rides from private interests while on official business. He said that in future they will find out how they are to be transported to inviting countries before accepting such invitations.

Up until Thursday Lalonde and Trudeau have insisted that all arrangements for Lalonde to fly aboard the Seagrams jet were made by the Israeli embassy. However, a public relations firm representing the distillery said the invitation was issued by the Bronfman family, which owns a more than 30 per cent interest in the corporation.

Tory MPs have noted that Lalonde has attacked advertising by breweries in Canada recently, and connected this attack to his flight aboard a plane owned by a distillery whose largest competitor in the country is the brewing industry.

Sinclair Stevens (PC-York Simcoe) asked Lalonde Thursday whether he had any previous knowledge that the Bronfman jet was to be used for his flight before the arrangements were officially made by the embassy.

The minister replied that when the use of the jet was first discussed, he, Charles Bronfman and the Israeli ambassador were present.

JUSTICE NAMED

A 36-year-old Victoria lawyer has been made a Justice of the Supreme Court of B.C.

In a telephone call from Ottawa today the justice department told The Times that Lloyd G. McKenzie will fill a newly-created position in that court.

McKenzie, of 3434 Bonair, was admitted to the bar in 1948 and became Queen's Counsel in 1960. He is a senior partner of Harmon and Company of Victoria.

Japanese Protest

TOKYO (UPI) — Thousands of Japanese students and workers staged a noisy demonstration today demanding the cancellation of President Ford's upcoming trip to Tokyo.

Organizers of the protest said the action was only the first in a series of anti-American demonstrations planned by the Communist and Socialist parties.

BEER UP MONDAY

Bottled beer increases in price by 20 cents per case Monday morning at all provincial liquor outlets.

The Liquor Administration Branch said today a dozen bottles of beer will sell as of Monday for $3.55, an increase of five per cent over the current price which was raised from $3 last summer.

The new price represents $2.81 for the beer, 14 cents tax and 60 cents deposit on the bottles.

The summer price increase was to cover an increase in the bottle deposit and the increase next week follows pressure from the brewing industry to raise prices to help meet increased cost of production.

Natives Given $150M Tax-Free

MONTREAL (CP) — An agreement in principle was signed today with the Quebec and federal governments awarding native peoples $150 million tax-free in compensation for adverse effects created by the massive James Bay hydroelectric power project in northwestern Quebec.

The agreement in principle between the Cree and Inuit, the two governments, the James Bay Energy Corp., the James Bay Development Corp. and Hydro-Quebec, was signed in the presence of Premier Robert Bourassa and Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

The main points of the agreement are:

—A $75-million payment to the native peoples over the first 10-year period.

—A $75-million payment over a longer period for royalties from the province's hydroelectric projects.

—A share of the province's revenue from future hydroelectric developments.

All payments are to be tax-exempt, Chief Billy Diamond, a spokesman for the native peoples, told a news conference.

Chief Diamond said the native peoples were also to receive a 2,000-square-mile reserve for Cree Indians and a 25,000-square-mile area for exclusive use by the Cree people for hunting, fishing and trapping.

He said a government program is to be established to ensure a minimum income for Cree Indians whose livelihood depends on hunting, fishing and trapping.

The agreement in principle was made following a tour by the Grand Council of Crees of eight communities in the northwestern Quebec area around the $12-billion hydroelectric project.

Chief Diamond said the agreement included the shifting of the LG-1 dam site to Mile 54 from Mile 23 on La Grande River. The Fort George Cree band, which lives at the mouth of the river, had wanted the elimination of the dam, originally to be built 25 miles from their settlement, and a scaling down of LG-2, the giant 590-foot dam now under construction, 76 miles from their settlement.

Arab Oil Money Eyed for Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has received tentative offers of Arab oil money for housing and is actively interested, Urban Affairs Minister Barnett Danson said Thursday.

Danson said in an interview that he has had offers of money in telephone conversations but "when you try to put your finger on some specific offer, nothing happens."

But he said he has just been told that one offer has been confirmed and he will look into it. He would not elaborate.

There are a number of conditions that must be met before the government can accept Arab oil funds, the minister said.

"One of the problems seems to be that these offers are in American dollars," Danson said. The government could not gamble on American dollar exchange rates remaining the same over a long period.

The government wanted the money in Canadian dollars as the loans would be for long terms. If payments were in U.S. dollars, Canada could wind up paying more than originally estimated if the exchange rate changed.

The urban affairs minister said the government is only interested in money for residential mortgages.

The Arab oil money could be channelled in some way through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., he said. Or it could be used by private mortgage investment companies.

There have been reports in government circles that at least two offers have been made recently by Arab sources.

TIMES legislative reporter Linda Hughes will be reporting from China during the two-week visit of Premier David Barrett and a party of government, industry and labor officials. Hughes and CBC cameraman Ron Thompson of Vancouver are the only two press representatives on the tour. They were first to apply for the only two extra places available. For details of the itinerary of the premier's party see page 23.

FORD VETOES INCREASE IN WORLD FOOD AID

ROME (CP) — Citing inflation and other domestic considerations, President Ford has turned down a request for an immediate increase of one million tons in world food aid, a United States official said today.

The decision seemed sure to spark criticism from many participants in the World Food Conference who already feel the meeting has done nothing concrete toward combatting starvation. (See also Page 51.)

The announcement was made by Anne Armstrong, counsellor to President Ford and third-ranking member of the U.S. delegation to the conference. The one million-ton grant would have a commercial value of about $175 million, and would have boosted total U.S. food aid this year to 4.9-million tons, she said.

Mrs. Armstrong said the White House decision was based on domestic considerations and what such an increase in aid would have on inflation and prices in the U.S.

She said the request came at a time when the "American housewife is having a tough time meeting her own budget. American citizens are having a tough time feeding their own families."

Fire Guards Crater Secret

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — A crater with a fire burning around it was sighted by an army helicopter after persons from Victoria to Portland, Ore., saw a bright light in the sky Thursday night.

Law enforcement officials received reports of an object — believed to be a meteor — falling and burning in Southwest Washington about 8 p.m.

It was first sighted in the Victoria area about 90 minutes earlier.

"A helicopter from Ft. Lewis was dispatched and hovered over a site three miles northwest of Cinebar and saw the crater and fire," a state patrol spokesman said.

The two pilots who sighted the crater while on a training mission said their best guess of its size was 100 feet long by 20 feet wide.

"But even through the clouds there was a kind of floodlight effect, like looking into a murky swimming pool that has its lights on," said co-pilot John James. "You knew there was a powerful source of light there."

Pilot Rich Morgan said that from 3,000 feet up, he saw "what looked like a pretty good fire ringing the crater."

The men were diverted to the area of the crater shortly after 9 p.m. at the request of McCord AFB, which had received reports of the "fiery object in the sky" from military and commercial pilots.

McCord was concerned that a plane might be down.

The object had been sighted earlier in the evening by pilots for the coast guard and airforce as well as by numerous others. Many persons called radio stations with reports about the object.

One group on Camano Island described it as apparently burning, with pieces falling off.

The state patrol said the Lewis county sheriff's office would send out a party to inspect the crater today.

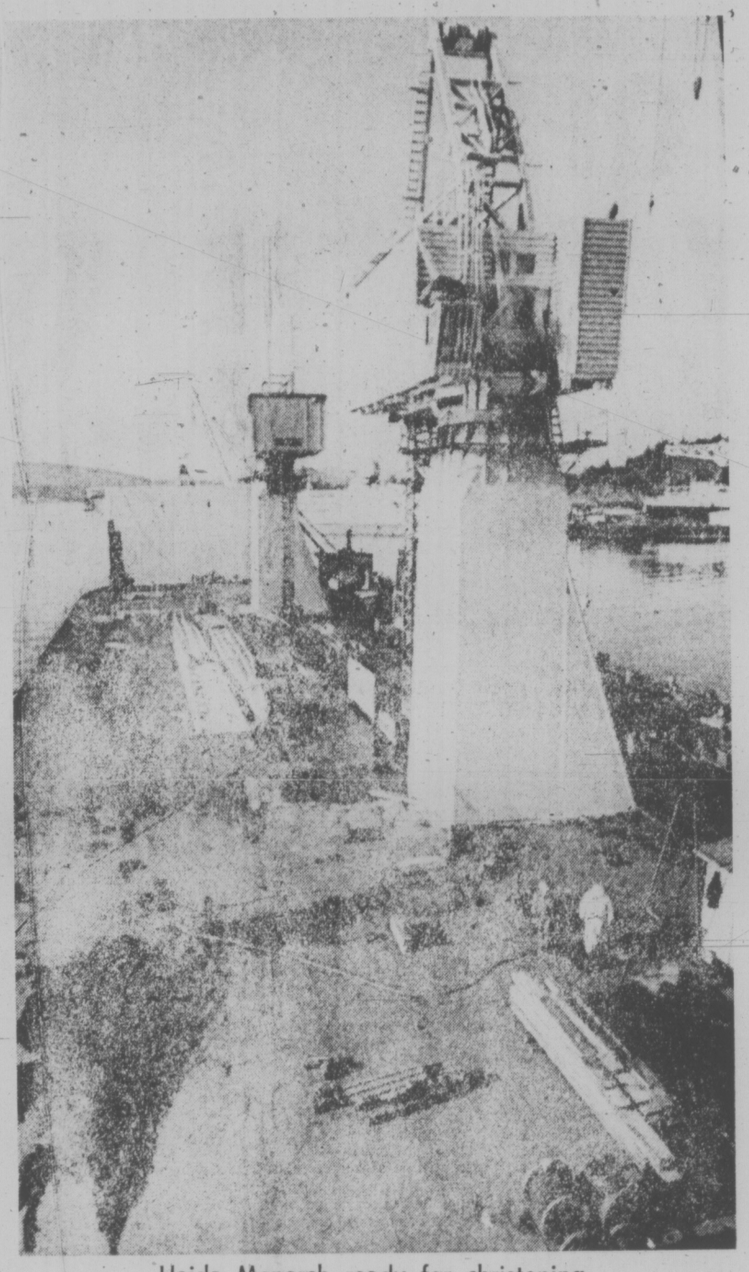
Barge First Of Kind



Haida Monarch ready for christening

The first of her kind in the world, an $8 million log barge will receive the name Haida Monarch at a christening ceremony in Yarrows shipyard on Saturday.

Capable of self-loading and self-dumping a cargo of 15,000 tons of logs, the Haida Monarch is the first log barge designed to move under her own power.

Her twin 3,600 horse-power diesel engines will give her a cruising speed of 12 knots.

Built for Kingcome Navigation Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, a subsidiary of MacMillan-Bloedel, she will be christened by the wife of Kingcome's general manager, Roy Henderson.

After about two days of sea trials, the Haida Monarch will go into service later this month, operating between bases on the Queen Charlotte Islands, the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Efficiency, rather than esthetics, has resulted in a unique silhouette for ship-watchers.

She's 424 feet in length with a beam of 88 feet, drawing 20½ feet amidships when fully loaded.

She is also the first log barge to carry electrically-powered cranes, instead of diesel-operated ones, made possible by the amount of power she is capable of generating.

Extensive tank tests were carried out with models to check what power she would require and how she would react under various sea conditions before construction began in the fall of 1973.

The "dumping process, which entails the Haida Monarch listing to a 35 degree angle, was a major challenge for her designers, the naval architects at Talbot-Jackson and Associates in North Vancouver.

Her main engines have specially-prepared beds to avoid undue strain while the barge is on a list. All equipment and accommodation is designed to avoid undue strain or discomfort. The beds in the crew's quarters are specially designed and the electric stove in the Haida Monarch's galley is set on gimbals.

The Haida Monarch's auxiliary engines have been set to a 15 degree angle so that they can generate power for lights, refrigerators and other equipment during the dumping process.

She will be manned with a minimum crew of 10, each man having his own soundproof cabin. There is a recreation room, complete with television.

The two main factors of this unique craft are her speed and safety.

Kingcome marine superintendent Peter Brown explained:

"Because there is no tow involved, for the same power she can make better speed, making more trips than any conventional barge in a given length of time."

The danger of a tow breaking has been eliminated, Brown said, increasing the safety factor.

A smaller version of the Haida Monarch is also "on the drawing board," Brown said.

She will be 382 feet in length and draw 18½ feet when carrying a full cargo of 10,000 tons of logs.

Contracts required by Aberdeen Private Hospital have left relatives paying for rooms long after patients have died, Tory leader Scott Wallace charged in the legislature Thursday.

Wallace said Aberdeen is the only private hospital in Victoria he knows of which requires patients or their relatives to sign a residency agreement for a one-month period.

If the patient dies in the hospital during the month, according to Wallace, the relatives must still pay for the entire month.

"I'm not asking if this is legal or illegal," he said in an interview outside the house. "I'm asking if it is moral or immoral.

"Clearly the practice bears looking into by the consumer or health minister."

Asked in the house, Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young said she would "take the matter as notice," meaning she would look into the situation and return an answer to the legislature.

Wallace said he had been in touch with Aberdeen owner Neil DeMacedo, who refused to "put anything on paper" but said his contracts are legal.

According to Wallace, DeMacedo said the contracts "are the only way we can make the hospital pay."

The matter came to light, said Wallace, when a constituent reported his elderly relative had died five days into a month and he was forced to pay for the entire month.

Wallace said he would contact Human Resources Minister Norm Levi to find out if the government has paid for empty rooms under its program to pay private hospital costs for needy senior citizens.

Contacted today, DMacedo said Wallace's comments sound like a case of a "poor, unfortunate politician who has run out of issues . . . and is grabbing at straws."

He declined to discuss details of monthly charges and said he would leave it to Ms. Young to do so after she has been in touch with him.

But he said that in medical terms, he believes Wallace is "suffering from diarrhoea of the mouth."

He did provide the name and number of a woman who had a relative die after a short stay at Aberdeen four years ago and she told the Times she had received a refund from Aberdeen which "more than satisfied" her.

She praised the hospital for the "very gracious" way they had cared for her terminally-ill sister.

John Tisdalle, former Socred MLA for Saanich and the Islands, said that following Wallace's "very dubious argument," perhaps physicians should return fees where their patient dies.

He said his experience with a relative who died in another private hospital was that a portion of the month's charges was returned.

Red Junket Off Ground Despite Fog

Premier Barrett's departure for a two-week tour of China was almost thwarted today by heavy fog shrouding the Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle area.

The premier's 10-member party was to have left Victoria on a Pacific Western flight at 10:40 a.m. today, but the plane was delayed for more than three hours in Seattle by fog.

A government jet was hurriedly arranged and the party left Victoria at about 11 a.m. to fly to Abbottsford airport. The tour members were ferried by car to Vancouver International where their 1:30 p.m. flight to Tokyo was scheduled to leave on time despite a heavy fog cover earlier this morning.

The 10-member official party includes Barrett, Health Minister Dennis Cocke, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, and their wives, NDP whip Emery Barnes, MacMillan-Bloedel president Denis Timmis, International Woodworkers of America regional president Jack Munro and interpreter Quan Wong.

Times reporter Linda Hughes and CBC cameraman Ron Thompson will accompany Barrett on the tour.

The premier's party will spend two days in Tokyo before leaving for Peking where activities will include a banquet given in the premier's honor by the Institute of the International Club.

After two days in Peking, the party will fly to Shihchiachuang, a city about 200 miles south of Peking, for a day-long visit and then return to Peking where Barrett will host a banquet in the Peking Duck restaurant.

The party will then fly to Harbin, a city in the northeast of China and spend three days touring the area before returning to Peking for an ambassador's reception.

From Peking the party will travel to Shanghai and then to Kwangchow, south of Shanghai, for a two-day visit, before leaving for Hong Kong and the flight back to Vancouver.

Sewage Outfall Approval Held

The B.C. Pollution Control Board today gave the Capital Regional District 60 days to provide it with further evidence for permission to discharge sewage into Ganges harbor.

Chairman Ben E. Marr said the pollution board has delayed its final decision on an appeal by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control against issuing a sewage discharge permit to the region because "insufficient evidence was presented to the board".

The appeal was heard at a public hearing held at Ganges in September and aroused widespread interest at the time.

Marr said the "board is concerned that the district's calculations for the treatment plant and outfall system are based on an anticipated population growth rate over a five-year period only."

"If the district's parent proposal is approved, plant extension may have to be considered soon after installation and little assessment has been made of the possible additions or options which may have to be considered at that time," he said.

Marr requested the capital regional to supply the following information.

—An assessment of the present method of handling sewage, existing and anticipated future problems with the development of the area.

—Re-assessment of effluent dilution and dispersion based on an anticipated development within a 25-year period. (The board feels this would be more practical.)

—Assessment of options available in the event of the above 25 years forecast indicating potential future problems or if a monitoring program requires modification of works.

SPACE JUNK SEEN

A flaming mass spotted over Victoria skies about 6:30 p.m. Thursday was seen as far north as Fort St., James and south to Seattle.

"It had all the appearances of a typical fireball, although it could have been a bit of satellite or piece of space junk," said Dominion Astrophysical Observatory astronomer Murray Fletcher.

Space junk is the collection of man-made scientific instruments left floating in space when they're no longer useful, he said.

One resident of Austin Ave. near the Gorge saw the fireball, too.

"I saw a big ball of flame leaving a golden trail of fire behind it, really moving across the sky, faster than a jet, and going toward Mount Douglas," said Alex Hvidberg.

The fireball was similar to a meteor, said Fletcher, except that it was visible for more than 30 seconds whereas meteors are seldom visible for more than a few seconds.

The appearance of a fireball is not too unusual, said Fletcher who has seen "two or three in the last 10 years."

Outdoors Class Plan Backed

Greater Victoria school board is making moves to teach its high school students about the outdoors.

Two Mt. Douglas senior secondary school teachers got a warm reception from trustees for their proposal to offer a credit Grade 11 course in outdoors explorations in January.

The course received the recommendation of the board's curriculum committee and is expected to get board approval on Monday.

Industrial education teacher Bill Conconi and art teacher Monty Fulton have been teaching the course on a non-credit basis up to now.

The board is also planning to train other interested high school teachers to teach outdoor education courses.

Conconi chaired a committee of 25 teachers which met this fall to draw up some guidelines for teacher in-service programs in outdoor education.

The committee's recommendations, presented to the curriculum committee Wednesday, stressed instructing teachers in safety techniques — canoeing, water safety, first aid, rescue, life-saving and survival techniques.

Teachers should also be taught hiking techniques, plant identification, use of maps and compass, alpine hiking, ropework and other activities, it said.

The committee recommended the board buy canoes, small sail boats, paddles, life jackets, ropes, ice axes, snow shoes, and cross country skis, and for each school tents, compasses and maps, and first aid supplies.

Conconi and Fulton's Mt. Doug course aims to make students aware of and appreciate the outdoors, as well as teaching them such skills as canoeing, firelighting, orienteering, cooking, hiking, and provision of shelters.

Classroom work will be combined with wilderness hikes and camping trips and visits to museums, archives and libraries.

Parking Government's Lot

After voicing concern about the potential parking problems inherent in the development, Victoria city council Thursday granted rezoning approval to a massive $7 million addition to the B.C. Hydro building at Pandora and Cormorant.

A public hearing was told the new building on the former Hydro parking lot where excavation work is already in progress — will house about 1,300 provincial government employees, in addition to 500 in the present structure.

A total of 56 parking spaces will be provided within the complex, but architect Bob Siddall said he didn't know how these would be apportioned between visitors and employees.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young commented: "There comes a stage where I believe we have to take it on faith to some degree that the provincial government will produce the goods it has promised to produce," in the way of peripheral parking, shuttle bus services for employees and other transit improvements.

Business, professional and residential objectors were heard by council.

An electronics dealer complained that construction workers engaged on the site are occupying available parking spaces and creating problems for his custromers.

Solicitor Sean F. Howard, of 812 Cormorant, submitted a written objection warning that council would leave the city open to a suit for damages if it granted the rezoning, and ignored its parking obligations to others in the neighborhood.

"By passing the bylaw you will be discriminating against others and favoring the applicant in a manner contrary to the rules of law and equity which you must follow in your dealings with all citizens and owners of property," he stated.

Howard also said the city would be creating "a most dangerous precedent" by not insisting on adequate offstreet parking provisions, and claimed the project would be "a disaster for the area."

Ald. Sam Bawlf criticized Public Works Minister Bill Hartley for failing to have a representative at the hearing to answer such complaints, and Mayor Peter Pollen said the lack of an environmental impact study was "insensitive from a government who feels developers are the ogres of the western world."

On another agenda item, council flatly refused a government request that the city establish special loading and unloading zones for provincial government vehicles in the downtown area.

Said Young: "It's difficult to refrain from comment on that particular item."

Added the mayor: "We're going to have to find an alternative for that term 'rapacious entrepreneur'."

Woman, 68, Dies In Suite Fire

A 68-year-old woman died after fire broke out in her apartment in the Mount Douglas Court, 1550 Arrow, shortly before 1 a.m. today.

Saanich fire officials identified the woman as Florence McCarthy.

Deputy chief Art Logie said the woman was rescued from her ground floor apartment by assistant chief Hector McNeil who entered through a broken window and found her lying on the floor, her head against the bathroom door.

Logie said McNeil carried Mrs. McCarthy into a hallway where first aid was applied. She was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital but died about 15 minutes later.

The deputy chief said the cause of the fire has not been determined, although is believed to have been a carelessly placed cigarette. The fire originated in a bed-chesterfield.

All of the tenants in the apartment block — many of them elderly — were evacuated while firemen fought the fire, which they managed to contain to Mrs. McCarthy's suite.

No estimate of damage was released.

It was the first fire fatality in Saanich this year, Logie said.

Ask The Times

Q. In 1968 at Mill Bay, I was charged no road tax for gasoline for a power lawn mower. It was a lot less than the price of gas for a car. The fuel was drawn from a special tank. It was quite legal but I don't think many people realize this. Can this be done in Victoria? Has the special tax been discontinued? — S.S.

A. Yes, you can get the gas in Victoria. It is known as marked or purple gas and is mainly used for industrial equipment, boats and farm equipment. The tax is three cents a gallon, compared with 15 cents on car gas. B.C. farmers pay no tax on gas used for farm machinery, but they must have a permit.

Q. Can you please tell how to get Brazil nuts out of the shell in one whole piece. I can buy whole, shelled nuts at the store so it can be done. How is it done by commercial people? R.D.

A. B.C. wholesalers say Brazil nuts reach North America already shelled, and they don't know how it's done. They suggest writing to Hugh Chevreau of the Johnson Nut Company, 1220 Birchmont Rd., Scarborough, Ontario.

Council Seeks Study Of Rent Team Use

Victoria city council agreed Thursday to give interim financing assistance to the Victoria Rental Aid Service, but indicated the agency's effectiveness should be assessed before the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee considers further aid next year.

Ald. Alf Hood said municipalities had not received an audited financial statement for either the home-finding group or its splinter group, the Regional Rental Referral Agency.

Their sources of funds and how the money was used were unknown to elected representatives, Hood said, adding: "We're entitled to answers to such questions before 1975 when the grant structure is considered."

The two organizations had received funding from the provincial human resources department, but that help was cut off last month.

The city's interim assistance, approved Thursday by a 5-3 vote, will give Victoria Rental Aid Service $350 a month until mid-February.

Cecilia Moved

Mother Cecilia Mary, 85-year-old founder of the Society of the Love of Jesus, remains at Royal Jubilee Hospital and is in fair condition, a hospital spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the hospital had mistakenly reported Mother Cecilia discharged Thursday after a four-day stay for observation. In fact, she was just moved from one ward to another.

A Volunteer Turn-Off?

It's the era of some whopping government handouts for good causes — and now Ottawa wants to find out whether such largesse is inadvertantly killing the spirit of public service.

So secretary of state Hugh Faulkner has named 15 people across Canada to an advisory council on volunteerism, among them Charles Barber of Victoria, the only council member west of Edmonton.

Barber, 25, is one of the organizers of the Pacific Community Self-Development Society, which built in recent years a highly successful Victoria Cool-Aid operation. He recently completed a 15-month appointment as a member of the Alcohol and Drug Commission of B.C.

He said Thursday that as he understands the function of the new council, it will examine organizations which use volunteers for social service purposes and which receive, or would like to receive federal financial support.

The question: is government inadvertantly making so much money available, through such things as Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives Programs, and in such a clumsy fashion, that it's turning people off volunteering themselves for community betterment programs?

The council itself is going to get generous support from Ottawa. Members will be paid $125 a day and expenses while working for the council.

100 Loggers Laid Off

Rayonier Canada Ltd. today closed its Jordon River logging operations, throwing 100 men out of work.

The closure was due to poor market conditions for lumber.

Normally, there is a winter layoff in mid-December but the closure came one month early and will last well through January.

Reopening will depend upon market conditions, the company said.

An additional 300 will be laid off Nov. 29 at Jeune Landing and Mahatta River on northern Vancouver Island and at Sewell Inlet in the Queen Charlottes.

Another 300 loggers will continue to work at Port McNeill and Holberg on northern Vancouver Island until early in December, when layoffs are anticipated.

Watch-Out It Works!

Central Saanich's watch on speeding drivers appears to be working.

Only one ticket was issued by a police radar unit in an hour of checking cars Thursday on Keating Cross Road.

Thirty cars had been stopped for speeding in a half-hour period the previous day and warned that tickets would be issued the next day.

"The word got around," police chief Bob Miles said when explaining the reduction in speeding.

'Strong' Canadiens Knock Down Bruins

By The Canadian Press

Henri Richard, hobbling around with a broken ankle, was saying that perhaps Montreal Canadiens, without him in the lineup, might begin to "come on strong."

After losing 8-6 to Buffalo Sabres when Richard left the game with his injury Wednesday night, the Canadiens rallied Thursday night to dump Boston Bruins 4-1.

In the only other National Hockey League game, Buffalo Sabres beat Minnesota North Stars 5-3, moving nine points in front of the Bruins in the Division 4 race.

Richard, the Montreal captain, said his injury will keep him out of the lineup eight to 10 weeks. But he said the team has been known to rally in the past when one of its top players was sidelined with injuries.

"I don't see why they should miss me," said Richard. "Our team has so many good hockey players."

Guy Lafleur scored twice against Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert and Montreal netminder Ken Dryden had one of his best games this season, stopping 39 Boston shots.

Defenceman Guy Lapointe, who scored three times against Buffalo Wednesday, got his ninth goal of the season and Jacques Lemaire added the other Montreal goal.

League points leader Bobby Orr of the Bruins beat Dryden for his 10th goal of the season.

The Canadiens now are four points behind leading Los Angeles in Division 3.

It was the first home loss of the season for the Bruins.

At Buffalo, Rick Martin's two goals led the Sabres who extended their undefeated streak to 10 games, including nine wins and a tie.

Goalie Roger Crozier recorded his third win in as many starts for the Sabres this season, continuing his comeback after missing most of last season due to pancreatis.

Brian Spencer, Rene Robert and Danny Gare provided the other Buffalo goals. Jude Drouin, Murray Oliver and Don Martineau scored for the North Stars.

Meanwhile Richard was not the only NHL player with a fractured ankle. Atlanta Flames announced Thursday that centre Bob Leiter was sidelined with a similar injury Wednesday when he was struck by a shot during the Flames' 4-3 win over Washington Capitals.

CLARKE SAYS 'SORRY' AND CHIEF ACCEPTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers has sent a letter of apology to Clarence Campbell for critical remarks he made about the National Hockey League president Nov. 2.

In his letter, Clarke, captain of the Flyers, said:

"I would like to apologize for statements I made to the press about you. The statements were made when I was angry and were not meant maliciously.

"I am very sorry for any discomfort these statements may have caused you."

Clarke had told reporters after a game against Montreal Canadiens that "none of the other big leagues have other old guys as their heads."

The statements came on the same day Campbell had handed out six-game suspensions to Philadelphia wingers Bob Kelly and Don Saleski as the result of a bench-clearing brawl in Oakland Oct. 25.

"As far as I am concerned, I accept Clarke's apology in good faith and the incident is closed," the 69-year-old Campbell said Thursday.

'Versatility' Key to Success For Both Teams in WFC Final

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimo coach Ray Jauch says both teams will have momentum Sunday in the Western Football Conference sudden-death final.

"Momentum is a relevant factor," Jauch said as his Eskimos prepared to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders for the right to advance to the Grey Cup game in Vancouver Nov. 24. "We won our last three games and they won their last four."

But quarterback Ron Lancaster, who directed Saskatchewan to a 24-14 win over British Columbia Lions in the sudden-death semi-final doesn't think momentum carries over from one game to the next.

"I think it's something that happens during a game," he said. "Just one thing can get it going."

Sunday will mark the Roughriders' ninth straight appearance in a WFC final, and they have moved on to the Grey Cup four times in that period.

"This club just plays better under pressure," says Saskatchewan coach John Payne. "They fight a little harder when they have their backs to the wall."

The Eskimos downed the Roughriders 25-23 in last year's fog-bound WFC final to go to the Grey Cup for the first time since 1960. Edmonton has also taken five of the last seven games with Saskatchewan, with the two losses coming by a combined total of two points.

Payne said past performances will not have any bearing on Sunday's outcome.

Jauch says versatility is the key to the success of both teams.

"The teams work the pass and the run and don't zero in on any one back," he said.

Lancaster, who passed for 20 touchdowns to lead the CFL, has veteran fullback George Reed to lead the ground attack. Reed, who holds most CFL rushing records, ran for 1,447 yards this season to top the league.

Edmonton's offence is directed by quarterback Tom Wilkinson, the WFC nominee for outstanding player in the CFL. He tossed 13 touchdowns and led the CFL in accuracy by completing 66 per cent of his passes.

Roy Bell spearheads the Eskimo rushing game with assistance from Calvin Harrell. Bell was the second-leading rusher in the CFL with 1,341 yards, while Harrell rumbled for 626 and led runners in touchdowns with nine.

Saskatchewan is concerned about George McGowan, last year's outstanding player in the CFL who returned to his wide-receiving slot late in the season after missing most of Edmonton's games with a pulled hamstring.

"Boy, does he make a difference," said Jim Eddy, Saskatchewan defensive coach. "You've got to give him double coverage."

The thought of speedy Larry Highbaugh, a defensive halfback who comes in for key offensive plays, on the field with McGowan unsettles Eddy.

"When they're both in there, you're forced into doing other things."

Wheaties, Oil Kings Tie In Penalty-Filled Battle

By The Canadian Press

Referee Bill Chapple of Brandon had his work cut out for him Thursday night as he issued 174 minutes in penalty time while Brandon Wheat Kings and Edmonton Oil Kings battled to a 7-7 tie in one of two Western Hockey Leagues games to end in ties.

In contrast, only eight penalties were called in Medicine Hat where the hometown Tigers and Winnipeg Clubs ended up with five goals apiece.

The Oil Kings had to fight back for their tie in the game played at Brandon. They went ahead 2-1 after the first period but, following a head-knocking second period, they trailed 5-4. The Edmonton club fought back with three goals in the second half of the final period to gain the tie.

The Edmonton comeback was completed by defenceman John Phillips who connected with a screen shot from the point with just over a minute left in the game.

Wayne Perkins led the way for Oil Kings with two goals, while singles went to Robin Sadler, Terry Bucyk, Mike Will and Garry Rissling.

For Brandon it was Denny McLean, with two, Jeff Sheardown, Gary Ashton, Dan Bonar, Murray Good and Blaine Stoughton.

Edmonton drew 20 penalties in the game, including seven fighting majors, two game misconducts and two misconducts.

The Wheat Kings weren't far off that performance with 18 penalties—seven for fighting, two game misconducts and one misconduct.

In Medicine Hat, a four-goal production by 19-year-old centre Greg Vaydik led the Tigers to their tie, their sixth consecutive game without a loss.

The teams had two goals each after one period before the Tigers took a 4-3 second period lead.

The other goal for Medicine Hat was scored by Gary Vaughan.

Winnipeg's goals were scored by Guy Lash, Tom Legge, Grant Bakin, Kevin McCarthy and Pat Meagher.

Braves Still Winning

By The Associated Press

Buffalo has adjusted its game because of the absence of injured Ernie DiGregorio, their classy playmaking guard, but the other teams in the National Basketball Association can't seem to adjust to the Braves.

Buffalo stretched its winning streak to six games and its Atlantic Division lead to 2½ games ever defending league champion Boston by beating the Celtics 112-100 Thursday night.

"We're playing stronger team defence now because we realize we're not going to score as many points without Ernie," said Buffalo coach Jack Ramsay.

Randy Smith of Buffalo fired a game-high 27 points, Jim McMillian added 20, and Bob McAdoo, the league's leading scorer, 18. Jo Jo White was high for Boston with 25.

In other NBA games, Portland downed Atlanta 104-92, New York defeated Cleveland 94-89, and Houston beat Chicago 105-96.

In the American Basketball Association, New York defeated Memphis 108-101, San Antonio beat Kentucky 102-100 in overtime, and St. Louis defeated Virginia 118-96.

John Johnson sparked Portland with 19 points. Atlanta rookie John Drrew scored 31 and grabbed 18 rebounds.

Rule Changes on Field Goals Achieve Purpose . . . Barely

NEW YORK (AP) — The kickers can't kick as much this year. And, perhaps surprisingly, they are not kicking about it.

A number of rule changes were introduced this season, aimed at making life a little more difficult for National Football League place-kickers in order to slice away at their growing dominance of the game.

The changes have worked but, for the most part, the kickers don't seem to mind it much.

The two biggest changes involved field goals. The uprights were moved 10 yards back from the goal line to the end line. And, in the event of a missed field goal on a play that began beyond the 20-yard line, the ball is brought back to the line of scrimmage rather than automatically putting it on the 20.

Last year, through nine games, the league's 26 teams already had attempted 567 field goals and had made 364 of them. The year, the figures are down to 552 attempts and 210 made. The percentage of successful field goal attempts is down only slightly, from 64.2 to 60 per cent.

But the reduction in field goal attempts has led to more punting. Through the first half of last year, there were 871 punts. That is up to 968 through the similar period this season.

And the whole purpose for the changes — to shift the emphasis from field goals to touchdowns — has been achieved, but just barely. Touchdowns are up through nine games, but only to 517 rom 498.

Another rule change has eliminated the stampede downfield by the punting team, when the ball is snapped. The ends still can charge down, but the line has to wait for the ball to be kicked. As a result, punt returns have improved.

For example, last year's league-leading punt returner was San Francisco's Bruce Taylor, with a 13.8-yard average. This year's leader is New England's Mack Herron, with an 18.3-yard average. In fact, eight punt returners are matching or surpassing Taylor's 1973 mark.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Doug Simon hit a two-run homer and a triple to lead Canada to a 7-2 victory over Italy in first-round action Thursday at the world amateur baseball tournament.

Blood Flows As Boxers Butt Heads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — World junior lightweight champion Ben Villaflor got a bloody gash over his left eye when he butted heads with Ray Lunpy in the sixth round of their non-title fight Thursday night and the referee halted the fight at the round's end, calling it a draw.

Referee Elmer Costa said if Villaflor had been ahead, he would have been awarded a decision, even though the butt was considered accidental, but Lunny led on two of the three scorecards.

Villaflor, 131¾, a Filipino fighting out of Honolulu, now has a record of 65 victories, three draws and four losses. Lunny, 133, of Redwood City, Calif., remains unbeaten with 18 victories and three draws.

UVic Opens Hoop Season With Good News and Bad

University of Victoria Vikettes are healthy for tonight's opening game of the Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball schedule against University of Alberta in Edmonton, but it's another story with the Vikings.

Vikings also are in Edmonton tonight to begin their CWUAA men's season against Alberta Golden Bears, league and playoff champions the last two years, and two UVic players are on the limp.

They are guards Leon Mitchell with a bad knee and Doug Mosher with a severe charley horse in his right leg. Both are making the trip and may see limited action.

"I'm really disappointed about the injury to Mosher," Viking coach Gary Taylor said Thursday. "He's been a steadying influence for us, which is remarkable in that he's a first-year man."

Mosher played for Mt. Douglas Rams last season in the Greater Victoria senior high school league.

Forwards making the trip are Lee Edmondson, Jim Duddridge, Pard Hogwiede, Dave Mulcahy and Lorn Dakin. Other guards are Bert Zethoff, Robbie Parris and Dale Macdonald.

The Bears, coached by Barry Mitchelson, have nine returnees and are favored to make it three championships in a row. Holdovers include Steve Panteluk, a second-team CWUAA all-star forward last year, and 6-foot-5 centre Dave Holland. A strong addition is guard Don Court, a transfer from University of Lethbridge where he played last season for the Pronghorns.

Vikette coach Mike Gallo, aiming to dethrone defending champion UBC Thunderettes this year, will have five forwards and five guards ready for tonight. Only physical problem, a minor one, is a sprained left ankle belonging to forward Edna Ritchie. It's been taped up and she'll play.

Other Vikette forwards are Marg Mainwaring, Cathy Auburn, Lynn Pullen and Teresa Marcin. Guards are Lorna McHattie, Laury Atkinson, Diane Robbie, Janice Turner and Donna Blackstock.

Miss Mainwaring and Miss Ritchie qualified last weekend in Vancouver for the B.C. team at the Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge in February.

Alberta, coached by Debbie Shogan, finished fourth last season in the standings. Among the returnees is Amanda Holloway, the team's top rebounder and second leading scorer.

It's a doubleheader weekend with all four teams in action again Saturday in Edmonton.

A Volleyball Offer Out of the Blue

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

When the topic is volleyball and the speaker is Vic Lindal, you listen.

So when Lindal, the B.C. provincial team coach and one of the most knowledgeable men on the Canadian volleyball scene, began to discourse Thursday on the whereabouts of one Rick Chapple, you couldn't help but pay attention.

Chapple is now in Montreal, his hopes high on making the Canadian national squad which is under the direction of Bill Neville, a Seattle product who's hoping to carry his present roster right through to the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

And should Chapple make the present club, he'll become the second Victorian to do so, the other being 23-year-old Greg Russell.

"Rick's chances of making the team are pretty good, especially with that great attitude of his," said Lindal Thursday in praise of the six-foot-six graduate of Claremont High School.

But until recently, Rick had given little thought of training with the nationals on a regular basis, or of even making the club.

"Rick was thinking about taking time off from the University of British Columbia (where he's competed for two years) and going travelling, probably to Europe. Then Bill Neville dropped a bombshell by calling him recently and asking him if he'd care to join the national training headquarters in Montreal," said Lindal.

"Well the offer came right out of the blue at Rick. He was really surprised, but he thought about it and then came and told me that he'd give it a shot. Then I helped him set up a weight training program to increase his strength."

Chapple first caught Neville's eye when he trained with the nationals prior to the team's games against the touring Japanese national squad in October.

"He impressed Neville with his height and great attitude," said Lindal. "His blocking was especially good, but his attitude is his most important asset. He's so keen, so enthusiastic that it's a real pleasure to work with him."

Lindal also credits Chapple with possessing "great ability to see in his mind's eye what's required to do a job," an intangible in preparing for anything.

With seven or eight positions set on the national squad, Neville is in the market for four or five new faces.

"Rick still has to work on his defence and spiking but those will come, especially with the way he works at things," said Lindal.

Chapple will work out with the nationals three times a week while playing with a local Montreal club.

Chapple may find Neville's lineup a bit too heavy to crack at this stage; perhaps he'll make the club, as Lindal thinks.

Either way, Chapple will go a long way in making a good name for himself in Canadian volleyball circles.

Comedy Cage Team To Play S. J. Willis

We've had the Harlem Globetrotters (dozens of times) and the Harlem Clowns and now, for the first time, the Harlem Nationals are making a visit to Victoria.

Led by comic Eural McKelvy, known to hundreds of thousands of fans as "Big Mac", the Nationals will present their special brand of basketball in a game against the S. J. Willis Homecoming Team Monday night at 8 at the S. J. Willis Junior High School gymnasium.

The acrobatic, six-foot, seven-inch McKelvy was with the Clowns for more than 10 years and is one of the great showmen of travelling basketball teams.

McKelvy, player-owner of the Nationals, has one of the most spectacular shots in the game — a one-handed push from 35 feet.

Fans are warned to be there early as often the comedy routines in the traditional warm-up ceremonies are more entertaining than the game itself.

There will be a preliminary mixed volleyball game at 7, featuring two combined teams of S. J. Willis boys' and girls' "A" players.

FORD TO RUN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will definitely run for the presidency in 1976, his chief spokesman said today.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Ford changed the "probably" that he was said before to "definitely" last Monday while talking to persons outside the White House.

It was learned that Ford gave an interview to be published in U.S. News and World Report this weekend in which he said he definitely will run.

Asked why Ford had positively made up his mind two years before the election, Nessen said:

"I guess you've heard him say how much he enjoys being president."

Island Search Nabs Four

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

RCMP officers stormed the Port Renfrew Hotel this morning and arrested a couple while other police arrested another couple in Chemainus at noon today, all suspects in an overnight assault on two policemen in downtown Victoria.

The all-out search, which saw police bristling with guns manning roadblocks throughout southern Vancouver Island this morning, followed the disarming and hogtieing of two plain clothes officers shortly after midnight.

A senior RCMP official said Cpl. Ed Currie and Const. Wendal Milne, plainclothes officers attached to the Colwood general investigation section, entered a room in the Executive House, 777 Douglas, shortly after midnight in the course of an investigation into a theft of $17,000 from a store in Courtenay Wednesday.

A man and a woman met the officers at the door and invited them in.

Without warning, the man pulled out a gun — believed to be similar to a 9-mm revolver — disarmed the officers and handcuffed them.

Another couple, registered in a separate room in the hotel, appeared and helped gag and tie up the officers, binding their legs to their wrists.

The four then fled, taking the officers' guns. They tore out the phone as they left.

Currie managed to knock a glass off a table and used a broken shard to cut through the ropes. Within 10 minutes he and Milne were free.

The two officers, still handcuffed, ran to the registration desk and alerted police.

Victoria police Inspector Richard said there was "a strong possible chance" the four were involved in the theft of $17,000 from a safe at the Eaton's store in Courtenay Wednesday.

A police spokesman said the couple was asleep in the Port Renfrew hotel and were completely surprised. A loaded 9 mm semi-automatic pistol was found under the man's pillow.

Police have also recovered what they believe to be Const. Milne's pistol, money taken from him and keys to the police car.

The spokesman said they tracked the couple down after learning a taxi had taken them to Port Renfrew early today.

Ward said a Colwood RCMP patrol officer had stopped one of the men driving on the Island Highway late Thursday night. The man was unable to produce a driver's licence but gave a name.

Ward said the officer let the man go but shortly afterwards grew suspicious.

Later in the evening officers located the car, a late model Buick, in the Executive House parking lot.

The four used fictitious names when they registered.

Ward said Currie and Milne were not sure they were entering the right room and thus were unprepared for the reception they received.

It's the second incident on the lower island this week in which RCMP officers have been disarmed.

A Duncan officer had his service revolver taken when he was attacked by two youths late Wednesday after stopping their car for a routine traffic check on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The pair fled and no suspects have been arrested. Police say the cases are not connected.

ARRESTED SUSPECTS are hustled into city police station today after raid on Port Renfrew hotel. Another couple was arrested at Chemainus following assault on two RCMP plain clothes officers at Executive House overnight. Armed police manned roadblocks on southern Vancouver Island, like this one at Goldstream this morning, in all-out hunt for two couples. (Photos by Bill Halkett and John McKay).

WEEKEND FERRIES TO RUN

There will be no weekend interruption of ferry service and negotiations for 650 government-employed ferry officers resume Monday in Vancouver. However, preparations for rotating strikes proceed in the background.

A strike vote among the 500 licensed personnel employed by B.C. Ferries, about 150 employed by highways department ferries and eight working for the forest service gives the officer's component of B.C. Government Employees Union marine branch 93 per cent support in favor of a walkout.

But today chief negotiator Peter Marshall said he had been contacted by the Public Service Commission and there was agreement to resume talks which went to mediation and collapsed two weeks ago.

Marshall said the sides were "getting together as intelligent people can do . . . sit down and talk about the thing and see if we can get this settled."

The union has given assurance there would be no strike action before Tuesday at the earliest, although strike notice served this morning would entitle officers to walk off their ships as early as Monday.

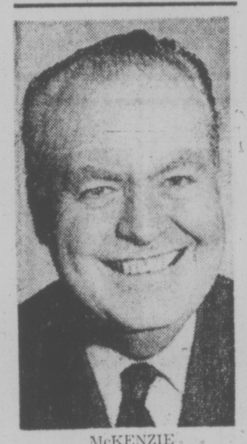
Marshall said the executive which met Thursday in Sidney decided a system of rotating strikes terminal-by-terminal would be most effective in case it is not possible to reach a settlement.

Officers also would be willing to negotiate emergency service in the Gulf Islands.

A strike of all units represented by the licensed component of BCGEU marine branch would halt government ferries everywhere in B.C.

TIMES legislative reporter Linda Hughes will be reporting from China during the two-week visit of Premier David Barrett and a party of government, industry and labor officials. Hughes and CBC cameraman Ron Thompson of Vancouver are the only two press representatives on the tour. They were first to apply for the only two extra places available. For details of the itinerary of the premier's party see page 23.

Lalonde 'Party' To Plans



McKENZIE
. . . to Supreme Court

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Health Minister Marc Lalonde disclosed Thursday that he was a party to the first suggestion that he use a distillery private jet for his controversial flight to Israel last week.

And Opposition leader Robert Stanfield today said the minister should resign if he had misled the house.

Lalonde stated that it was he who proposed that the Israeli embassy here make all the arrangements for the flight aboard the Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. aircraft.

The minister gave this information for the first time when questioned in the Commons for the second day this week about the flight which opposition MPs have suggested represents a possible conflict of interest.

During Thursday's exchange, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told MPs that they could discuss the flight in question and the practice of cabinet ministers accepting free rides from private corporations when proposed conflict of interest legislation goes to a House committee for study later this session.

The prime minister earlier this week, in an indirect rebuke to Lalonde, stated that it is contrary to government policy for ministers to accept free rides from private interests while on official business. He said that in future they will find out how they are to be transported to inviting countries before accepting such invitations.

Up until Thursday Lalonde and Trudeau have insisted that all arrangements for Lalonde to fly aboard the Seagrams jet were made by the Israeli embassy. However, a public relations firm representing the distillery said the invitation was issued by the Bronfman family, which owns a more than 30 per cent interest in the corporation.

Tory MPs have noted that Lalonde has attacked advertising by breweries in Canada recently, and connected this attack to his flight aboard a plane owned by a distillery whose largest competitor in the country is the brewing industry.

Sinclair Stevens (PC-York Simcoe) asked Lalonde Thursday whether he had any previous knowledge that the Bronfman jet was to be used for his flight before the arrangements were officially made by the embassy.

The minister replied that when the use of the jet was first discussed, he, Charles Bronfman and the Israeli ambassador were present.

JUSTICE NAMED

A 50-year-old Victoria lawyer has been made a Justice of the Supreme Court of B.C.

In a telephone call from Ottawa today the justice department told The Times that Lloyd G. McKenzie will fill a newly-created position in that court.

McKenzie, of 3434 Bonair, was admitted to the bar in 1948 and became Queen's Counsel in 1960. He is a senior partner of Harmon and Company of Victoria.

Japanese Protest

TOKYO (UPI) — Thousands of Japanese students and workers staged a noisy demonstration today demanding the cancellation of President Ford's upcoming trip to Tokyo.

Organizers of the protest said the action was only the first in a series of anti-American demonstrations planned by the Communist and Socialist parties.

BEER UP MONDAY

Bottled beer increases in price by 20 cents per case Monday morning at all provincial liquor outlets.

The Liquor Administration Branch said today a dozen bottles of beer will sell as of Monday for $3.55, an increase of five per cent over the current price which was raised from $3 last summer.

The new price represents $2.81 for the beer, 14 cents tax and 60 cents deposit on the bottles.

The summer price increase was to cover an increase in the bottle deposit and the increase next week follows pressure from the brewing industry to raise prices to help meet increased cost of production.

Natives Given $150M Tax-Free

MONTREAL (CP) — An agreement in principle was signed today with the Quebec and federal governments awarding native peoples $150 million tax-free in compensation for adverse effects created by the massive James Bay hydroelectric power project in northwestern Quebec.

The agreement in principle between the Cree and Inuit, the two governments, the James Bay Energy Corp., the James Bay Development Corp. and Hydro-Quebec, was signed in the presence of Premier Robert Bourassa and Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

The main points of the agreement are:

—A $75-million payment to the native peoples over the first 10-year period.

—A $75-million payment over a longer period for royalties from the province's hydroelectric projects.

—A share of the province's revenue from future hydroelectric developments.

All payments are to be tax-exempt, Chief Billy Diamond, a spokesman for the native peoples, told a news conference.

Chief Diamond said the native peoples were also to receive a 2,000-square-mile reserve for Cree Indians and a 25,000-square-mile area for exclusive use by the Cree people for hunting, fishing and trapping.

He said a government program is to be established to ensure a minimum income for Cree Indians whose livelihood depends on hunting, fishing and trapping.

The agreement in principle was made following a tour by the Grand Council of Crees of eight communities in the northwestern Quebec area around the $12-billion hydroelectric project.

Chief Diamond said the agreement included the shifting of the LG-1 dam site to Mile 54 from Mile 23 on La Grande River. The Fort George Cree band, which lives at the mouth of the river, had wanted the elimination of the dam, originally to be built 25 miles from their settlement, and a scaling down of LG-2, the giant 590-foot dam now under construction, 76 miles from their settlement.

Arab Oil Money Eyed for Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has received tentative offers of Arab oil money for housing and is actively interested, Urban Affairs Minister Barnett Danson said Thursday.

Danson said in an interview that he has had offers of money in telephone conversations but "when you try to put your finger on some specific offer, nothing happens."

But he said he has just been told that one offer has been confirmed and he will look into it. He would not elaborate.

There are a number of conditions that must be met before the government can accept Arab oil funds, the minister said.

"One of the problems seems to be that these offers are in American dollars," Danson said. The government could not gamble on American dollar exchange rates remaining the same over a long period.

The government wanted the money in Canadian dollars as the loans would be for long terms. If payments were in U.S. dollars, Canada could wind up paying more than originally estimated if the exchange rate changed.

The urban affairs minister said the government is only interested in money for residential mortgages.

The Arab oil money could be channelled in some way through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., he said. Or it could be used by private mortgage investment companies.

There have been reports in government circles that at least two offers have been made recently by Arab sources.

FORD VETOES INCREASE IN WORLD FOOD AID

ROME (CP) — Citing inflation and other domestic considerations, President Ford has turned down a request for an immediate increase of one million tons in world food aid, a United States official said today.

The decision seemed sure to spark criticism from many participants in the World Food Conference who already feel the meeting has done nothing concrete toward countering starvation. (See also Page 51.)

The announcement was made by Anne Armstrong, counsellor to President Ford and third-ranking member of the U.S. delegation to the conference. The one million-ton grant would have a commercial value of about $175 million, and would have boosted total U.S. food aid this year to 4.9-million tons, she said.

Mrs. Armstrong said the White House decision was based on domestic considerations and what such an increase in aid would have on inflation and prices in the U.S.

She said the request came at a time when the "American housewife is having a tough time meeting her own budget. American citizens are having a tough time feeding their own families."

Fire Guards Crater Secret

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) A crater with a fire burning around it was sighted by an army helicopter after persons from Victoria to Portland, Ore., saw a bright light in the sky Thursday night.

Law enforcement officials received reports of an object — believed to be a meteor — falling and burning in southwest Washington about 8 p.m.

It was first sighted in the Victoria area about 90 minutes earlier.

"A helicopter from Ft. Lewis was dispatched and hovered over a site three miles northwest of Cinebar and saw the crater and fire," a state patrol spokesman said.

The two pilots who sighted the crater while on a training mission said their best guess of its size was 100 feet long by 20 feet wide.

"But even through the clouds there was a kind of floodlight effect, like looking into a murky swimming pool that has its lights on," said co-pilot John James. "You knew there was a powerful source of light there."

Pilot Rich Morgan said that from 3,000 feet up, he saw "what looked like a pretty good fire ringing the crater."

The men were diverted to the area of the crater shortly after 9 p.m. at the request of McCord AFB, which had received reports of the "fiery object in the sky" from military and commercial pilots.

McCord was concerned that a plane might be down.

The object had been sighted earlier in the evening by pilots for the coast guard and airforce as well as by numerous others. Many persons called radio stations with reports about the object.

One group on Camano Island described it as apparently burning, with pieces falling off.

The state patrol said the Lewis county sheriff's office would send out a party to inspect the crater today.

LAST APPEAL

B.C. landlords made a final appeal Thursday to the NDP caucus to change its mind on rent controls.

The Rental Housing Council of B.C. met with the caucus members and asked them to begin a step-by-step withdrawal of rent controls "as an incentive for new construction and the preservation and improvement of the existing stock of rental housing."

They argued that the 10.6 per cent rent increase limit set out in new amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act should be subject to appeals.

If a tenant is faced with a higher rent increase, they said, he should appeal to the government's rent review authority and the landlord be required to justify the higher increase.

At the same time, tenants were appealing to the caucus to establish tighter rent controls and to allow tenants the right to bargain collectively with landlords on questions of rent and living conditions.

'Smear' Charges On Land Holdings

A Socred MLA has charged Resources Minister Bob Williams with a "glaring and blatant conflict of interest" in sharing a land holding with one of his department officials.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River) said Williams' public disclosure, filed in September, reveals that the minister's executive assistant, Bill Boutillier, holds second mortgage on a property owned jointly by Williams, Boutillier and Williams' mother.

Phillips raised the matter during question period in the House Thursday and asked whether the assistant could derive favors from the minister because of the joint holding.

Cabinet members shouted "smear, smear" and challenged Phillips to make an accusation.

Outside the House, Williams said he had held the property with Boutillier for several years but he was not sure how long his assistant had held the second mortgage on the property.

Williams denied emphatically that any conflict of interest exists because of the joint ownership and charged it was "typical" of the opposition to deal with such "irrelevant issues."

The property is in the Kitsilano area of Vancouver and is the site of an apartment building.

Crash Kills 200

LAGOS (Reuter) — About 200 persons were killed and others injured when two trains collided head-on near the Dahomey capital of Cotonou last week, Dahomean embassy sources said here Friday.

Elevator Firms Get Binding Pact

A binding collective agreement on five elevator construction companies and their employees was approved in principle by the legislature Thursday.

Labor Minister Bill King described the legislation as an "innocuous little bill" designed to settle the two-year dispute.

The companies involved, Armon Elevator Canada Ltd., Montgomery Elevator Co. Ltd., Otis Elevator Co. Ltd., Westinghouse Canada Co. Ltd., and Turnbull Co. Ltd., refused to accept terms of an industrial inquiry commission ruling approved by members of the International Union of Elevators' Constructors, Local 82.

Opposition members criticized the bill for "raising the whole issue of government attitude on labor relations."

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) criticized the government for presenting legislation leading to the greatest disruption of labor relations the province has ever seen.

"My objection," he said, "is the abuse of the legislative process by using our extreme authority to resolve this dispute."

Conservative Leader Scott Wallace said the government was making a mockery of its basic position that supports collective bargaining.

Although he supported the legislation, Wallace "wondered if the next episode brought to house) would be strike of the ferry officers who have threatened to cease working Monday.

"The irony for me is I've got to support this bill because I don't believe in the unmitigated power to strike."

Legislation forces the four elevator companies to belong to the Construction Labor Relations Association which bargains for a number of construction companies in the province.

TV Webs Slate Second Season Debuts

BURR

Times News Services

The ABC television network says it will put seven new programs on the air early next year as mid-season replacements for two series already cancelled and four others that will be cancelled.

On Oct. 9 the network said it was cancelling The Texas Wheelers and Kodiak.

This week ABC added The New Land, Paper Moon, Nakia and The Sonny Comedy Revue starring Sonny Bono.

All are first-season programs that premiered in September.

ABC said its six new mid-season series are:

Toma, a new version of the hour-long police series ABC cancelled last year after the star, Tony Musante, asked out of the show. The new version stars Robert Blake, starts Jan. 10 and will appear Friday nights.

Saturday Night at the Movies, two hours of films which will start Jan. 11.

Hotel Baltimore, a half-hour Thursday night comedy series produced by Norman Lear and concerning life in a gone-to-seed hotel. Premiering on Jan. 16, it will be followed on that date by:

Karen, another half-hour comedy which stars Karen Valentine as a single career girl in Washington.

Barney Miller, starting Jan. 19, a half-hour New York police comedy series that will be aired Sunday nights and star Hal Linden.

S.W.A.T., a one-hour Monday night series about a special weapons and tactical team on the police force of a large city.

Caribe, also premiering on that date, is another hour-long police series that is set in Miami and stars Stacey Keach.

Ironside, starring Raymond Burr and in its eighth season, is being cancelled in January and replaced with an hour-long private detective series, NBC-TV said Thursday.

The new show, Archer, stars Brian Keith and is based on the Ross MacDonald novels about private detective Lew Archer. It will replace Ironside on Thursday nights starting Jan. 30, NBC said.

There would be no other evening program cancellations, the network added.

The Burr series was the third cut by NBC as part of its mid-season program changes, and the 11th network series cancelled since the season began in September.

CBS, after saying it will drop Sons and Daughters and The Paul Sand Show, is expected to cancel one or more additional series.

NBC previously said it was dropping Born Free after Jan. 13, succeeding it with a weekly Smothers Brothers variety show, and replacing Sierra from Dec. 19 to mid-March with The Mac Davis music and variety show.

After that, the network says, the Davis show will be replaced by two half-hour comedies, Sunshine, and The Bob Crane Show, the later previously entitled Second Chance.

NBC, which has said the Davis program might return next fall as a regular series, said Thursday it also is cancelling three daytime game shows, Name That Tune, Winning Streak and Jeopardy.

BIG SWITCH PLAYED ON GAME SHOW IDEA

NEW YORK (AP) — About every game shown on television has a play-at-home version on sale in toy stores. But a new play-at-home TV game now coming on the market isn't seen on television. Nor is it likely to be.

The reason: Its goal is to encourage less TV viewing by children.

The game is Switch. It's being sold by mail by Action for Children's Television, an activist group which, since 1968, has demanded higher quality children's programs without commercial on television.

The general aim of the $1.50 plaything "is to let families know there's something else to life than television," says Peggy Charren, president of ACT, based in Newtonville, Mass.

BUT IT'S NOT CRUEL TO SWALLOW A FROG!

MARKET DRAYTON, England (UPI) — Derek Podmore was not cruel when he swallowed a live frog in a pub, a magistrates' court ruled Thursday.

Derek Podmore was hauled into court and charged with causing the frog unnecessary suffering.

Frank Fuller said he saw Podmore take the frog out of a can, gulp a mouthful of beer, swallow the frog and wash it down with more beer.

"He said it was delicious, although he could feel the frog jumping around in his stomach," Fuller testified.

Vet Elvred Jones testified that in his opinion swallowing the frog was cruel. "It must have died either from suffocation or shock," he said. But the magistrates ruled otherwise.

MacEachen Shuffle on Aid

MacEACHEN

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen refused Thursday to commit Canada to additional international food aid this year until he hears what other countries are willing to do.

He sidestepped the question during repeated questioning from Opposition leader Robert Stanfield, who based his questions on news reports from the Rome food conference.

MacEachen said Canada has set aside $50 million that could be used to buy about 250,000 tons of additional grain this year.

But additional aid should not be decided upon until it was shown that other countries would "put money on the table" to help countries in need of food.

But the minister, in comments in the Commons and later to reporters, was careful not to say that the amount of assistance Canada gives this year is dependent upon the response of other countries.

The background of the situation is this:

If grain-producing countries were to make up the shortage of up to 10 million tons of grain faced by the world's hungry this year, Canada's share might be one million tons, worth about $200 million.

As part of its regular aid program, Canada is committed to giving about 750,000 tons of grain this year.

This situation should not be confused with the long-term food problem which has seen Canada commit one million tons of grain a year, starting next year.

MacEachen has said that $50 million is available for food aid this year but has refused to designate it to specific spending.

How Canada spends that amount will not be known until after a meeting of the International Wheat Council in London later this month by which time available stocks and current world needs may be determined.

Rights 'Too Equal'

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments to the War Veterans Allowance Act do not meet the stated government objective of treating men and women equally under the act, the Senate was told Thursday.

"The equalities propounded by this bill appear to be more equal in favor of the female by five years," said Senator Rheal Belisle (PC—Ontario)).

"The male veterans must still wait until age 60 to gain an allowance, whereas a female veteran or the widow of a veteran or the common-law widow of a veteran can begin receiving benefits on reaching the age of 55."

A BATTLE WON!

OTTAWA (CP) — Dean Whiteway, the MP who pitched a tent on Parliament Hill to dramatize postal service shortcomings in Sandy Hook, Man., won his battle Thursday.

The Selkirk Progressive Conservative said he was notified during the day that the post office will install "brand spanking-new, metal-lock boxes" for the 82 residents of the centre, located about 40 miles north of Winnipeg.

"Oh, it's a great day for Sandy Hook. I've got good news to send back there," he beamed.

Last week, the newly-elected MP erected a tent in a corridor near the office of Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey. It was ordered removed two hours later by Commons Speaker James Jerome, but not before Mr. Whiteway had made his point.

Sandy Hook residents had been asking for extended postal hours. Their post office closes during lunchtime, then shuts for the day at 3 p.m.

Allmand Denies Farm Boss Quiz

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand denied Thursday that the RCMP used a Saskatoon travel agency to gather information on Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union.

"They say they are not watching Atkinson," the minister told reporters after being questioned in the Commons.

But George Thompson, manager of P. Lawson Travel Ltd., said in a telephone interview from Saskatoon that he was asked for information by RCMP officers "about the time" Atkinson organized a 1971 tractor demonstration on the Trans-Canada Highway in Prince Edward Island.

"It was just to find out what flights he was on," Thompson said. "And it was just the once.

"They (the RCMP) do it with Air Canada, with everybody."

Atkinson, reached at NFU offices in Saskatoon, said he was angered by the disclosure and has sent a letter to Allmand asking for an investigation.

The RCMP uses all available sources of information during an investigation; but he had been told that no travel agency checks were made on Atkinson, Allmand added.

Although Atkinson had been arrested during the P.E.I. demonstration, he said, there was no reason to suspect him of subversive activities.

Further checks would be made with the RCMP to clarify the situation, he said.

The subject was raised initially Thursday by Lorne Nystrom (NDP—York-Melville) who cited news reports indicating an agency was being used to check the whereabouts of Atkinson and native leaders.

Allmand said he has not checked whether the RCMP monitors travel agencies for information on native leaders.

Atkinson said he will recommend to NFU officials that they withdraw their account for Thompson's agency.

"This is serious. It has serious implications for the National Farmers Union. I resent very much it happening."

Thompson said he can understand the NFU leader's reaction.

"The whole thing makes him sound almost like a subversive. He has a right to be upset."

Allmand also was asked in the Commons whether the RCMP is investigating other union leaders or members of Parliament.

Such investigations would only take place if individuals were suspected of committing criminal offences "or if there were serious suspicions about their committing breaches against the security of the country," Allmand said.

PERSEVERANCE PAYS FOR EDMONTON MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Perseverence paid off Thursday for Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) when the Commons approved in principle a private bill he had unsuccessfull introduced four times before.

It would require electoral boundary commissions to give reasons for the changes they recommend in federal riding boundaries.

Lambert said members of Parliament could more effectively criticize proposed changes if they knew the reasons behind the recommendations.

MPs still would not be allowed to amend the recommendations of the independent commissions. However, the commissions might be persuaded to amend their own recommendations if MPs were able to make more informed criticism of the proposals.

Lambert said he prefers the old system of a special Commons committee recommending boundary changes. But it was unlikely the new system of independent boundary commissions would be abolished.

"I think every commission should be punished by having to go and try to service the constituencies that they have set set up," he said.

STANFIELD

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has launched "a massive two-pronged assault" to grab control of natural resources from the provinces, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday night.

During a sometimes-stormy Commons debate on the proposed petroleum administration act, Stanfield said the bill, which would give Ottawa final authority to set the selling price of domestically-produced and oil and natural gas, is the first prong in the attack.

The second, he said, is the proposal, outlined in the May 6 government budget, to remove the oil company right to claim provincial royalty payments as a federal income tax deduction.

The budget was defeated by the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats in the last Parliament, but Stanfield said he expects the scheme to be revived when Finance Minister John Turner brings down a new one Monday night.

"What we're witnessing is a very powerful, very determined attempt by Ottawa to take control of the administration of natural resources in this country . . ." he charged.

War Grave Visit Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A delegation including veterans of the Second World War, Italian campaign will visit Canadian cemeteries in Italy next May, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald announced Thursday.

MacDonald, who will lead the delegation, said memorial services will be held in most of the cemeteries for 5,000 dead.

The visit would coincide with the 30th anniversary of the liberation of Italy

LONG-TERM SUGAR PLAN STUDIED

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will consider signing a long-term sugar supply agreement with a sugar-producing country, Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Sugar supplies generally have been handled well by private industry but a government-to-government supply arrangement "is a matter which will be considered," he told the Commons.

He did not elaborate, but Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellett said outside the Commons that talks on future sugar supplies have been held with the Cuban ambassador. He said prices were not discussed but did not give details.

Gillespie's remarks came in response to Leonel Beaudoin (SC—Richmond) who said sugar prices would drop 65 per cent if Canada could arrange a long-term supply deal with the European Economic Community.

Such an agreement would knock out middlemen who contribute to current high prices, he said.

Break Chains: Davey

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, chairman of a 1970 study on the mass media, says the government should consider breaking up the country's big newspaper chains.

It's too late to establish a press ownership review board because the chains have grown substantially since the recommendation for such a board four years ago by his committee, Davey said Thursday.

The only alternative is action to break up the chains before they engulf almost the entire newspaper industry, he added.

When the media study, which became known as the "Davey report," was issued in December, 1970, chains controlled 60 per cent of Canada's daily newspapers.

Group ownership now has reached 80 per cent, he said.

The committee said the trend could be stopped by a review board to screen chain take-overs of independently-owned newspapers and block those that were not considered in the public interest.
